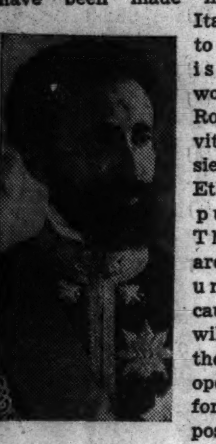
DUCE MAY ASK SELASSIE TO BE HIS PUPPET KING

Unruly Ethiopians Cause a Crisis.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Soundings have been made in London by Italian agents as to how the British government would respond if Rome were to invite Haile Selassie to return to Ethiopia as a puppet ruler. The overtures are being made unofficially because Mussolini will not issue the invitation openly unless forced to by opposition at Geneva when the question of recognizing Italy's conquest is considered by the league of nations on Sept. 13.



Haile Selassie.

Britain and France are the only two great powers yet to be won over by the Italians. Il Duce's lever against Britain is the Mediterranean. An inspired article appeared in the Rome "Relazioni Internationali" recently remarking that failing an Anglo-Italian settlement "purely formal relations will exist for a time—until the political polemic passes over, accidentally or intentionally, to bloody warfare."

Expects No Difficulties.

Pressure on France is more subtle. The Abyssinian railway between Djibuti and Addis Ababa is partly French-owned and the bondholders have offered to buy Selassie's shares to make sure of control. But the Italian government refuses to recognize the validity of the Negus' holdings. If, on the other hand, France proved accommodating at Geneva next month, Rome would raise no obstacles to acquisition of control by France from Selassie.

Italian diplomats do not expect any difficulties over the Ethiopian problem. They have privately announced that if the league will recognize that Selassie no longer holds any African territory and is not entitled to send delegates to Geneva, they will cooperate fully with the league.

Selassie Answers "No."

Twice this year Mussolini has sent emissaries to Selassie to inquire if he would return to Addis Ababa as puppet sovereign of an Italian state, were he invited to do so.

Twice Selassie has refused—the last time, three weeks ago; the first time in the spring.

These are by no means the only occasions on which the Italian government has approached the emperor's family.

When the Ethiopian crown prince was in Jerusalem—where Selassie and his family first went after leaving Abyssinia—Italian requests that he should return to an emasculated throne were so pressing and so frequent that the emperor brought his son to Europe, where he would be safe from Mussolini's importunities.

Might Consent to Mandate.

Selassie has made it quite clear to the Italians that he is prepared to negotiate only through the league of nations, of which his country is still a member.

The suggestion is that he might consider returning as titular head of a state mandated by the league, but that otherwise he would never consent to help the Italians out of their very grave difficulties in Ethiopia.

But, while Italian foothold in Abyssinia is so precarious that the return of the emperor is considered advisable, it is not yet so bad that Selassie can return on his own terms.

What Mussolini demands is his abdication—which would almost certainly be followed by a de jure recognition of Italian sovereignty by this country, with a consequent expulsion of Ethiopia from the league—and his acceptance of an Italian invitation to return to Ethiopia as a nominal monarch.

A Problem of Discipline.

Bitter experience has convinced Rome that only the presence of the emperor, or of a member of his family, can insure any form of discipline among the tribes or any form

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29 (Sunday).—(U. P.)—Four Japanese army bombing planes launched a devastating air raid today on North station, Shanghai's principal railway center. Bombs also were dropped along the railroad on the West Hongkew boundary. One bomb fell in the western district of Hongkew. Grave concern was felt for the safety of Welsh fusileers patroling the border.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Japan's great air bombers today carried the war into Nantao, old native city of Shanghai, and inflicted 600 civilian casualties in an area which had been relatively unscathed by the battle for Shanghai.

Sixteen planes participated in a leisurely, thorough bombing of Nantao's narrow, crowded streets. Mayor O. K. Yui of Greater Shanghai said 200 were killed, 400 wounded, all Chinese noncombatants.

Nantao is the old walled city that stood on the banks of the Whangpoo before the foreigners came 100 years ago to make Shanghai. Its walls were raised in the 16th century to keep out Japanese pirates. It lies just south of the French concession in which most Shanghai Americans have their homes.

New Fighting at Shanghai.

The bombing of Nantao and renewal of fighting along the Whangpoo, Shanghai's outlet to the sea, brought the war and its perils to foreigners back to the gates of the international areas, which yesterday had enjoyed a day's respite.

Yesterday's lull was due to the fact that the heaviest battle of the campaign was being fought along the southern banks of the Yangtze at least 12 miles from Shanghai, where the Chinese were battling against the inland advance of new legions just landed from Japan.

But today Americans fleeing from Shanghai's perils again were under fire and the cruiser Augusta, flagship of the United States Asiatic fleet, had another escape from shelling.

See Thrilling Battle.

One hundred and sixty Americans, carried on a tender down the Whangpoo to board the Manila bound President Lincoln, witnessed a battle between Japanese bombing planes and Chinese land forces near Woosung, at the confluence of the Whangpoo and the Yangtze. But the thrills involved risk.

The Americans saw two Japanese bombers shot down in flames. Showers of shrapnel and shell fragments from Chinese and Japanese guns alike fell on the President Lincoln's decks, causing passengers to seek safety below, but none was hurt.

The Augusta was endangered when a Chinese battery in Chapei, northern native district of Shanghai, went into action against Japanese shore positions in Hongkew. A projectile fell into the Whangpoo close to the Job Average in 16 Countries Near '29 High

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Aug. 28.—Statisticians of the international labor office today estimated that the average total of unemployed men and women in sixteen of the principal industrial countries of the world is almost down to the low mark of the boom year 1929.

If the decline continues at the same rate, they said, world unemployment will be back at its 1929 level before the close of the current year. The statisticians attributed much of the improvement to rearmament.

German Index Improves.

The countries included in the computation are Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States.

Not all of the sixteen countries showed improvement, but gains elsewhere offset any declines.

With an index number of 100 used for the year 1929 unemployment increased to 291 in 1932, but dropped to 113 in April, 1937.

The April figures show two countries—Australia and Germany—now have less unemployment than they had in 1929. Germany is shown to have only two-thirds as many jobless persons in 1937 as in 1929. Australia's latest report shows an employment index about 10 per cent better than 1929.

U. S. Follows World Average.

The United States record of jobless follows almost exactly the world average, according to the report. In the low year, 1932, the unemployment index in the United States stood at 290, almost three times the figure for 1929. The April report for the United States shows a drop to 113, only 13 points higher than in 1929. The figures for Great Britain in April were the same as those of the United States.

For other countries the report show Austria now has almost twice as many jobless as in 1929; Belgium more than nine times as many; Canada more than twice as many; Czechoslovakia more than five times; Denmark nearly twice; Japan almost the same as 1929; the Netherlands, Switzerland and Poland, four times as many; Norway and Sweden, approximately 50 per cent more than in 1929.

HITLER-VATICAN TRUCE BELIEVED NEAR; NUNCIO PAYS DIPLOMATIC CALL

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Reichsfueher Adolf Hitler, official quarters hinted today, is on the verge of making a truce with the Vatican.

These reports were partly confirmed by the information that the Papal Nuncio, Msgr. Cesare Orsenigo, has conferred at the foreign office with State Secretary Hans Von Mackensen. Much importance was attached in official circles to the visit. It was the first since the strained diplomatic relations between the Vatican and Nazi Germany reached an impasse June 1.

The impasse arose out of the German reaction to a speech by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago in which the American prelate called Hitler "an Austrian paperhanger and a poor one at that."

Observers said the possibility that "peace may lie just around the corner" was heightened by the virtual discontinuance recently of the "immorality trials" involving priests.

An Early Morning Stretch Sends Woman to Hospital

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—When Mrs. Janet Reynolds, 30, awoke today, she treated herself to a luxurious early morning stretch, her arms flung wide. Then she could not get them down again, nor could she turn her head. An ambulance took her to St. Vincent's hospital, her arms still outstretched. Physicians said she had dislocated a vertebra in her neck. They succeeded in freeing her arms after treatment.

Elsie (350 Lbs.) Fractures Ankle; 8 Men to Rescue

When Elsie Evans, 32 years old, colored, 450 Bowen avenue, alighted from a Harrison street car in front of the County hospital last night to visit a sick relative, she tripped and fractured her right ankle on a section of pavement that was torn up. She joined her relative as a patient after eight men carried her into the hospital. Elsie weighs 350 pounds.

Champion! In 1 Hr. 6½ Min. He Beats 7—Digs a Grave

Sterling, Ill., Aug. 28.—(AP)—And so it's come to this—a grave diggers' contest. Topnotch grave diggers from this district gathered here today and began digging up the municipal airport. After 1 hour 6½ minutes, Gerard Cobert of East Moline had dug a regulation grave. He was the champion. Seven others competed.

Theater Party Held Up; Lose $10,000 Gems

Three stop light bandits obtained more than $10,000 in jewelry, furs and money late last night when they held up three women and two men at Grand avenue and Dearborn street, only half a mile north of the loop. Two of the men were armed and wore handkerchief masks. The third man was chauffeur of the bandit car.

The victims of the daring robbery were Lee Stern, 3740 Lake Shore drive, liquor broker and president of the North American Distributors, 10 South La Salle street; his wife, Josephine; Frank Berger, 451 Melrose street, an associate of Stern's, and his wife, Ella, and Mrs. Marion Wolfsohn, also of 451 Melrose street, a sister of Mrs. Berger.

Returning from Theater.

The Sterns, the Bergers, and Mrs. Wolfsohn were driving home from the Selwyn theater, and were northbound in Dearborn street. They stopped for a red signal at Grand avenue. At that moment a 1937 sedan drove up behind. Two masked men, each with a gun, alighted. One stepped to the right and the other to the left of the Stern car, opened the doors, and forced their way in with gruff announcements, "This is a stickup." One man took the wheel and drove the car east in Grand avenue and then into an alley between Dearborn and State streets. Their accomplice followed in the bandit car.

"Just do as we say or we'll have to shoot," one of the robbers warned in a low voice. The victims attempted no resistance. The gunmen then began stripping their victims of rings and bracelets.

List Jewelry Stolen.

From Stern they took a white gold, star sapphire ring valued at $425 and from his wife a platinum diamond bracelet which cost $3,250, another bracelet worth $2,750, and a diamond ring costing $1,500. Mrs. Wolfsohn gave up a platinum diamond ring valued at $750, a silver fox worth $375, and $50 in cash. Mrs. Berger was robbed of a 2 carat diamond ring valued at $1,000. The gunmen overlooked a total of $400 in cash carried by Stern and Berger.

The robbers escaped in their own car. The Sterns and Bergers reported the robbery to Detectives Phil O'Neill and George Shannon of the Chicago avenue station.

Bring Fugitive Back for Park Murder Quiz

Bedraggled and handcuffed, Leonard Doxey was brought back to Chicago from St. Louis last night as the fugitive suspect charged in a warant with the moonlight murder of Herbert W. Lee, alias Burns, an Evanston market proprietor, who was shot to death in Grant park a week ago this morning.

With him were John Martin, alias Dixon, and Lucille Meredith, alias Mueller, a brunette. All three were seized in St. Louis on Friday and returned voluntarily.

Thirty Police Meet Prisoners.

A detail of thirty police awaited the arrival of Doxey and his two companions at the Union station. Doxey and Martin were taken in a squad car to the detective bureau. Miss Meredith was transported in another car by Policewomen Mary Parker and Margaret Hogan. None of them had anything to say. They appeared tired, and a little surprised by their reception. Martin peeked out of a discolored left eye incurred in some unaccountable manner in St. Louis.

Doxey, alleged procurer and sweetheart of Lucille Buehler, the girl who was with Lee at the time he was slain by two gunmen, has been identified as one of the pair, according to Lieut. Thomas Kelly, of the state's attorney's office, who brought him back. The man who identified him was Jimmy Murphy, a casual, who was sleeping in Grant park and was awakened by the shots which killed Lee. The slayers ran past him a moment later. On the basis of what he saw, he identified Doxey.

Seen at Ten Feet.

"Doxey is one of the men who ran by me," said Murphy, according to Lieut. Kelly. "He wasn't more than ten feet away."

Murphy said that Martin bore some resemblance to the other man, but was not certain. Police said they were content for the time being with Murphy's identification, although it may be questioned later because of the fact Murphy saw the slayers in the moonlight. They declared, however, that Murphy picked out Doxey unhesitatingly in St. Louis. Murphy accompanied the party back last night.

Drops Extradition Fight.

Doxey at first rebelled against returning to Chicago, and threatened to fight extradition, but Lieut. Kelly and Assistant State's Attorney Harry Posner talked with him for fifteen minutes, and he changed his mind. Martin and Miss Meredith agreed to go along with Doxey. Both disclaimed any knowledge of the Lee murder, although Miss Meredith said she knew that Doxey fled Chicago for fear of being involved in the case.

She said she lived with him at the Metropole hotel under the name of

PERSONAL AIDS GET $180,000; REST TO TRUST

Action Raises Issue of Tax on Estate.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The vast personal millions left by Andrew W. Mellon, with the exception of $180,000, will go to his educational and charitable trust, according to the terms of his will announced tonight by his attorney, D. D. Shepard.

The $180,000 exempted in the will of the former secretary of the treasury will be distributed among his personal employés, "in appreciation of their loyalty and efficiency," Attorney Shepard said.

Mellon's two children, Paul and Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, received no bequests, the will explained, because they already had been "adequately provided for."

Estimated at $205,000,000.

No exact estimate of Mellon's fortune, which was characterized by his attorney as "extremely large," has been made. However, H. M. Johnson, a secretary to the former treasury head, testified at an income tax hearing in 1931 that he placed Mellon's wealth at $205,000,000.

Shortly after that estimate was given, Mellon created for his two children a personal holding company into which he put approximately $68,000,000 in securities. Subsequently he was reported to have transferred other large holdings to the company.

The announcement of the terms of Mellon's will was made only a few hours after his funeral this afternoon, held in the magnificent $4,000,000 East Liberty Presbyterian church built by the Mellon family.

Tax Issue Raised.

Immediately following the announcement concerning the will, the question was raised as to whether the gift of the huge fortune to the A. W. Mellon educational and charitable trust will exempt it from inheritance taxes. An opinion was expressed that the issue probably would have to be settled in court. Previously it had been estimated that inheritance taxes on the estate might run as high as $35,000,000.

It was recalled that when Mellon's 193[illegible] income was reassessed, the internal revenue bureau ruled that gifts to the A. W. Mellon trust were taxable. The bureau contended the trust was not a bona fide charitable institution. This was one of the issues considered before the tax appeal board, which still is debating Mellon's appeal from the $3,089,000 assessment.

Insist Trust Is Tax-Free.

In commenting on the dispute over the trust's character, a spokesman for the family expressed the opinion that "Mr. Mellon had ample legal assurance that the trust in every sense is a charitable one, under the law, before he made his will."

A collection of paintings for which the former secretary of the treasury paid $19,000,000 and which have been valued by art experts at as much as $50,000,000 was given to the trust several years ago.

Then, as trustee of the trust, Mellon offered the paintings last year to the national government, agreeing to build a $10,000,000 art gallery in Washington to house them. Congress and President Roosevelt accepted the gift this year.

Charities "Underestimated."

Attorney Shepard said tonight that estimates that the Pittsburgh financier had given more than $70,000,000 to charitable and educational projects from 1930 to 1937 are "considerably underestimated."

In announcing the terms of the Mellon will, the attorney issued a statement which said:

"With the exception of a bequest of $180,000, to be divided among his personal employés, in appreciation of their loyalty and efficiency, and such household effects as are contained in his residence, the entire estate will go to the use of charitable and educational purposes.

Millions Already Distributed.

"The A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable trust, created in December, 1930, is the organization to which residue of the estate has been left. The deed creating this trust provides that its funds shall be applied exclusively to religious, charitable, and educational uses and purposes. It already has distributed many millions of dollars during its existence.

"In explanation of his reason for making no bequests to his children, Mr. Mellon stated that they already had been adequately provided for.

"His son, Paul Mellon, his son-in-law, David Bruce, and his attorney, Donald D. Shepard, who are the surviving trustees of the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable trust, were named as executors under the will."

Simple Funeral Service.

In accordance with Mellon's wishes, no sermon eulogized his life when brief funeral services were held in the church this afternoon. The ceremonies were kept as simple as possible.

Soft strains of the organ playing Bach's and Chopin's music, two old Presbyterian hymns, two brief prayers and the reading of a few lines from the Bible comprised the entire rites.

Throughout the ceremonies, the coffin rested on a flower-banked dais, surrounded by countless floral remembrances from men and women in every walk of life. Among large baskets of flowers was one from President Roosevelt.

Crowd Fills Streets.

Members of the Mellon family sat near the dais. Behind them were intimate friends and the financier's personal employés. The rest of the church was crowded with 3,000 men and women who knew Mr. Mellon only by name, and the throngs overflowed into the churchyard and the streets.

After the services, which lasted half an hour, the coffin was taken to Allegheny cemetery. There it was placed in a vine covered vault beside that of Mr. Mellon's brother, Richard, the last gesture of the partnership Mellon carried out during his lifetime with his reference to "my brother and I."

MARY MINTER'S SISTER DENIES KILLING TAYLOR

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Fillmore's $48,750 suit against her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, dipped back into the legendary William Desmond Taylor case again today with Mrs. Shelby's denial from the witness stand that she killed the silent film director.

Clyde Murphy, Mrs. Shelby's attorney, asked her flatly:

"Did you kill Taylor?"

Mrs. Shelby replied emphatically that she did not.

Mrs. Shelby is the mother of Mary Miles Minter, screen belle of the '20's, who was Taylor's fiancée at the time he was found shot in his swank Hollywood bungalow in 1922.

Mrs. Fillmore's suit is to recover funds held in a deposit box jointly by her and her mother.

REROUTE TRAFIC ON LAKE SHORE DRIVE FOR WEEK

Beginning tomorrow, northbound trafic will be rerouted on Lake Shore drive from Oak street to North avenue during construction of pedestrian subways at North avenue and Division street. The rerouting arrangements, announced yesterday by Otto K. Jelinek, trafic engineer, will continue until the subways are completed. The work is expected to take a week.

Northbound trafic on Michigan avenue will be diverted northeast into the recently completed east drive at Oak street and will resume the normal route at North avenue. The center drive between those streets will be closed except to local buses and certain local northbound trafic. Southbound trafic will proceed as usual.

Wife's Suit Blames Mate for Death of Little Girl

Mrs. Caroline Moore, 5414 Cortland street, charged yesterday in a divorce bill filed in the Superior court that her husband's cruelty was responsible for the death of their daughter, Caroline, 3 years old. According to the bill, the husband, Michael, forced his wife and their three children from the house last June 2. Mrs. Moore and the children slept in an open car and Caroline, the youngest child, who was convalescing from pneumonia, became ill again and died, according to the bill.

The secretary said the Warroad seaplane base, Warroad, Minn., has been designated a temporary entry port.

WOMAN PILOT SAFE; KIDNAPING REPORT FALSE

Glendale, Cal., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Mrs. George Weston, 32 years old, an aviatrix known in aviation circles as Dorothy Lane, was found early today in a parked automobile after her husband reported her kidnaped. The car was found by police in the Highland Park district, between Los Angeles and Glendale.

Officers said the woman was asleep on the rear seat and a man was sleeping in the front seat. Mrs. Weston told police they had been on a round of drinking parties last night, but that her husband had been with them.

Trolley and 'L' Cars Halted as Bridge Sticks Twice

Thousands of passengers on the north side elevated and the Wells street car lines were delayed last night when an operating defect put the Wells street bridge out of service twice in less than an hour. The first delay occurred between 9:02 and 9:17 o'clock, and the second between 9:23 and 9:35 o'clock. The trouble was caused by failure of the center lock. The trains tied up by the first delay were able to proceed on their schedules before the second delay occurred.

TIME, DISTANCE DECIDE LONDON TAXICAB FARES

Passengers Forbidden to Split Charges.

Seek Cab Raise Here

The present taxicab rate in Chicago is 15 cents for the first one-third of a mile, and 10 cents for each additional two-thirds of a mile. The two cab companies and their drivers are asking the city council to approve an increase of 5 cents in the initial charge, making the rate 20 cents for the first one-third of a mile. There are now 4,106 cabs in Chicago. The companies have agreed to reduce this number to 3,000 if a rate increase is granted and the taxi contract ordinance extended to 1945. Tribune correspondents in London and Paris describe the taxi situation in those capitals, as an interesting sidelight on Chicago's taxi problem.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—London taxicab fares are based on a combination of time and distance. When the cab is delayed by a trafic block or compelled to travel less than five and one-third miles an hour, the charge is based on the time. When the speed exceeds five and one-third miles an hour the charge is calculated by distance.

The minimum fare is 18 cents. This covers the first two-thirds of a mile or a period of time not exceeding seven and a half minutes. Each additional one-third mile or three and three-quarters minutes the bill goes up another 6 cents, making the average 18 cents a mile after the first two-thirds mile is completed.

Licensed to Carry Four.

Taxis in London are licensed to carry four persons, but if more than two ride there is an extra charge of 12 cents each.

Luggage not exceeding two feet in length and carried inside the cab goes for nothing, but baggage carried on the outside pays an extra 6 cents a package. Bicycles, baby carts, and perambulators carried on the outside cost 18 cents extra each.

Under British law, two or three people riding in a cab are not allowed to "split the fare" between them and pay the driver. The penalty is a heavy fine. Any busybody can act as a common informer and cause an arrest.

Gasoline costs between 34 and 38 cents a gallon, but taxi drivers get a reduction of 2 to 3 cents.

In this day when ancient landmarks are disappearing in London, the old-timer can always be comforted by the sight of taxicabs. In more than twenty years they have changed less in appearance than any other cars in the world.

Regulated by Scotland Yard.

Most of the responsibility must go to Scotland Yard. Londoners probably would be willing to have their taxis made a little more like the sleek, fast cabs of Chicago, New York, and other great cities, but Scotland Yard, through the public carriage office, lays down certain specifications for the cabs.

A London taxi must be at least six feet and one-half inches high, over all. And it must be able to turn in a twenty foot circle. Those two specifications help to explain its clumsy ugliness.

JOKER IN PARIS RATES

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Whether taxicab fares in Paris will remain as they are still is a matter of doubt since drivers protest that the rates are too high and they are due to lose customers if the Paris council persists in its avowed intention to make rates higher.

As things now are, a taxi starts with a flag pull of 2 francs—nearly 8 cents—which will take you 400 yards. Thereafter you pay approximately 2 cents for every additional 200 yards.

But when you ask for the bill you find there is a joker which is that any price at all is raised by 20 per cent. On top of that the customer is expected to give the driver a tip of approximately 10 per cent.

Paris, being a relatively well concentrated city, one can go from one point to another within the circles of the so-called exterior boulevards for about 50 cents, tip included. That is true providing you take the taxi before 11 o'clock at night. Thereafter until 6 o'clock in the morning you pay double fare and tip.

Ordinary gasoline costs 52 cents per "bidon," which is about five quarts. Special gasoline waranted not to be adulterated by alcohol, as required by law for ordinary gasoline, costs 60 cents per "bidon."

IRISH ATTACKS HINT AT BAN ON BRITISH PAPERS

Charges False Treatment of Political Events.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Hopes of a complete ban in Ireland on all imported British newspapers are, it is believed, behind the attacks which have been made in all parts of Ireland within the last few months on British papers. The papers are accused of false treatment of Irish events.

All shades of political opinion have been represented in this all-Irish denunciation of the British dailies.

The dislike of the imported newspapers apparently has spread from official circles in republican Dublin to loyalist Belfast.

Papers Cost 4 Cents.

Northern Ireland now appears to be anxious to follow the example of the Free State, where the tax on imported dailies, making the price to readers about 4 cents, has caused a considerable drop in Free State edition circulations in the last few years.

A Belfast alderman last week attacked the "stinking yellow press," a reference to British papers' treatment of Belfast royal visit news. In the last few weeks the Daily Mirror, Daily Express, and News Review also have been singled out for attack by northern Ireland and Free State papers.

The Irish Press, which is controled by President Eamon de Valera, hinted in a recent editorial that a complete ban on all imported dailies would be for the good of the country, and asserted that the British press was playing an "equivocal and unworthy part" in Anglo-Irish affairs.

Suppression Is Charged.

London and Manchester papers were accused of "maligning" the De Valera government "by the twin methods of misrepresentation and suppression."

It is believed in well informed Dublin circles that flimsy excuses are being sought to attack the imported dailies as a prelude to a complete ban on British papers in southern Ireland.

At present dailies and weekly periodicals are taxed, while national Sunday editions are imported free of duty.

De Valera now has power to go further than his finance minister did a few budgets ago. A clause in the new constitution gives control of "organs of opinion."

CONCERT CROWDS TO HEAR HEIFETZ' VIOLIN TONIGHT

Master Musician Will Appear in Grant Park.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Every road, ramp, and viaduct leading to the vast audience area at the south end of Grant park, if the weather behaves, will be choked with people from 6 to 8 o'clock tonight. The lure for all these hurrying throngs will be a quiet, unassuming young fellow of 36 who happens to be one of the greatest musicians of our time.

Jascha Heifetz.

He is Jascha Heifetz, and the three years of free concerts at the Grant park bandshell reach one of their major climaxes this evening when this world renowned violinist makes an appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Hans Lange conducting, as featured soloist of the regular concert. This perhaps is the biggest coup of the summer concert series, for even those wealthy wintertime concertgoers who are eager to give good American dollars to hear Heifetz and the symphony together have had no such opportunity in nearly seven years.

Brings Famous Names.

Previous concerts have brought to Grant park a dazzling collection of musical luminaries. These have included Mischa Elman, John Charles Thomas, Lily Pons, Andre Kostelanetz, Marion Claire, Tito Schipa—even Rubinoff himself! And Heifetz does not mark the end of this summer's activities. Next Wednesday brings Richard Bonelli, famous baritone, and Saturday Bobby Breen in persons. [Further details, including tonight's complete program, will be found in the music section of today's TRIBUNE.]

Rubinoff is past master of the art of assaulting the human emotions by such devices as a shivering vibrato, an oozing, caramel-like tone, a tantalizing rhythmic fillip. Heifetz contents himself with an attempt to present the musical conceptions of great composers in a full and sympathetic but unedited manner. Heifetz and his Violin [the phrasing is taken bodily from the electric sign at Grant park] are an austere pair beside Rubinoff and his instrument.

Jascha Heifetz was born in Vilna, Lithuania, in 1901. He appeared as violinist in St. Petersburg [later Petrograd, now Leningrad] at the age of 9. This wonder child played in recital and with orchestra in Germany, Austria and the Scandinavian countries before he had attained what we would call the long pants age.

An Uncompromising Artist.

His family emigrated to the United States in 1917 and the boy immediately startled American concertgoers with the perfection of his playing. His history since then has been one of uncompromising artistry and complete public acceptance, with no responsible person ever challenging his right to take rank among the top three or four violinists of the world.

Hans Lange and the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night presented the third of their current four concert series at the lake front bandshell.

SEIZE CONVICT, PAROLED 3 MOS. AGO, AS A ROBBER

Thomas Flood, 37 years old, who was paroled three months ago from Joliet penitentiary, was held last night at the Fillmore police station on a charge of robbery. He was identified by Miss Catherine Kostecki, 4418 Thomas street, as the bandit who took three women's dresses, one man's suit, and $10 from her in the Brite Cleaners' branch store at 6 South Karlov avenue last Tuesday. Flood was arrested with the loot Tuesday night at Cicero avenue and Harrison street. He gave his address as 6030 Stony Island avenue.

Set Marriage License Record Under New Law

The largest number of marriage licenses since the hygienic marriage laws went into effect were issued yesterday by the Cook county marriage license bureau. However, the 148 licenses were only about half as many as normally were issued on a Saturday a year ago, County Clerk Michael J. Flynn said. The total for this month is 1,896, compared with 9,924 in June, before the new laws became effective.

FOUND DEAD NEAR TRACKS.

Recalls 1878 Fire Ace

When the first national fire fighters' tournament is held at Soldiers' field next Sunday and Monday as part of the Chicago Charter Jubilee celebration the Peter Kipley family will be there. In 187_ the late Peter Kipley Sr. won the title of No. 1 fireman of America in a similar tournament. The son, Peter Kipley Jr., a former fire chief at Dolton, and his daughter, Miss Rita Kipley, 9045 Escanaba avenue, will 'isplay at the tournament a fire trumpet and other old time equipment used by Kipley Sr.

The Fred A. Busse, Chicago's new fireboat, which will also take part in the tournament, gave a preview of its fire fighting prowess yesterday in the Chicago river at Franklin street and Wacker drive.

LAKES CARNIVAL CLOSES TONIGHT IN GRAND FINALE

Two Movie Test Winners to Be Chosen.

The Carnival of the Lakes, Chicago's Charter Jubilee extravaganza, will close tonight with a record attendance for its week's run. Great crowds have jammed the Lagoon theater nightly, spilling over onto the sloping banks of the lake front. When the water curtain rises tonight as a finale, it has been estimated that more than 700,000 spectators will have witnessed the city's first aquatic spectacle since A Century of Progress.

From the opening "Parade of Champions," a revue of water craft, to the final throb of Rubinoff's violin, the audience applauded each act. The water ballet, graceful and rhythmic in the shimmering water, brought enthusiastic cheers, both from the spectators and the crews of the yachts and sailboats that nosed in close to the floating stage.

Movie Finalists Chosen.

Chicago's finalists in the Movie Talent Parade already have been chosen, and will be pitted against out of town contestants on the south stage tonight. The two winners, one young man and one young woman, will be awarded trips to Hollywood for screen tests.

Americans of German descent from Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois will converge today upon Soldiers' field for the second day of their German celebration. The principal event will be a musical festival with 800 trained voices and a symphony orchestra conducted by Johann Strauss III., with Mrs. Ernest J. Kreutgen, soprano, as soloist.

The program will open with floats depicting the achievements of Americans of German ancestry and will conclude with a peace pageant in which world war veterans of various nationalities will take part.

Next Sunday Is Italian Day.

Next Sunday has been set aside as Italian day. All Chicagoans of Italian descent will join in commemoration of Italy's contribution to the city's history.

The fiesta will open at 3 o'clock in Burnham park with a ceremony following at the Roman column. Mayor Kelly, Consul General Fontana, and Marshal Balbo, on a radio hookup from Tripoli, will be principal speakers. The remainder of the afternoon will be given over to water sports and a Venetian water carnival in the Lagoon theater.

ALUMNI TO HELP CELEBRATE 200 YRS. OF U. OF PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Pennsylvania, the university which claims Benjamin Franklin as its founder and the distinction of being the first university in America, is preparing for its bicentennial.

October 18 its alumni will meet in 300 American and foreign cities and the observance will continue for three years.

In 1740 the Rev. George Whitefield, English revivalist, appealed for funds and erected the "House for Publick Worship and Charity School." Franklin brought to the "charity school" an eagerness for educational pursuits which resulted in the organization of the academy, forerunner of the present university. Franklin was first president of its board of trustees and helped to cut it loose from the traditional ecclesiastical phase of colonial education.

Chicago Police Skeptical of Kidnap-Robbery Story

Chicago police yesterday threw doubt upon the kidnaping story which Ralph Marcum, 29 years old, who said he is a Chicago merchant, told Police Chief John Webber of La Crosse, Wis., Friday. Marcum told Webber he was kidnaped from Chicago by three men who took $1,800 from him during a ride across Wisconsin. He said he is a co-owner with James Saunders of a market at 3759 Chicago avenue. Mr. Saunders yesterday told police Marcum's only connection with the market is as a truck driver and that he was unemployed until recently.

MYSTERY SPEED PLANE TAKEN UP BY COL. TURNER

Tiny Ship Has Remarkable Rate of Climb.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Col. Roscoe Turner, noted speed flyer, tested his new speed plane, the Meteor, at the Chicago airport last evening in preparation for the national air races in Cleveland early in September. Only a few friends witnessed the secret trials.

Col. Roscoe Turner.

What impressed observers was the tiny size of the racer. Its wings measured approximately only 24 feet from tip to tip, and its fuselage was 31 feet long. The plane is expected to attain a maximum speed of 400 miles per hour and a top cruising speed of 325.

Three Years in Making.

It is of the midwing monoplane type, and has a twin Wasp two row, 14 cylinder engine capable of developing 1,400 horsepower. The ship was three years in the making, first at Minneapolis, then Los Angeles, and finally here, where Matty Laird, well known plane designer, finished the job.

Actually, the ship was not completed until late yesterday, and then it was wheeled out into the airport from the adjacent Laird shops. Standing by were Col. Turner's wife, Ora Young, department of commerce air inspector, and Don Young, Col. Turner's mechanic, no relation to the inspector. After the motor was warmed up, Col. Turner entered the cockpit, a single seater, and taxied up and down the mile long east-west runway.

Plane Rises Rapidly.

Then he took off. He rose rapidly. By the time he had reached the eastern boundary of the airport—less than a mile from the takeoff point—he had risen to an altitude of 1,500 feet. He continued his rapid ascent, climbing 4,500 feet or nearly a mile in one minute. This is marvelously fast even for fast climbers. By way of comparison, it may be pointed out express elevators travel 1,200 feet a minute.

Col. Turner flew to the Ford-Lansing airport, ten miles away. With throttle way back, holding down speed, he traveled 175 miles per hour. After landing, the flyer told aids that the ship handled beautifully, especially at landing speed. The automatic pitch propellor did not function as expected, however, and mechanics were put to work to correct it at once.

The colonel expects to enter the new plane in the Bendix trophy race from Los Angeles to Cleveland and the Thompson 200 mile trophy.

CCC Fights Five Forest Fires; Conquers 4 of Them

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Civilian conservation corps headquarters at Fort Snelling reported today that members fought five forest fires in dry northern Minnesota last night and today had four of them under control.

TESTS MIDGET RACING PLANE

Col. Roscoe Turner tried out in Chicago yesterday his new small craft, the Meteor, in which he expects to compete in Bendix race from Los Angeles to Cleveland early in September. The midwing monoplane has a maximum speed of 400 miles an hour.

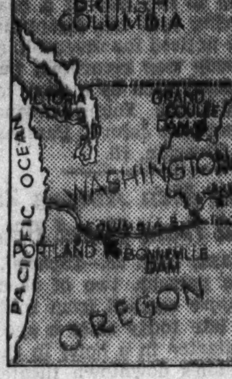
COURT PACKING APPEAL SLATED FOR ROOSEVELT

President Is Planning Trip to West.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—An appeal to the people in behalf of his plan to pack the Supreme court probably will be made by President Roosevelt during a cross-country trip late in September, it was reported today.



Location of dams President Roosevelt plans to visit.

The President has decided to visit the west coast and inspect the Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams, which were begun under his administration. Only some startling development in the far east which would directly involve the United States will make him change his plans.

Sees Justice Pecora.

That the Supreme court controversy will be the subject of a speech on this trip seemed certain after Mr. Roosevelt had indulged today in a discussion with state Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora of New York.

Pecora is a valiant supporter of the President's proposal to inject "young blood" into the Supreme court. He testified before the senate judiciary committee that the court enlargement plan was essential.

The political situation in New York City also was discussed by the President with Pecora. Mr. Roosevelt is anxious that Senator Royal S. Copeland's candidacy for the democratic nomination for mayor be defeated. Pecora hinted that, despite his judicial position, he would take an active part in the campaign to beat Copeland.

The other visitor of importance at the President's home today was Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, who has just returned from Europe. This call was described as "purely social."

ORDER ALIMONY TESTIMONY BY 4 IN SCHREIBER SUIT

Former Ald. Irving J. Schreiber of the 5th ward, who has been ordered to pay $770 back alimony to his divorced wife, Marcia, of the Windermere East hotel, obtained a court order yesterday to compel four witnesses to testify in support of his claim that reduced income makes him unable to meet the payments.

The witnesses, who failed to appear at the last hearing of the case, were ordered by Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski in Circuit court to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court.

Schreiber, a real estate dealer, lives at 5321 Harper avenue. He was divorced on May 15, 1934, and ordered to pay $150 a month alimony. A later court order reduced the payments to $100 a month on Schreiber's plea that his income has been cut from $800 to $300 a month. In an answer filed April 30 to a contempt petition Schreiber said he had lost all except one of a large number of profitable real estate receiverships and had assumed additional obligations in being remarried.

LINER WITH TYPHOID IN CREW SAILS HOME MINUS PASSENGERS

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The 1,000 passengers of the German liner Hansa which arrived here yesterday with typhoid fever in the crew will be under observation by their local health departments throughout the nation for two weeks, the federal health service announced tonight as the ship set sail for the return trip to Germany without any passengers.

City Health Commissioner John L. Rice reported that 39 of 42 cases of illness in the crew definitly were typhoid.

After a conference with city health officers and representatives of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, officials of the Hamburg-American line decided to send the Hansa back to Hamburg tonight with the full crew, carrying no passengers and eliminating scheduled stops at Southampton and Cherbourg.

The 325 passengers booked for tonight's trip received refunds or provisions for awaiting the next sailing of the line Monday.

Station Dedicated with Air Show and Parade.

More than 20,000 persons yesterday attended the official opening of the new naval aviation base at Lake avenue and Shermer road, north of Glenview, the old Curtiss-Reynolds airport. The crowd viewed a two hour program of aerial maneuvers and a parade of a detachment from the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

The new aviation base was completed last April at a cost of $120,000, the equipment being moved from the naval training station.

27 Planes in Maneuvers.

Twenty-seven naval reserve planes participated in the maneuvers. Fifteen of the ships are stationed at the Glenview base and the others came from the naval air bases at Detroit, Kansas City, Minneapolis, and St. Louis. Eighteen of the planes were Grumman Fighters, six were Berliner-Joyce observation ships, and the other three were Curtiss Helldivers.

The air show included aerial gunnery, stunt flying, dive bombing, combat and strafing tactics, tactical flying, and power dives. In a concluding formation, the planes swept by in three divisions of nine each. After a mass review of the planes 500 recruits from the naval training station paraded.

Commander Views Spectacle.

Among those in the reviewing stand were Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, commander of the naval training station and of the ninth naval district; Commander Ralph Wood, aviation aid to Admiral Ellis; Commander H. S. Bear, head of the public works department at the training station, who supervised the building of the new base, and Lieut. G. A. T. Washburn, commanding officer at the base.

Others in the stand were Congressman Ralph Church of Evanston; John Wentworth, representing the Chicago aviation committee; Victor Kleber, representing Mayor Kelly; Maj. Edward J. Rehmann, acting commanding officer at Fort Sheridan, and Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, retired, former commander of the 6th army corps area.

Bishop Waldorf to Close M. E. Retreat Today

The summer retreat of the Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, in session at Lake Geneva, Wis., since Friday, will be concluded today with an address by Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, head of the church in the Chicago area. Five hundred Methodist ministers and laymen have attended the meetings.

A detachment from the Great Lakes Naval Training station paraded at the opening of the naval aviation base at the old Curtiss-Reynolds airport, north of Glenview, yesterday. Two hours of aerial maneuvers constituted the remainder of the program. Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, commander of the training station and of the Ninth naval district, and other naval officers and civilian notables were in the reviewing stand.

RULER OF ELKS RAPS TEACHERS AS 'RED DANGER'

Madison, Wis., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Charles Spencer Hart, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, today denounced the American Federation of Teachers, which completed its convention here Friday, as a dangerous group of communists.

Speaking at a banquet at the convention of Wisconsin Elks, which coincided with the teachers' convention, Hart said he had mingled with the teachers and had watched them in the lobby after convention sessions.

'I never saw a more communistic group in my life," he declared. "They were a dangerous group. I don't know how many such teachers are employed in this state, but I want to warn you to beware of that type of teacher and teaching in this state.

"Run them out. They have no place in our scheme of Democratic government. They will break down our institutions if you permit them to stay."

Informed of Hart's remarks, the teachers' executive council, which remained in session after the convention, denounced the Elk leader's statement as "an irresponsible attack unarea. French officers said most of

SPURNS PENSION AID BECAUSE PART COMES FROM LIQUOR TAXES

Pierre, S. D., Aug. 28.—(AP)—A former Mellette county school teacher today returned her July and August old age assistance checks to J. W. Kaye, state social security director, and asked to withdraw her application for aid because part of the funds for the department are derived from liquor taxes.

In her letter the woman wrote:

"We had another crop failure here and it will be hard for me to get along, but I feel that I would rather go hungry and cold than to live on money that is part of the liquor tax.

"I taught school for many years and I cannot bear to think that my accepting such money may have a bad influence on some of my former pupils."

Such Luck! He Finds 166 4, 5 and 6 Leaf Clovers

Washington Court House, O., Aug. 28.—(AP)—If four leaf clovers bring luck, Wilson Naylor said today, he should be fixed for the rest of his life. He found 166 clovers that bore four, five, or six leaves.

PREACHER HELD WITHOUT BAIL AS SLAYER OF WIFE

Linden, N. J., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Calm, and apparently solaced by a reading of his Bible, Lloyd Pusey, roving preacher, stood in police court here today as he was charged with the hammer slaying of his wife, Mary, also an evangelist. He had previously confessed that he beat her to death last night because she threatened to leave him as they quarreled in their automobile.

Arraigned before Police Court Justice Louis Rakin, Pusey, 44 years old, said simply: "I did it, that's all." He was held without bail for the grand jury and was locked up in the Union county jail.

Before the arraignment Pusey had sought consolation with his Bible, which was stained with his wife's blood.

"I loved her very much," he told the police. "I told her I'd never harm a hair of her head and I don't know why I did it."

BRITAIN'S ANGER GROWS; JAPS STOP A REFUGEE SHIP

New Protest Made and Explanation Sought.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The severance of diplomatic relations today appeared scheduled as the outcome of next week's diplomatic exchanges between Great Britain and Japan.

The halting of the Shengking, British refugee ship, by a Japanese warship in the Whangpoo river off Woosung today aggravated Britain's anger over the shooting on Thursday of Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, British ambassador to China, by Japanese aerial machine gun fire.

The British considered the stopping of the British steamer as "another outrage." A note of protest is expected to be sent to the government at Tokio.

Ship Allowed to Proceed.

The Shengking, which is under charter to British naval authorities for the evacuation of British citizens from Shanghai to Hongkong, was signaled and "questioned as to identity" by the Japanese warship. The ship was allowed to proceed after it complied with the request and was not molested.

When the Japanese established the blockade they announced it was only directed at Chinese shipping and that ships flying the flags of the United States, Britain, and other foreign powers would be permitted to pass.

Publication of the contents of Britain's note demanding "fullest satisfaction" for the shooting of Knatchbull-Hugessen, who was attacked while motoring from Nanking to Shanghai, is being anxiously awaited by the British public and foreign diplomats.

Ready to Deliver Note.

J. L. Dodds, British chargé d'affaires of the British embassy in Tokio, is expected to call at the Japanese foreign office on or before Monday to present the British note. It will demand apologies for the shooting, indemnity and assurances against repetition of the act.

The Japanese, some observers believe, will refuse the satisfaction the British are demanding. In that event the British are expected to announce there will be no possibility of continuing diplomatic representation at Tokio.

Some dispatches to London suggested that the Japanese aviators who participated in the attack may commit hara-kari as voluntary punishment.

It is not believed that Britain will take any measure beyond severing diplomatic relations. The reason for this is that the British fleet in the Mediterranean cannot be weakened by sending any heavy naval units to the far east because of unrest in Europe.

Admiral Makes a Denial.

Vice Admiral Sir Charles Little, commander in chief of the British navy's China station, cabled the British admiralty in London denying he had indicated to Japanese authorities his belief that the British ambassador had been imprudent in making the trip from Nanking to Shanghai. Little said the story was a fabrication.

The wounded ambassador was reported recovering in a Shanghai hospital.

Americans Under Fire

1—American refugees on ship endangered by shells from Japanese and Chinese guns. British ship also halted by Jap warship in this area.

26 OF SHANGHAI VESSEL'S CREW IS STRANDED IN U. S.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 28—(AP)—A group of twenty-six Shanghai citizens are stranded here unable to get back to their native land or to obtain news of their friends and families.

They are the crew of the Chinese owned steamer Win On, formerly the Lake George, which was bought and partially repaired at Bay City and moved to River Rouge for complete outfitting earlier this summer.

Halfway around the world from the home port, Capt. A. R. Smith, Norwegian born skipper, finds himself with a ship and crew and no place to go. He can't even establish communications with his home office, the Win On Steamship company.

The Chinese coolie crew was brought into this country at Seattle, Wash., and transported under heavy guard to prevent violation of immigration laws to Bay City, where the boat had been bought from the Davidson Steamship company. The former Lake George, an old "stem winder" type of lake vessel, was towed to River Rouge for rehabilitation.

RUSSIA REQUESTS JAPAN TO CLOSE TWO CONSULATES

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The soviet government has asked Japan to close its consulates at Odessa, on the Black sea, and Novosibirsk, in central Siberia, on the ground that Japanese interests in those regions were not sufficient to justify consular representation. Japanese authorities indicated they would comply and close the offices Sept. 15.

The soviet government's request is considered in line with its policy to reduce foreign consular representation in its territories. Polish consulates at Kiev and Kharkov were closed about a month ago.

The soviet consulates at two border towns in Manchukuo were closed recently, but that was in protest against treatment of soviet representatives there by Japanese and Manchukuoan officials, which Moscow said was oppressive.

cruiser, moored off the International settlement.

Crew Hastens Below.

The detonation and shower of fragments caused the Augusta's crew t take refuge below decks. Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, ordered stricter precautionary measures to prevent repetition of the shelling of Aug. 20, in which one of the Augusta's seamen was killed and 17 wounded.

Chinese authorities estimated that the toll taken in Nantao raised the list of civilian casualties in Shanghai's war to 6,000, nearly alll Chinese.

Bombs Plunge Into Street.

The airmen's targets apparently were the Shanghai South station, whence the railway runs to Hangchow in Chekiang province, and municipal buildings, but their aim was poor. The bombs plunged into streets filled with some of the city's most lowly, inoffensive residents.

Nantao's normal population was swelled by thousands of refugees from outlying districts. The raid came at the busiest hour of the day, shortly after noon, in the most congested points. Many were trapped in flames set by incendiary bombs.

The Chinese moved in any direction that seemed to offer haven, only to find avenues of escape closed. Many fled to the Whangpoo river. Throngs clamored at the gates of the adjacent French concession—already overflowing with Chinese refugees—only to be turned away. Some thrust themselves through barbed wire entanglements.

Many children were victims. The Lester hospital reported it had admitted more than 100 wounded youngsters.

Threatens Further Raids.

Immediately behind the first eight came another squadron of eight which loosed their bombs, flashing projectiles hurtling toward the streets. The blasts rocked the city.

Chinese artillery retaliated later by shelling Japanese-held Hongkew, inflicting heavy casualties. The Chinese guns were in Chapei, and refuted reports the Chinese troops had withdrawn from that devastated section.

When American newspaper correspondents asked Maj. Naokata Utsunomiya, spokesman of the Japanese army here, whether Nantao's civilian population had been given warning of the air raid, he replied, "they were warned by effective methods," apparently meaning the bombing itself.

He declared Nantao would suffer further raids if Chinese troops entered that quarter.

United States marines, holding a four mile line along Soochow creek facing Chapei and protecting the British-American section of the international settlement, labored in torrid sunshine to strengthen their wire and sandbag barricades.

60,000 Japanese Landed.

Both Chinese and Japanese armies prepared for resumption of the large scale battle north of Shanghai, where the Japanese Friday claimed capture of the key town of Lotien, 12 miles from this city. Foreign military officers estimated that the Japanese expedition already landed or about to land on this coast—with the purpose of flanking Chinese positions just around Shanghai and compelling a wholesale retirement inland—totaled 60,000 men.

Part of the force, it was believed, had been landed at Chapu, on the Chekiang province coast about 45 miles south of Shanghai, to take part in a pincer-like operation against the Chinese defenders of Shanghai.

The immediate Japanese objective was believed to be to drive all Chinese west of a line some 20 miles inland from Shanghai, including such towns as Anting, Tsingpu, and Sungkiang. Japanese officers said this could be done in two or three weeks, after which they could continue their inland thrust to such vital Chinese military centers as Kashing and Soochow, on the railway to Nanking.

CHINA ACCEPTS NEW U. S. PLEA TO REFRAIN FROM RESORT TO WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—China today unreservedly accepted the appeal for peace voiced on Monday by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The announcement was made by Ambassador C. T. Wang. He said China not only accepted the principles laid down by the government but asserted that China felt the principles should apply throughout the world.

China's statement was seen as an indirect rebuke to Japan. Japan accepted the principles, first stated in July, with a reservation on their application in the far east. Subsequently Secretary Hull reiterated his plea with the declaration that the principles should be applied in the Pacific as well as elsewhere.

Wang said his government took due note of Hull's appeal to China and Japan to refrain from resort to war and to settle differences by peaceful means.

"China is ready as ever," the ambassador said, "to settle whatever differences she may have with Japan in accordance with the principles of international law and practice."

Japan has made no reply to the second appeal for peace.

WIFE OF CHINESE DICTATOR VIEWS WAR AT SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Aug. 28.—(AP)—China's American-educated first lady came to Shanghai today, saw first hand the ravages of warfare, and said: "China is not afraid."

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of China's dictator, saw "horrors confronting China . . . suffering ahead," but called upon her nation to fight to the end.

"Japan's onslaught, the monstrous destruction of life in Shanghai, is horrifying the world," she said just before she started to Nanking. "Japan denies the people of China the right to live even the hard lives that have been their lot. China is fighting for her harths, her homes, her honor. She is not afraid. Japan may be a fighting machine, but China will defend her people and her rights

"Japan has treated with scathing disdain all international obligations. She has acted so as to make some persons think that China—just to save Japan trouble—should concede Japan's 'right' to undermine China's national fabric by creating alleged autonomous régimes with puppet heads and be content to let ruthless Japanese army chiefs exploit China's resources.

"China knows the sacrifices she must make. But China knows, too, that she must fight to save herself from slavery."

MONGOLIA WAR CHIEF DIES OF FOOD POISON; AID ALSO IS VICTIM

MOSCOW, Aug. 29 [Sunday].—(AP)—The death of Marshal Demid, Mongolian war minister, was attributed to food poisoning in a report issued today by a soviet medical examiner.

The examiner disclosed that one of the marshal's aids, Gen. Djansankhorlo, also died. The marshal's three remaining companions also were ill, it was announced, but recovered.

Marshal Demid died aboard a train while crossing Siberia en route to Moscow. The doctor's report ascribed the death to "poisoning by canned food," but officials said there would be a further investigation.

Boy Run Over by Milk Wagon; Fatally Injured

Henry Frederick, 2½ years old, 1208 Nelson street, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he was run over by a horse drawn milk wagon in the alley behind his home. Harry Omundson, 5516 Roscoe street, the driver, told police the accident occurred while he was away from the wagon. The child died on the way to the Illinois Masonic hospital.

John Q. Homeowner QUITS JOB AS JANITOR ... SAVES MONEY!

WHITING STOKER Makes Old Furnace Burn Coal Automatically

Yes, John Q. Homeowner can take life much easier nowadays. He doesn't have to fire the furnace or carry out bushels of dusty ashes any more. His furnace now burns its own smoke!

Saves Work and Coal Bills, Too!

No, he didn't spend a lot of money for a new heating system. He just installed a Whiting Stoker (automatic coal burner) in his old furnace.

And today he has all the advantages of fully automatic heat—at less than the cost of firing the furnace by hand!

Cleaner—Safer—More Healthful

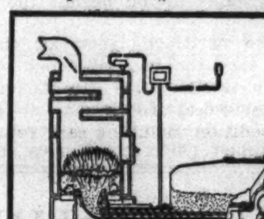
John Q.'s family is enthusiastic about Whiting Automatic Heat, too. The house is cleaner. Not only is there less handling of coal, but also no dusty ashes (only a small circular clinker to be removed every few days) and no smoke, soot or grime.

It's safer. The furnace cannot overheat. The fire is mechanically controlled every minute of the day and night. And coal is the safest of all fuels because it cannot leak or explode.

Whiting Heat is also more healthful because temperature is maintained evenly at any desired level, permitting better ventilation and helping to prevent winter colds.

Why Not Your Home?

Come in . . . See the Whiting Stoker. You'll be surprised at the low cost of installing it in your furnace. And this purchase price can be easily met by small monthly payments.



HOW IT WORKS

The Whiting Stoker feeds coal up through the bottom of the fire with mechanical precision—just enough at any time to maintain even temperature. The right amount of air is also supplied for complete burning. It entirely replaces hand-firing which results in feast and famine heat—irregular and wasteful.

JAPANESE DRIVE ON TO CLEAR PATH INTO MONGOLIA

Claim Occupation of Great Wall Pass.

PEIPING, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The Japanese army today claimed smashing victories in its campaign to open a highway into China's northwestern provinces.

Army spokesmen said the Japanese had completed their occupation of Nankow pass, strategic 12 mile gateway through the mountains northwest of Peiping to Chahar province and other territories the Japanese strategists believe Japan must dominate. The battle for the pass had raged 16 days.

Nippon's militarists long have maintained they must hold Chahar and the rest of Inner Mongolia as a vital flanking base in any war with the soviet union.

Hold Part of Railway.

Persisting in their claims of the capture of Kalgan, capital of Chahar about 125 miles northwest of Peiping, Japanese spokesmen admitted Chinese armies held about 40 miles of the railway between Nankow and Kalgan.

But these Chinese, it was said, were being hammered between two Japanese columns, one advancing eastward from Kalgan, the other continuing its drive northwestward from the Peiping region.

The only avenue of escape for the Chinese was said to be southwestward toward Tatung, in Shansi province, toward which large Chinese units were reported to be making a disorderly retreat.

Nankow pass fell only after a bitter battle, in which independent sources said the Chinese, fighting stubbornly from ridge to ridge, exacted a toll of at least 1,500 Japanese lives.

Tunnels Blown Up.

Before they had to give up the strategic defile in the Great Wall the Chinese were reported have largely nuliified its military value by blowing up numerous tunnels along the Peiping-Suiyuan railway. The highway to the northwest therefore may be useless for railway transport for many months.

In its drive to the northwest the Japanese army was believed to have used a large portion of the 120,000 men it now has concentrated in North China. Independent military observers expressed belief the capture of Nankow pass would be the signal for opening of a major Japanese offensive designed to push far into the northwest.

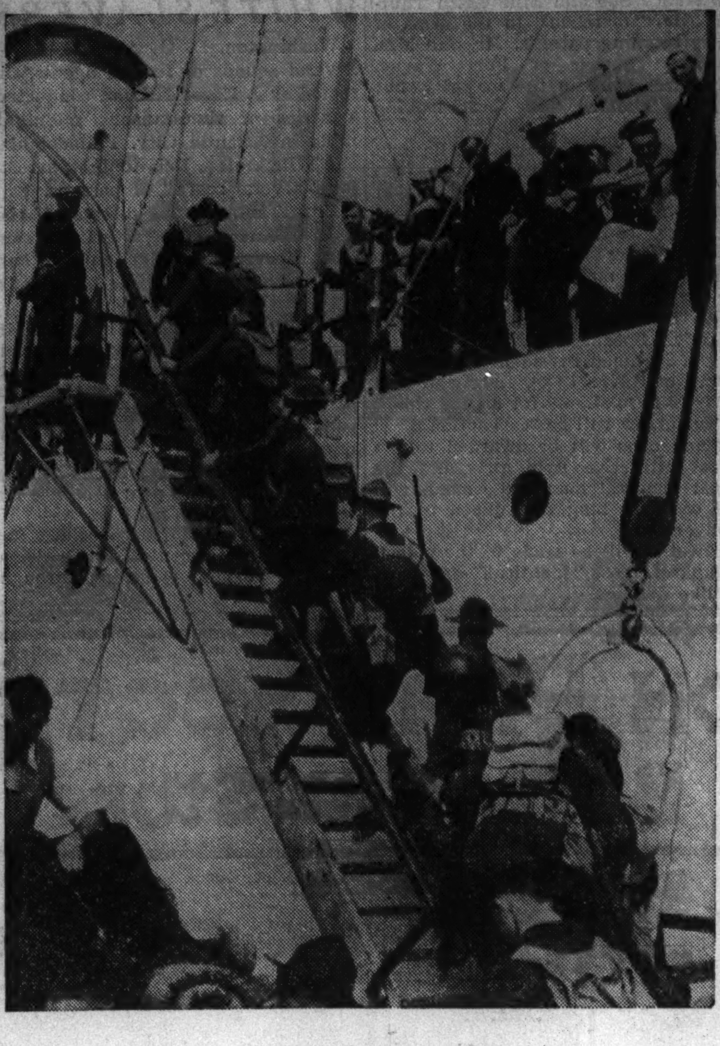
China was estimated to have about 225,000 troops on the various northern fronts, but Japanese spokesmen said they were poorly supplied and led and unable to withstand the penetration of Japan's well equipped legions.

Claim Rout of Division.

Japan's Manchukuan and Mongol allies were reported aiding her drive into Inner Mongolia. A communique issued at Hsinking, capital of Japan's protectorate of Manchukuo, described a successful thrust of a Manchukuo force from southwestern Jehol into Chahar, northwest of Kalgan.

The expedition, Hsinking said, routed the 84th division of the Chinese central army, which had been threatening the Manchukuo frontier. Fighting was fierce, often hand to hand. The Manchukuo column's losses were 20 dead and wounded, but the Chinese were much greater.

U. S. MARINES OFF TO CHINA



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Each carrying a rifle, a pack, and a steel helmet, marines of an anti-aircraft battery boarded the light cruiser Marblehead at San Diego, Cal., yesterday to sail for Shanghai. The Marblehead will carry 108 marines, in addition to 1,200 to be taken on the transport Chaumont.

Guard U. S. Interests

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP)—With flags flying and band blaring, 1,200 United States marines today marched aboard the transport Chaumont, which leaves tomorrow for beleaguered Shanghai.

The Chaumon't contingent will bolster the present force of "leathernecks" protecting American citizens and business interests at the scene of fierce fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops.

Exact nature of the marines' duty when they reach Shanghai was not disclosed.

The unarmed transport will be convoyed by the light cruiser Marblehead, with 108 officers and men aboard. The cruiser carries eleven 6 inch guns, four 3 inch guns, two 3 pounders, two 21 inch torpedo tubes, and an anti-aircraft battery.

The vessels are scheduled to reach Shanghai about Sept. 21.

CAUGHT IN RAID, HE CLAIMS TO BE ALDERMAN; HE IS!

But Police Keep Him in Jail Five Days.

The Bridewell authorities were surprised yesterday when they learned that a prisoner they have been holding since Tuesday is really the man he said he was. He is Charles Dewar, 42 years old, alderman of the 6th ward in Blue Island, who was arrested Monday night on a charge of being a patron of a disorderly house.

Police began a search for Dewar on Friday after his wife, Estelle, reported that he was missing from their home at 2123 West 121st street, Blue Island.

Goes to Plumbers' Meeting.

He had left Monday night to attend a meeting of a plumbers' union and it was feared that he had been kidnaped.

Dewar said yesterday that he went to a tavern at 1300 West Madison street with some friends after the meeting. When he came out his car was missing, he said, and while he was searching for it a woman spoke to him. Dewar said he went to her flat at 1337 West Madison street after she said she would help him find the car. While he was in the flat police broke in and arrested him and the woman, Mary Ross, 30 years old.

Unable to Furnish Bail.

Dewar was arraigned in the Women's court Tuesday and was sent to the Bridewell when he could not furnish $10 bond and the case was continued to Sept. 3.

Unable to convince Bridewell authorities of his identity, he wrote a letter Thursday to Chief of Police Frank McEvoy. Yesterday McEvoy put up the $10 bond and Dewar was released.

KIRKLAND CASE BARES ONE-MAN PAROLE POWER

Supreme Authority Given Welfare Agent.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Indiana awoke today to learn that to all intents and purposes it has a one man parole board and there appears to be no appeal from his decisions—or, rather, releases.

Gov. Townsend pronounces the parole "routine."

Attention was called to this situation by the parole of Virgil Kirkland, former Gary high school athlete, who served a little more than six years for the rape slaying of his sweetheart, Arlene Draves, 18 years old, and was released yesterday from the Indiana state reformatory at Pendleton. He had been sentenced to a term of from one to ten years.

Kirkland's parole was recommended by the trustees of the reformatory, but instead of being considered by the state welfare department—that is, the board of public welfare—it passed directly to Thurman A. Gottschalk, administrator of the department, who approved it. It developed today that the board on last Nov. 6 delegated its parole powers to the administrator and that move made Gottschalk supreme.

150 to 175 Paroles a Month.

It could not be learned today exactly how many convicts from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City and the Pendleton reformatory have been released since this delegation of power was given to the administrator. Gottschalk, employés of the department said, would have to supply that information, and he was at French Lick Springs attending a political conclave.

In his absence, John Klinger, director of the division of correction, said that from 150 to 175 paroles were granted each month. On that basis, it seemed reasonable to estimate that well over 1,000 had been released since last November.

This situation was revealed by a declaration of W. A. Hacker, a member of the welfare board and also assistant superintendent of the Indianapolis public schools, that the board had never met to consider the Kirkland parole.

Confirmed by Others on Board.

Another member, the Rev. Marshall A. Talley, Indianapolis Negro minister, made a similar statement today. Fred Hoke, third member of the board and an Indianapolis manufacturer, who is vacationing in Michigan, also declared he had not been consulted in the case.

Considering the delegation of power to Gottschalk, the fact that the board members knew nothing of the Kirkland case was not regarded as remarkable. Authority for the delegation was granted by the legislature during its special session last year.

The parole of Kirkland, whose brutal attack on Miss Draves drew the attention of the nation and whose two trials at Valparaiso provided sensational testimony, did not appear to have aroused Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, who, like Administrator Gottschalk, was also at the French Lick Springs meeting.

In a statement made there the governor termed the release a "routine" matter. He also revealed what his subordinates had refused to divulge—that Kirkland has a job in Ohio.

"The boy was sent up for a minimum of one year and served six," Gov. Townsend said. "It was a routine case and he had been eligible for five years. His record at the institution was 100 per cent perfect. That was recognized by the reformatory trustees in recommending his release. He has a job in Ohio, is getting ready to study law, and will be required to report regularly until expiration of his ten years.

Governor Washes Hands.

"He is an intelligent boy and ought to succeed. The only word that I would interpret as approaching an objection to his parole came from Robert G. Estill, who prosecuted him.

"Mr. Estill wired that he had some information on the case and I instructed him to communicate his facts to the welfare board. What the information was, I do not know, but it can be obtained from Gottschalk. You see, the case at no time was officially in my hands, not being a clemency case but a routine parole."

The absolutism of Gottschalk's parole power was emphasized by James P. Wason, chief of the welfare department's legal division.

"There is nothing in the welfare law which gives the welfare board any check on the corrections division [Gottschalk's unit]," Wason said. "The department has delegated the power of parole approval to the administrator, Mr. Gottschalk, who in turn has final supervision over the corrections division, and from his findings there is no means of appeal."

Wason Defends Parole.

Wason, in defending the Kirkland parole, asserted: "Both Mr. Gottschalk and Mr. Klinger considered the Kirkland case very carefully and did not act until they were thoroughly satisfied that the time had come when Kirkland deserved a parole.

"As a matter of fact, Kirkland was kept in the institution much longer than is usual in cases of persons given indeterminate sentences. It would have been possible for him to receive a parole several years ago, but the administrator conscientiously waited until the proper time had come."

Klinger contended the parole "was handled in the same careful manner as are all paroles."

MR. AND MRS. F. E. LEE.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Francis E. Lee was on his way to the Folsom prison today to begin a sentence of five years to life for robbery, leaving behind him his bride, the former Miss Helen Fox of San Francisco. They were married in the San Francisco city jail after Lee's conviction. He must serve eight years before being eligible for parole. Lee told police he held up taverns in order to get money enough to marry.

RADICALS JOIN PARADE IN HONOR OF JANE ADDAMS

Several thousand persons, adults and children alike, marched yesterday in a peace parade commemorating the death of Jane Addams and the signing of the Kellogg peace pact.

A car at the head of the parade, went down La Salle street from Ohio to Monroe and disbanded at the Grant park band shell, bore the placard, "A Living Monument to Jane Addams." Near by youths carried a large colored poster of Miss Addams.

Marching side by side in the parade were members of the Young Communist League of Cook County, waving the hammer and sickle of the soviets, units of the C. I. O. and the American Federation of Labor, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the League of Women Voters, Boy Scouts, and church groups.

About 8,000 persons attended the memorial services in Grant Park. Fourteen persons spoke, among them Louis Perez, Spanish consul, and Eric von Schroetter, secretary of the German-American League of Culture. Consul Perez, alluding to the war in Spain, said Spain is defending world peace. Von Schroetter attacked Naziism and Fascism as symbols of war and oppression. Mrs. Dorothy Blumberg presided.

EVERYBODY SEES DOUBLE DOWN IN FORT WAYNE, IND.

Twins on Parade; Two in Arms, Two Aged 81.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 28.—(AP)—A person had to be a twin to rate any attention in this city tonight.

The man, woman, or child who could not point to a double was almost a forgotten citizen for about 3,000 twins from 15 states descended on this community for their sixth annual national convention.

The oldest twins in the line of march were Mrs. Henrietta S. Billings of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. F. M. Cawby of North Judson, Ind., 81 years young.

Youngest doubles were five week old Nancy Sue and Bille Keith Thurber who "marched" in the arms of their beaming parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Thurber of Fort Wayne. Brunettes were in the majority, but blondes claimed "the best looking twins."

A glance at 25 year old Alta and Alva Dank, attractive blondes who left their home in Eldridge, Ia., at 1:30 a. m. today in order to get here in time, convinced onlookers they had a better than even chance to take "the most attractive twins" prize.

An informal banquet followed the parade. Speakers heeded the warning of National President Edward M. Clink of Silver Lake, Ind., who said "We're here simply for a good time."

Tomorrow will be "coronation day." Loving cups will be awarded to the most attractive twin girls and the most identical man and woman will be crowned king and queen of the convention.

Awards will be made to the oldest, youngest, most "identical," and most unlike doubles.

U. S. AGENTS RAID THREE CITIES FOR WHITE SLAVERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Several squads of federal agents, directed by J. Edgar Hoover, conducted a series of simultaneous midnight raids in Atlantic City, Philadelphia, and Wilmington, Del., tonight, arresting "several score" of persons.

E. A. Tamm, acting director of the federal bureau of investigation, said that Hoover led raids on ten suspected houses of ill fame in Atlantic City.

Simultaneously federal agents in Philadelphia and Wilmington descended on other suspected resorts. Still other agents arrested several persons in New York, including Harry Roth, who was released from Atlanta penitentiary last January.

Roth was released from Atlanta after serving a two year sentence for violating the Mann act.

Tamm said the places raided are believed under control of a large white slave ring operating throughout the east.

THE head of a great Chicago business recently told of a trip he made several years ago to the Southwest. There he was one of the two principal speakers in connection with an important anniversary of the Chamber of Commerce. The anniversary coincided with that of the founding of a southwest branch of his business.

Chuckling, he said, "You know, I learned a valuable lesson on that trip. The other principal speaker had been the first president of that Chamber of Commerce. He had gone back into the Southwest from a distant city to participate in the celebration. He delivered in a masterful way a carefully prepared talk about the early days and the early men of importance in the community.

"After the first fifteen minutes it was evident his auditors did not care about the activities and doings of men whose names they had never heard.

"Well, sir," continued the Chicago executive, "I learned from that—or perhaps I should say, relearned—that people are concerned with themselves and with now. They want the past only if it is linked to themselves by something pertinent and alive—something living."

Most of us are compelled to relearn many of the important lessons of life from year to year. Yet we might not have to re-learn them if we paid more attention to utilizing them in our routines.

Engineers recall and use with facility only those equations which are not permitted to become buried in their brains beneath the day-to-day debris of memory. Chemists lose familiarity with the formulas they do not use from time to time. The linguist must keep up, by use, the languages he reads and writes and speaks. The musician comes ultimately to forget her notes unless she uses them.

It is true with all specialists. Specialists in living life—and that means all of us—are inclined to forget the simplest rules for pleasant relationships with our fellows unless we are alert and observing and thinking in our contacts.

It is normal for businesses to be systematic in the day-to-day perpetuation of friendly practices. In this regard they have an advantage over many individuals.

FORTY SYSTEMS VEX NEW YORK'S TRANSIT PATRONS

Unification Totally Lacking Despite Subsidies.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Unification of transit facilities is a major issue in New York today as it is in Chicago. But New York, despite the fact that it has added a tremendous tax burden through a billion dollar subsidy of rapid transit lines, is farther from unified service than Chicago.

New York has no unification. Chicago has complete unification of street car lines and the interchange transfer arrangements between the elevated and surface lines systems and elevated and bus lines, the latter inaugurated two years ago through the efforts of Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Coördination Is Lacking.

A visitor surveying transit facilities here is astonished at the total lack of coördination of services and the apparent lack of planning as the city poured hundreds of millions of dollars into the construction of subway lines.

Each company, and there are nearly forty of them—whether it operates rapid transit lines or street cars or buses, or all three, is a system unto itself. There is practically no interchange of transfers. This is in sharp contrast to the other cities which have rapid transit facilities. In both Boston and Philadelphia all local transportation facilities are under single management. Chicago has three systems.

Three Rapid Transit Systems.

New York's rapid transit lines are operated as three systems, two privately owned companies and the so-called independent system owned and operated by the city. Nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars has been spent on construction of the independent lines. Yet the three systems today carry fewer passengers than the two private companies alone before the city system was opened in 1932.

Many attempts have been made to consolidate the rapid transit operations into a single system both before and since the construction of the independent lines. The move for an independent system was started as a weapon to force the private companies into a unification. It has been built so that it can be operated as part of a unified system, but today it is in competition with the private companies.

Surface Lines Confusing.

At the same time the city has been working toward unification of rapid transit lines it has allowed a confused situation to develop in surface transportation. One after another, small private bus companies have been given franchises until the situation resembles that in Chicago 35 or 40 years ago when many small street car companies were operating independently.

In Chicago the transfer system on the Surface Lines allows a passenger to go from one part of the city to any other on free transfers. In New York there are practically no transfer privileges between different systems, rapid transit, street car, or bus. When transfers are permitted within a surface system an additional 2 cents is charged for the privilege. Sometimes two or three or even four fares must be paid to reach a desired destination.

Pay Franchise Compensation.

The surface companies are required to pay franchise compensation to the city ranging from 3 to 10 per cent of gross, with an average of about 4 per cent. The revenue to the city from this source, however, is only a small fraction of the cost of subsidizing the rapid transit lines.

According to transit experts here the city has expended large amounts of money on subway lines where they were unnecessary. They are in agreement that the extent of subway facilities in Manhattan is no greater than needed, but assert that political pressure was responsible for the building of lines in territory where a less costly form of transit line would have been adequate.

Subways, they say, are desirable, but due to their great cost should be constructed only when it is proved that no other form of transportation can solve the problem.

With Chicago now considering the construction of subways and modernization of transit facilities, they add, it would be wise for the city to adopt a sound long range plan and not proceed to do its job piecemeal without making each step a definite part of a major program.

Bring Back Three for Slaying Quiz

Nurse Quits to Wed; Mate Ill; She's Back on the Job

Miss Evelyn Aronberg, 23 years old, was graduated as a nurse from Mount Sinai hospital Thursday. She quit to be married on Friday, but yesterday she was again working as a nurse in the hospital. Her husband, Sidney Atkin, 1215 South Spalding avenue, was stricken with appendicitis on their wedding day and was taken to the hospital for an operation, so the Atkins are spending their honeymoon there.

Mueller. She works as a 26 game operator.

At the detective bureau Doxey and Martin were locked up in separate cells and Miss Meredith was taken to the women's quarters. Capt. Dan Gilbert of the state's attorney's office planned to question all three this morning.

Miss Buehler was not told of Doxey's return. Police theorize that he has been living off her earnings in the vice racket and that her plan to leave the racket for Lee may have been the motive for killing Lee, whom she hoped to marry.

The Buehler girl has been in police custody since the shooting. Her story of the murder, in the opinion of the authorities, is incomplete, and as a result she is held as an accessory for concealing facts. She was questioned at considerable length before she admitted that she knew Doxey, and questioned still further before she confirmed reports that she had seen him in a loop tavern shortly before the murder.

Her meeting with Doxey was brief. They exchanged a few bitter remarks and then separated. Miss Buehler went with Lee, and Doxey, according to police, left the tavern some 15 minutes later.

HONOR AMERICAN FOR AID IN SAVING HOUSE OF GOETHE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—Henry Janssen of Reading, Pa., was presented today with the Goethe plaquette of the city of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, birthplace of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, the author. The presentation was made to Janssen for himself and his assistant, Ferdinand Thun, in the reception hall of the picturesque old House of the Patricians in Frankfurt.

Janssen, who is 71 years old, was born in Germany but is an American citizen. He has donated vast sums for German welfare. He also financed the building which was necessary to save the house of Goethe's birth, for which Frankfurt honored him today.

In the same ceremony a Nazi poet, Guido Kolbenheyer, who was born in Budapest, Hungary, was presented with Frankfurt's Goethe prize. In his speech of acceptance Kolbenheyer described Reichsfueher Adolf Hitler as the "savior of Germany and of German national culture."

ITALY PONDERS USING SELASSIE AS PUPPET KING

Faces Crisis in Ethiopia; Tribes Unruly.

of loyalty tc a conqueror, distinguished so far only for his brutality.

The Ethiopians are in constant revolt and wage such skillful and consistent a guerrilla war against the invader that no Italian life is safe.

A railway journey from Addis to Djibouti is still a perilous enterprise, and Italians are forced to live within barbed wire inclosures.

Many of those Italians who went out to the "Promised Land" either as conscripts or colonizers are themselves in more or less open revolt against the régime; and it is not only Ethiopians who have fled across the border into safety. There are Italians in Kenya, in Khartoum, and i British Somaliland.

There are now approximately half a million Italian "colonizers" in Ethiopia, the majority of them soldiers.

To feed and protect these men is a problem which still has to be solved, and it is realized in Rome that while the pacification of the country is the first step in its solution, this cannot be done without the return of Selassie, who alone commands sufficient authority to insure some sort of peace.

While no open assistance is being given to Rome by the British government, de facto recognition has so far progressed that agreements regarding Abyssinia have already been entered into between the two countries.

Pact Signed in Rome.

On Jan. 27, C. H. F. Plowman, colonial secretary of the British protectorate of Somaliland, signed an agreement in Rome by which, in return for grazing rights in Abyssinia at certain times of the year, Italy is allowed to import material for her troops through the ports of Berbera and Zeila.

Although nothing in the agreement specifically forbids the import of arms, it is tacitly agreed that they shall not be shipped by these routes.

British Somaliland authorities undertake to make and maintain the highways necessary to carry this trafic through to the Ogaden, and against some reimbursement, to construct the necessary port warehouses.

It is pointed out by those in a position to know that Mussolini's difficulties in Abyssinia have now become so acute that he is beginning to realize that only with the help of Britian can he establish himself in the country, and that he is therefore prepared to improve Anglo-Italian relations until such time as his Ethiopian authority is assured.

It is not likely, however, that Abyssinia will yet be recognized as Italian territory.

It will apparently not be expelled from the league at the session in September. The day before parliament rose Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, in order to ward off awkward questions put down by the Labor party, gave his personal assurance to Maj. Clement R. Attlee, leader of the opposition, that Abyssinia would not be excluded this autumn.

Pickpocket Gets Safe Combination and Uses It

The pickpocket who stole Miss Mary Zeek's purse Friday night lost no time in making use of the information it contained. When Miss Zeek arrived yesterday morning at the rental library she operates in room 1238 at 35 East Wacker drive, she found the safe open and $400 gone. The contents of her purse, taken from her on an elevated train between the loop and Wesley Memorial hospital, included the keys to the office, calling cards with her business address and a memorandum of the safe combination.

AUTO COLLISION INJURIES FATAL TO CONTRACTOR

Pedestrian Dies After Walking Against Truck.

Louis Freier, 43 years old, 4630 Beacon street, a roofing contractor, died in the Evanston hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Friday in an automobile collision at Skokie road and Wilmette avenue in Northfield township. Thomas Porter, 17, of 1001 Pennsylvania avenue, Waukegan, driver of the other car, is being treated for injuries in the Evanston hospital.

Joseph Mammoser, 64 years old, 5104 Addison street, a retired clerk, died yesterday in the St. Francis hospital in Evanston of injuries incurred Aug. 19 when he walked into the side of a truck at Cicero avenue and Addison street during a rainstorm. Harry Griffin, 34, of 5664 Green street, the driver, has been charged with manslaughter and released on bond.

Two men were seriously injured yesterday when their automobile collided with a truck at Halsted and 39th streets. They are John Katauskas, 26, of 3540 Emerald avenue, the driver, and Kenneth Smith, 30, of 6244 Greenwood avenue, both machinists. Katauskas was taken to the Woodlawn hospital and Smith to the St. Paul hospital. Frank Osterhous, 32, of 7027 Carpenter street, the truck driver, was uninjured.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 684 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 529 were kiled in Chicago, where 14,686 were injured.

Holds Inquest Over Father, Two Sons Killed by Train

Duquoin, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Coroner F. J. Schleper, Perry county, today held inquests over bodies of Grover Taylor and his two sons, William, 19 years old, and Dean, 17, all of whom were killed when their car was struck by an Illinois Central passenger train near Winkle, west of Duquoin. They were killed at the same crossing, and by the same train, with the same engineer, J. E. Springston, in the cab, as was the former husband of Taylor's widow, the Rev. Albert Wright. Wright was killed about a year ago.

TOO DANGEROUS FOR FAIR

A patron of the Paris exposition on captive parachute, popular thrill ride which was closed yesterday because of the injury of two persons in landing.

[Acme Photo.]

Guards Endangered

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 28.—A spectacular parachute drop at the Paris exposition was ordered closed today. Recently it had won official recognition from Pierre Cot, minister of air, who made the drop as an example to Frenchmen to become parachute conscious.

The closing was due to the wounding of two persons. One was hurt on the leg and the other on the head in landings which were too swift.

The feature offered customers the sensation of making a descent by means of a captive parachute. Heretofore the guards were considered in more danger than the customers, as the guards were expected to catch the customers and ease them to the ground as they alighted. Guards frequently were kicked in the face and elsewhere by excited jumpers, and in several cases the injuries were severe.

JUNK HEAP CARS ON COUNTY ROADS MUST PASS TEST

A plan to investigate the condition of all dilapidated appearing automobiles operating on Cook county roads with a view towards asking the cooperation of officials in nearby counties on such a program was being considered yesterday by Sherif John Toman and County Commissioner Carl J. Carlson. The proposal is similar to action of nine southern Wisconsin counties which have united to keep unlicensed drivers and broken down cars off the roads.

Sherif Toman said that although Cook county doesn't own testing equipment, he will order county officers to stop dilapidated cars and investigate their license records. "We need help from neighboring counties to make the program effective," he said.

Commissioner Carlson said he is investigating the possibility of Cook county operating testing lanes on country roads. He said he would present such a proposal to the county board.

SEE STATE GRIP ON LANDS, FIRMS IF MADRID WINS

Radicals Wrangle Over Splitting Estates.

BY HENRY BUCKLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Aug. 20.—[By Mail.]—The end of the Spanish civil war in the case of a government victory is almost certain to see the larger land properties nationalized and most of Spain's industries and concerns [excepting those foreign owned] under state control.

[Gen. Francisco Franco has not revealed fully what his plans are for handling of large estates and industries if his side is the victor.]

At the start of the war most of Spain's men of wealth, landowners, bankers, industrialists and the like, approved and supported the cause of Gen. Franco. A few hastened to place themselves at the disposal of Madrid authorities and affirm their loyalty to the republic.

Some Estates Already Taken.

Large scale properties owned by persons favorable to Franco, but located in territory controled by the government, lost their private status overnight, being either nationalized or put under some workers' syndicate or allowed to continue with the direct intervention of the state or labor unions.

Some property owners were killed in the disorders which followed the war's outbreak. Now, however, the government is inclined to restore property to those against whom there is no evidence of having been hostile to the republic.

Anarchists and Socialists fervently advanced the issue of collectivization of land. Peasants liked it where large property was concerned, but in relation to rented small holdings they resisted violently.

"The revolution," these latter argued, "means that from now on we shall have our own holdings all for ourselves and without any landlord."

Reds Make Concessions.

When the government's military cause appeared desperate last October, and it seemed that the peasants would not sow winter wheat, communists, recalling Russia's errors, changed their tactics and intervened on the side of the peasants.

The ministry of agriculture ruled that peasants who worked their small holdings alone and who had rented their land for a certain period and under certain conditions could rely on obtaining possession of that land without fear of collectivization.

The peasant went back to work and this year's harvest was saved. But the quarrel among the theorists was bitter. Socialists and anarchists accused the communists of counter revolutionary activities. Peasants, pleased with the turn in their favor, flocked in large numbers into communist organizations—giving the communists an influence on the land they lacked before.

Managers' Pay to Suffer.

In the case of large industries, it appears that, if the government wins, concerns will be nationalized, but with their present managers and engineers left in charge. Their pay, however, will be drastically reduced.

Anarchists have gone out strongly for the conduct of all businesses by the respective labor unions. Communists have made a stand on all coming under state control and not permitting the unions to become virtual proprietors. The Socialists are divided on the issue.

"We deal in realities," Dolores Irriburi, a leader of communists known as La Passionaria, declared. Spanish communists, she said, realized that to provoke the peasants would mean starvation. So the peasants must not be forced into collectivization.

About religion she applied the same argument.

"We realize that there exists in Spain a strong religious sentiment and therefore to pretend that this does not exist is to shut one's eyes to realities.

"We are constantly being attacked by Socialists and anarchists because, for instance, in the League of Anti-Fascist Women we welcome Catholic women. Of course we do. How can we get at people if we ostracize them? We use every propaganda means in our power."

Roosevelt's Mother Guest of Honor of French Premier

PARIS, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President of the United States, was the guest of honor today at a luncheon tendered by Premier Camille Chautemps. William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to France, and several members of the French cabinet were present.

ROME, Aug. 28.—News of heavy fighting in northern Spain held the attention of Italians today as they watched for new exploits by Italian troops who aided in the capture of Santander. Eyes were on twelve generals named in dispatches as having a large part in the insurgent victory. Among them was Gen. Attilio Terruzi, inspector general of the Black Shirts.

SANTANDER REFUGEES QUIT FRANCE ON WAY TO CAMPS IN SPAIN

PARIS, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Thousands of war refugees from Santander and other northwest Spanish provinces were taken in trams across southern France today into Catalonia, where they were given a dubious reception. France is unable to provide homes for them, the government said.

As the refugees crossed the Spanish frontier, they hailed Spanish guards with cries of "viva la republica." But their enthusiasm was dampened when guards informed them their destination had not been decided. They will be put in camps "somewhere in Spain."

Authorities warned them they would not be received in Barcelona, the overcrowded capital of autonomous Catalonia. Food is a problem in Barcelona.

The refugees had made their way in leaky boats from the Santander area. French officers said most of the boats "leaked like sieves" and that some sank with all aboard.

DECORATE BERLIN AS CITY LOOKS TO IL DUCE'S VISIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—Huge gates of honor made of columns bearing the Nazi eagle and flooded in light are being erected all along the Unter den Linden. Since no official festivities are scheduled, Berlin believes the gates will form part of the decorations for the state visit here soon of Premier Mussolini of Italy.

One of the most important subjects of the conference between Reichsfueher Adolf Hitler and Il Duce will be the far east problem. Italy and Germany through their anti-communist pact are allies of Japan and feel the Japanese are the real representatives of authoritarianism in the far east.

They take the view that England's position is precarious because she refused to coöperate with the United States in 1933 when America wanted to oppose Japan's first conquest in China. They are said to believe that England will have to handle the far eastern problem without American support, and Il Duce sees in this an ideal opportunity to strengthen his position in the Mediterranean.

THOUSANDS DIE IN SPANISH BATTLES ALONG 2 FRONTS

Rebels Rush to Head Off Fierce Aragon Drive.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Some of the heaviest fighting of the Spanish war raged today on the widely separated Bay of Biscay and Aragon fronts. Communiques of both sides reported thousands of casualties.

Gen. Francisco Franco diverted more thousands of his insurgent troops from their recent victories at Santander to the Aragon front to meet a determined government offensive.

An insurgent communique declared Franco's soldiers had thrown back an attack by loyalist infantry, aviation, and artillery on Saragossa, one of his most important bases in northeast Spain, and nearby Zuera. It asserted the retreating government troops left 12,000 dead in Zuera alone.

Many Civilians Killed.

Loyalist dispatches, however, reported government troops had fought their way through the mountainous terrain and taken Zuera. Air and artillery bombardments took a heavy toll in insurgent ranks, they said.

Opening a drive to take Gijon, Bay of Biscay seaport in the small strip of government territory remaining in northern Spain, Franco's air force rained bombs on the city, government spokesmen announced.

They declared many civilians were killed and wounded. Gijon is about ninety miles west of Santander.

Fight in 110 Degree Heat.

With the situation apparently hopeless on the northern front the loyalists strove fiercely to drive insurgents back on the Aragon front at points south of Saragossa and on the Teruel salient.

Under a broiling sun that sent the temperature up to 110 degrees government troops toiled and fought through the rugged countryside to cut the insurgent line of communication between Teruel and Saragossa, Valencia reported. Six villages were taken, loyalists said. The insurgents insisted, however, that their line was intact.

Prepare to Fight Asturians.

SANTANDER, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The victorious insurgents that Generalissimo Francisco Franco sent against Santander may rest here a few days before driving eastward to tackle the hardy Asturian miners, it was said today.

This will bring Franco's men into the wildest and most mountainous country of Spain—also one of the richest mining centers of all Europe.

Fire on Fourth British Ship.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The British freighter Bramhill flashed distress calls today that it had been fired on off the coast of Spain. The admiralty said the destroyer Fearless had gone to investigate. The ship was believed to have been fired upon near Gijon, Spanish government held port on the Bay of Biscay, where four other British freighters were bombed yesterday and today by what were reported to be insurgent planes.

Murder Victim

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
Mrs. Esther Gordon, widow of gangster, identified as victim in New York barrel murder.

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—More than half a hundred detectives and federal agents drifted through the underworld tonight seeking the slayers of Mrs. Esther Gordon, 38, whose body was found stuffed in a barrel on the Queens bank of the East river yesterday.

The search turned into more or less definite channels when the victim, who had been beaten, stabbed, and shot to death, was identified as the widow of Max [One-Eyed Maxie] Gordon, notorious narcotics peddler and ex-convict who was killed July 31 in an automobile accident near El Paso, Texas. His former intimates are sought for questioning.

The department of justice became interested in the investigation on the theory that Mrs. Gordon may have been killed because she knew too much about the narcotics racket.

Mrs. Gordon was stabbed nine times with an ice pick and shot once through the head. Her trussed up body, crammed in a barrel, was rolled over an embankment near the Hell Gate bridge, but instead of plunging into the river, it became wedged against a rock, where it was found by a beachcomber.

BACK IN THE UNION.

Last winter Hal Foust of THE TRIBUNE staf rode as a passenger on a transcontinental truck from New York to Los Angeles, telegraphing stories of his experiences as he proceeded. After crossing the Mississippi river, carrying out his job as the representative of the motorists of the middle west, he discovered that the wide open spaces were not quite so wide open as this familiar phrase would indicate. The principal obstructions were the port of entry laws of several states under the mandate of which all vehicles were stopped for frontier examination and assessment of tolls. THE TRIBUNE proved the truth of the remark that "It is more difficult to get into New Mexico than old Mexico."

An editorial and cartoon followed, which aroused a barrage of criticism from chambers of commerce and boards of trade throughout the southwest. The charm of the protests lay in their inconsistency. They berated THE TRIBUNE for exposing these state line barriers, but in the same letters admitted they were moving to reform the situation.

A summary of events that have followed will prove interesting. All additional port of entry proposals were defeated in the legislatures of the states of Washington, Montana, Oregon, Idaho, California, Nevada, Utah, and Arizona. Regulatory bills aimed at the private carrier were defeated in Montana and Washington. On the other hand, reciprocity laws governing the interstate movement of trucks have been enacted by the states of Washington, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, and California.

The exaction of tribute from interstate travel is an enticement that must be resisted. There may be temporary benefits, but in the long run all will gain from a neighborly policy that promotes the absolute freedom of the trade route.

AT $250.00 PER COPY.

Corporations sued by stockholders for restitution of company dollars contributed to the Democratic national committee can reply that they were compelled to give the money by agencies of the federal government.

The publication of the De Luxe Presidential Edition of the Democratic Campaign book, autographed by Mr. Roosevelt, may not have been Jim Farley's idea in the beginning, but he was behind it not only as chairman of the Democratic national committee but as postmaster general.

Representative Snell, Republican minority leader, has placed before Mr. Cummings, the attorney general, a great deal of evidence illustrating the practices of the solicitors; also giving names of corporations sandbagged into buying copies.

Although the Democratic national committee assured the corporations that a hole through the corrupt practices act had been found, many corporations appear not to have taken the advice of their own counsel or, having taken it, still have thought it advisable to do what the solicitors demanded. The law runs against them. It was regarded as bad public policy to permit corporations as such to make donations to the campaign expenses of candidates.

The corporations did not expose themselves to prosecution until there was a conspiracy to force them to do so. If this book business is as illegal as it is infamous, the corporations did not have a willing part in it and can plead that they were the victims of a governmental and party onslaught upon them to get their money.

A good deal of Mr. Snell's evidence, which Mr. Cummings has, reveals that reluctant buyers were told that it would be bad for them if they did not come across, and there are affidavits to prove that it was bad. Governmental agencies followed up the book solicitors, and the persons who did not buy found that they were in hot water.

If some stockholders, suing for restoration of the money used in buying the books, obtain judgment against corporation officers who would have avoided the offense if they thought it safe to do so, Mr. Cummings will find it very difficult not to bring action against the real offenders, the conspirators who put on the heat. A number of his official associates in Washington will not like it, but he will carry a tremendous personal and professional responsibility if he tries to whitewash Mr. Farley's book selling.

TO NEW YORK IN 15 HOURS.

The addition of a new train, the Forty-Niner, to the North Western-Union Pacific San Francisco service, the inauguration of the Alton's new Ann Rutledge on the Chicago-St. Louis run, the substitution of diesel for steam power on the Baltimore and Ohio's Capitol Limited to Washington, all serve to remind us that we have been waiting a long time for the new fifteen hour Century and Broadway to be operated by the New York Central and Pennsylvania between Chicago and New York. The inclusion of new type sleepers in these trains is acknowledged as a step in the right direction, but the public certainly is convinced that new trains and new schedules are in order. The excellent air service now available between Chicago and New York makes overnight rail service a competitive necessity.

THE FEDERAL HOUSING FRAUD.

Federal housing projects, at whatever angle examined, are revealed as the greatest frauds ever perpetrated against the people of the United States by its own government. Has it occurred to many of the people that the projects actually deny citizens the equal protection of the laws? The housing act is a law. It cannot be equally extended to cover the needs of the people. Its unjust theory gives one family a benefit a hundred or a thousand others cannot have and the ones who cannot have the governmental home subsidy must pay for the privilege granted the few.

It does not clear slums.

It does not stimulate private enterprise.

It taxes a property owner to supply the money to establish low rentals for fairly well to do people who alone can become tenants of Mr. Ickes.

In some haphazard, inequitable, and fraudulent manner the federal authorities will select a few people as beneficiaries of a federal law. No matter how the scheme is worked or what the expectations of the reformists may be, the upshot of the affair will be the creation of a small favored class not containing the so-called slum dweller.

Federal housing projects undertaken under the name of slum clearance have been examined in their cost, rent, and interest elements. When the government has taken every advantage it can, such as avoidance of taxes, and has used subsidies to help out the tenant, the man who can take his family into one of these buildings is not the man living on the lowest subsistence level. What he makes will not pay the rent, low as the government tries to make it by fraudulent accounting.

There are three of these federal developments in Chicago which soon will be ready to receive tenants. They have cost nearly $14,000,000 and they will be able to receive 2,418 families. The developments are attractive. They may have their architectural imperfections, but they have been designed for an attractive and comfortable neighborhood life.

The government is forced to discriminate in making leases. It has no equitable means of determining what people should be given these privileges and these advantages over their neighbors. One family will be lucky. It will have living conditions which will be envied by at least 50 others if not 100 others. The matter must be largely of guesswork, but it is apparent on the surface that at least 50 times the 2,418 Chicago families would like to have the same living surroundings as the government will give to the persons fortunate enough to be accepted as tenants.

If the selection were to be made politically the precinct captains and their friends would move in. The selection could not be made on the basis of ability to pay rent because there are people living in more expensive apartments who might be more than willing to move in, not only to get the lower rent but even to get better surroundings.

There is no equitable way in which the government can say that this family shall be favored and the other not. Even if the housing scheme were sound economically and fair in its taxable assessments it still would remain a government injustice because of its inherent unfairness. Even this spending administration will admit the impossibility of building upon a scale sufficient to give every one equal privileges from the government. There isn't money enough to do it.

Instead of encouraging private enterprise, all the government does is a discouragement. It enters into competition with private owners and builders with subsidies and grants, and offers rents with which no private builder could compete.

In one particular, as was pointed out recently, the three Chicago federal developments would, if they were private enterprises, pay the city $454,000 a year in taxes. That is what a private owner would have to contribute to the upkeep of various local governments if he owned these three government building projects. The city and the federal government are now trying to reach an agreement upon the amount to be charged the three apartment settlements for the services they will receive from the city.

The payments are not to be called taxes; they are to be called service charges. Where the taxes would be in the amounts stated above, the service charge the government wants to pay is less than $40,000. For this amount the tenants of the government will obtain everything that the tenants of a private owner would obtain. The differential in taxes between the two kinds of property will enable the federal housing authorities to make the rents lower than any private enterpriser could charge and live. And all taxpayers will carry the load.

All these various scattered housing schemes merely prove that they are financially unsound and morally unjustified. They don't relieve people who may be living in what are called slums. We do not regard any Chicago area as distressing as the rabbit warrens of Manhattan, and the New York City officials freely admit that nothing can be done under the Wagner act that will benefit in the slightest any of the people living in New York's worst region.

The projects are supposed to be an aid to them but do not come anywhere within their possible means. They do not even touch regions of the country where housing is really primitive, although, because of the climate, sufferable to the people who have been accustomed to nothing else.

Forlorn regions in the south will get no benefit. Really what has been done is to give a small percentage of the population an unequal advantage of the law. Most people of the country will not even know there are such things as federal housing projects. A few people will gain an advantage and they will be people who are fairly well able to take care of themselves. If they were not they would not be able to pay even the low rentals the government is endeavoring to fix for its favorites.

If there were nothing else to condemn this governmental enterprise, its inequities as affecting both the mass of the population and the entire system of private enterprise in housing would be enough alone to condemn it.

TO BERMUDA BY AIR.

On June 18 the Pan-American-Imperial Airways inaugurated bi-weekly air service between the air base at Port Washington, Long Island, and Hamilton, Bermuda. On Aug. 23 it was necessary to double the number of flights in each direction in order to answer the public demand. That daily service must follow within a few months is a foregone conclusion.

Under the present arrangement half of these flights are made by British airplanes operated by the Imperial Airways and the other half by Pan-American clippers, but there is no such division of patronage. By far the greater number are American tourists and these should prefer the American ships. Pursuance of this policy must in the end lead to a preponderance of Pan-American clippers on the route.

There are other reasons. The Imperial Airways is the acknowledged and subsidized agent of the British government and was given a ready made air mail contract on its first flight. The Pan-American, on the other hand, is a private institution that must submit competitive bids for carrying United States mails, if and when congress and the postoffice department see fit to recognize the necessity and pass or interpret the necessary legislation. At present the New York-Bermuda route is served by one way air mail conveniences.

While it is true that the international air field must be divided with foreign nations on a negotiated basis because of airport control, the substantially greater patronage available in the United States should and must be used to the advantage of the American lines.

HELP! SHE'S FAINTED.

LOSS of consciousness, even though temporary, generally presents an alarming situation. If a patient is known to have epilepsy those about him become accustomed to his behavior during a seizure, but when one who is apparently well suffers a sudden collapse the affair may be fraught with great danger to the victim.

Of course, in hot weather many of us will think of sunstroke or heat prostration, but in addition there are literally scores of conditions in which the causative agent must be identified as quickly as possible in order that the proper treatment may be instituted.

As a rule most of these individuals give some warning that all is not well. There may be premonitory dizziness, disturbance of the eyes, unsteadiness, confusion of speech, excessive yawning, or nausea and vomiting. This may mean that a brain lesion is in the offing. There may be some interference with the supply of blood to the head, causing temporary anemia of the brain, and with those known to have a very high blood pressure we need not be surprised should unconsciousness come on because of the rupture of a brittle blood vessel within the brain and the resulting hemorrhage [apoplexy].

Symptoms are somewhat similar whenever the heart fails to pump sufficient blood through the circulation. The pressure in the arteries may fall abruptly and the pulse will usually be quite rapid, almost fluttering. Again, if the pulse is very slow—approximately half its normal rate—it may indicate some trouble within the mechanism governing the heartbeat, with delivery of too little blood to the cells maintaining consciousness [heart-block].

What help can one give before the physician arrives?

Obviously a search should be made for evidences of injury. Such signs must be interpreted accurately, however, inasmuch as many patients in falling will bruise or cut themselves, and we must not mistake such effects for the cause. If there are lacerations of the scalp, a skull fracture may have taken place. Poison may be detected in some instances by the odor of the breath. If the skin is clammy and cold and there is frothing at the mouth we may reasonably suspect epilepsy. If the breathing is deep and noisy with one cheek ballooned out at each respiration we may assume that there has been a stroke of paralysis.

On the whole, in a thousand cases of unconsciousness cerebral hemorrhage or apoplexy will predominate. Growths within the brain [tumors] come next; then follow heart conditions and ordinary faints. We must not forget the type of collapse which may afflict a diabetic, because the blood sugar is either too high, accompanied by acidosis, or too low [insulin shock].

In the event of a cerebral hemorrhage the patient should be placed as comfortably as possible where he will have plenty of fresh air. A prone posture is safer than one in which the head and shoulders are supported by pillows. In an ordinary faint the legs and feet may be raised a foot or more above the level of the body.

If the extremities are cold, applying heat will help. The body may be wiped dry of perspiration, vigorously rubbed with the palm of the hand, and packed about with hot water bottles well protected to prevent burning of the skin. Cold to the head [ice cap or cold towel] is the rule. No attempt should be made to give an unconscious person liquids by mouth—certainly not alcohol, because if coma is deep the victim will be unable to swallow and some of the fluid may enter the trachea and thus reach the lungs.

Sometimes the symptom known as rapid heart [tachycardia] is followed by fainting on even slight exertion. A recently reported case is that of a man, aged 50, who suffered periodic attacks in which the heart would contract at a rate two or three times its normal rhythm. On one occasion collapse occurred on the street. He became quite cyanotic [blue], and his chances for life were jeopardized by the gathering of a large crowd, no one of whom appeared to know what to do. Five or six minutes elapsed before a policeman, attracted by the group, summoned an ambulance. The unconsciousness lasted for twelve hours.

The very color of the man's face [dusky] should have told every one that what he required was air. In an unconscious person the tongue may fall backward in the throat and block the passageway to the lungs. It is a simple first aid precaution to open the mouth and, with a folded handkerchief, pull the tip of the tongue forward until it projects beyond the teeth. This procedure insures the victim free access of air.

If there is a hospital within reasonable distance it is far wiser to call an ambulance and transport the patient there than it is to summon a physician to the scene. Should a real crisis exist the doctor will be able to give little more than first aid, whereas the hospital will be equipped to handle any emergency.

From Across the Sea

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—The Italian government, so far as it can disengage itself from the burdensome problems of Ethiopia and Spain, is working assiduously to develop its relations with the ruling powers of South America and strengthen its hold on the large resident colonies of Italians in these republics.

Despite the racial ties—for Premier Mussolini reckons there are at least four million "sons of Italy" south of Panama—it is an uphill task. The ruling classes, with their ancestral bias for dictatorial government, may secretly sympathize with the Fascist creed, but the masses, even where there is Italian blood, cling to the democratic ideal.

It is also remembered against Mussolini, if not against Italy, that the Ethiopian and Spanish adventures have caused South American states, especially those on the east coast, to spend more money on national defense. It is feared they may become the objects of aggression.

The Rome government first concentrated on clarifying this atmosphere of suspicion. It reinforced its diplomatic and consular service and called for the coöperation of powerful elements within the resident Italian communities. There was well organized propaganda on the "civilizing mission" of Italy in Europe and Africa.

But the greatest success has been in the material sphere. The Italians began to buy generously in South America. Purchases have been doubled, even trebled, in the principal states and, when payment is blocked, Italy has been able to exploit its most appropriate lines of exports. All the extra business has been on a barter or, as the Italians describe it, a "scientific" basis. But the impression is created among the South American nations that they are doing well—and Italian policy is satisfied.

In this way Italy has begun to retrieve its stock of foodstuffs and minerals, which were diminished during the sanctions period, and at the same time has boosted its exports of machinery, textiles, and surplus war weapons. Lately it has specialized in aircraft shipments. The Latins have all been sold on the idea that Italian military planes lead the world.

Plane contracts have recently been captured in Peru and Chile. The latter country intends to spend a large part of a special $2,500,000 appropriation on Italian planes, in exchange for nitrate. It is also getting some advance sales publicity on the merits of Italian warship construction, especially two cruisers of which it is in need.

ESTATE SETTLEMENT.

Pontiac, Ill., Aug. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister, cousin, and I were left a house and two lots in a will by an aunt who died in 1930. The cousin was named administrator.

1. It will be eight years next January and we are thinking of selling the property.
2. How much is the administrator going to get?
3. How much would the lawyer's fee be? Six years ago I signed a judgment note with my husband. We have since been divorced. The note still is unpaid.
4. Can the party holding note come in for my share of the estate or make me pay the note? In a year or so my husband will get a share of an estate left by his mother.
5. I am not compelled to pay the note any more than he is.
6. Can the noteholder be made to collect from my husband's share of his mother's estate?
7. Can the administrator be made to make good any money she didn't collect for rent on this property? B. M.

1. If you mean that the estate has not been closed we suggest that you apply to the clerk of the court to bring pressure to bear on the administrator to enforce closing.
2. Depends on the jurisdiction in which the proceedings are being handled and on other facts that are not before us.
3. Depends on facts that are not before us.
4. Yes, unless your liability has been barred by the statute of limitations where the contract was made.
5. The creditor is entitled to collect in full from either co-maker, leaving the co-makers to adjust equities between them.
6. No. See 5.
7. Depends on the proof as to negligence. It does not seem likely that the administrator is liable for this default.

AN M. P. ON BRITISH FASCISM.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—I have read with amusement and regret a good many of the statements contained in the article with caption "Why Did Edward Fall? Fascists Deposed Him" in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE. After frequent visits to many parts of the United States, and with a large number of American friends, I try to exercise my influence to promote a better understanding between the people here and in Britain, and am sure that the statements made in your paper are calculated to do a good deal of mischief if not answered.

Britain did not "depose" the duke of Windsor and Fascism had nothing to do with his resignation. Some one has been pulling the wool over the eyes of your correspondent. If anything, the few Fascists or Fascist-minded people in England supported "Edward"; but their influence has always been slight and is declining. Their antics have now been partially controled by a recent act of parliament to prevent the use of political uniforms and certain other manifestations in the interest of public peace since the British Fascists began to attack the Jews in the east end of London and elsewhere. Politically they count for nothing.

It must be remembered that the great British dominions—Canada, Australia, New Zealand [with an extreme Labor government] and South Africa—rule themselves and are free to secede from the empire and to choose their own form of government; but each of them as well as the United Kingdom in agreement took the same line. Why? Not because they wanted to get rid of King Edward [they didn't], but because the line of his personal conduct in the matter of his marriage [and that alone] offended against a great depth of principle almost universally held—a twice divorced woman could not be queen-consort of England, Britain, Canada or any of our sister dominions or colonies. Never since the great war has there been so remarkable a uniformity of opinion in the British empire although most of it would have wished it could have been otherwise.

In conclusion let me point out that there has been quite a movement in Britain in favor of intervening in Spain on the side of the Spanish government, while none has made itself manifest in favor of intervention in support of Gen. Franco. Does that look like a Fascist Britain? We remain neutral, as does the United States, I suspect, for the same reason, namely, that no responsible British statesman will consider for a moment sacrificing the life of a single Britisher in a quarrel as to the form of government in Spain; as democrats we believe that to be a matter for the Spaniards themselves and not for us.

America and the British dominions together can insure largely the peace of the world—a voluntary, unorganized but powerful league of peace by themselves. It is to imperil this ideal to dub Britons as Nazis or Fascists when they are opposed to and condemn the one and the other. R. P. CROOM-JOHNSON,
King's Counsel; Member of Parliament Since 1929; Recorder of Bath.

AN ENGLISHMAN PROTESTS.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The writer is an Englishman, making a temporary visit to Chicago. I am 69 years of age and regarded by people who know me, as possessing at least average intelligence. My object in writing to you is to protest against the unfairness, the untruthfulness, the complete travesty of fact, in your issue today of Col. McCormick's article "Why Did Edward Fall? Fascists Deposed Him." Knowing England as I do, and covering the long period named, I have not the slightest hesitation in stating the article is untrue from its heading to its finish.

Further, I will say, in a time when the world so badly needs rest and sanity, it strikes one, as a vistor to these shores, that a newspaper, proclaiming itself to be the greatest in the world, should publish matter so disagreeable and so far from the truth of another and kindred nation. H. HOLLAND.

ENGLAND: FASCISM: AIR RAIDS.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—The article in your paper of last Sunday under the heading of "Why Did Edward Fall?" by Col. Robert R. McCormick, will probably hurt the feelings of a good many Englishmen in the States. Perhaps it will not be taken seriously, especially as it states "an individual's perceptions are alike to a photographic plate," as the latter has not an active sense.

England has most assuredly NOT gone Fascist in accordance with the ordinary meaning of the word "Fascist." English subjects still have the free right to elect members of parliament and each parliament reflects the views of the public generally or else it is kicked out.

Under the heading "Completely Regimented" your correspondent refers to the various boards in operation in England. They have been in operation, most of them, for many years, but they do not exercise tyrannical control over English subjects. Most of their work is in an advisory capacity. There is freedom and self-government in a very fair degree.

Your correspondent states that his information comes from a banker. Is it fair to outline such an opinion as a result of views expressed by one third party?

Your correspondent speaks of aerial bombardment as not being very effective and yet goes on to say that there may be a loss of from 5,000 to 10,000 people per air raid. The position was safely handled during the world war, although on one Saturday morning twenty-four German planes came over London and killed more than 100 people and did more than $5,000,000 in damage. This was properly kept as secret as possible until the position was made safer and there was little success after this air raid, owing to the defensive and aggressive precautions taken. That raid blew the top two stories off my office and a German flyer left the orderly line of planes and took a photo of my factory while 2,000 employés were lying flat in the valley of an adjoining creek.

Zeppelin raids were discontinued after Robinson, using the newly discovered projectile from Australia, fired at one at Cuffley and sent it burning to the ground.

Whatever conditions arise in future they will be met in England with the same courage and success. America would be ready to do the same, and it is only to be hoped that all English speaking people will combine so that the prospects of success of other nations of making war successfully would be doomed to failure. Wars would not be started if that combination could be effected today. HARRY HOOPER.

FRENCH POLICE, TOO, TROUBLED BY SEX MANIACS

Find Witchcraft and Black Magic Play Part.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 28.—French police, like the American, are having trouble with sex maniacs. With one exception—an unsolved and apparently sadistic murder of a peasant child in the Cevennes district—the cases were of picturesque and sometimes even burlesque nature, though there were some sinister undertones.

Witchcraft, sorcery and black magic played a leading rôle in all recent cases, including, it is supposed, the Cevennes murder. The survival of medieval superstitions in the more backward country districts of this land of skepticism and enlightenment seems almost incredible to the French themselves.

Discover Priest's Ailment.

This week the French press was full of an extraordinary affair which came to light in the little village of Poudenas in the department of Lot-et-Garonne, which, like nearby Quercy and Perigord, is a great center for witchcraft. An old priest, Father Dupouy, runs a small boarding school for boys in this village.

For several weeks he had been suffering from a strange ailment—he could not keep awake. Regularly he fell asleep at the lunch table and snoozed until nearly supper time, when he again would fall asleep over his dessert and have to be helped to bed. An elderly maid who helped the priest look after the school had the same symptoms.

Believe Both Bewitched.

The village of Poudenas is reputed to be the abode of a powerful and dangerous "poudzeu" or sorcerer, so the villagers naturally concluded that the priest and his assistant were bewitched.

A local doctor, however, had the idea of analyzing the priest's table wine, and found it contained large quantities of Datura, a soporific and slightly toxic substance.

It first looked like a serious poisoning case. The Datura diet might have killed the priest if he had continued it much longer. The police, however, got two older boys in the school to admit they had doped the priest's wine. They insisted it was just a boyish prank, but after questioning an Italian peasant girl, Clara, 19 years old, who was cook and maid for the school, the police discovered the boys had a reason for putting the priest to sleep.

Clara Tells How It Started.

Clara said it all started when she consulted a local sorcerer — neither she nor the boys has yet revealed the sorcerer's identity—about getting married. The sorcerer promised to procure her a husband, but said she would first have to do evil as all his power came from Satan.

At his instigation, Clara said, she brought the two boys to him and he celebrated a "black marriage" between her and one of them, a lad of 15.

At the same time he initiated the boys into the forbidden mysteries of black magic and furnished them with the Datura to dope the priest.

The prolonged slumbers of the priest and governess gave the boys ample time to organize orgies in the schoolhouse and even in the adjoining parish house.

Seek to Find Sorcerer.

The police have ample evidence of indecencies, and now are trying to find the sorcerer to jail him on a charge of corruption of minors.

The Poudenas affair is only the most recent of a long series of sorcery cases, including a murder and two suicides.

Psychiatrists Begin Study to Curb Sex Degenerates

A committee of three psychiatrists yesterday held the first of a series of meetings at which they plan to draft legislation for the imprisonment of sexual degenerates who are shown to be dangerous to women and children. Dr. Lewis J. Pollock, professor of nervous and mental diseases at Northwestern university; Dr. Francis J. Gerty, superintendent of the psychopathic hospital, and Dr. David B. Rotman, Municipal court psychiatrist, will submit proposals to State's Attorney Courtney, who will push a bill at Springfield. Dr. Pollock said they expect to have a report ready in a week.

ROBERT TAYLOR DROPS CIGARET; WOMEN BATTLE

LONDON, Aug. 28.—[U. P.]—A cigaret butt, dropped from a hotel balcony by Robert Taylor, caused a stampede among hundreds of British women today and brought out police reserves.

The American movie star, who arrived in London last night, was aroused from his sleep early today by the yelling and clamoring of the women, who tied up trafic outside his hotel in the fashionable west end.

He finally appeared on a balcony—rarely used by anyone less than visiting royalty—and waved to the women.

During the cheering he tossed the cigaret end away and the melee started. Police struggled with the women, each of whom was intent upon recovering the butt as a souvenir.

SUBWAY CROWDS ATTACK ALLEGED SEX MOLESTER

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The rising anger of the city against sex offenders spilled over today when 1,000 men and women rioted in a subway station in an attempt to lynch a man accused of annoying a woman.

Police had to rescue the victim with flying fists and jostling elbows. He was booked as John Ploshay, 51 years old, Queens, and charged with disorderly conduct.

The outburst came when Joseph Carozza, 35, of Brooklyn, suddenly grappled with the man after he had, Carroza said, molested a woman carrying a baby. Carozza's shouted accusations attracted the crowds, who turned on Ploshay and pommeled him until police arrived.

Dies in Fall Against Fence After Fight with Brother

Arthur Zempich, 36 years old, was killed yesterday when he fell against a picket fence while fighting with his brother Erwin, 34, outside their home at 2006 South Leavitt street. A picket of the fence pierced Arthur's throat. His brother, arrested at the home of friends, admitted to Assistant State's Attorney Eugene Wachowski and the Marquette police that he struck Arthur three times. The quarrel started, Erwin said, when he upbraided Arthur for not looking for work so he could pay his room and board. The dead man formerly was an elevator inspector for the city.

Second Victim Dies in 'Magic Carpet' Collapse

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The collapse of a 1,500 pound "magic carpet" on a studio sound stage in an Eddie Cantor picture, which killed one property man yesterday, resulted in the death of another today. Harry Harshka, 36, died this morning of his injuries. Two others suffered serious injuries.

YOUNG YARROW FREED ON BOND; WOMAN JAILED

Vice Crusader's Son and Druggist's Wife Seized.

Philip R. Yarrow, 30 years old, son of the Rev. Philip Yarrow, vice crusader, obtained a continuance yesterday when arraigned in the Woman's court on a disorderly conduct charge. Yarrow was freed on bail but the woman arrested with him, Mrs. June Stadelmann, 7529 Colfax avenue, wife of Oscar Stadelmann, who owns a drug store at 1553 West 69th street, was locked up because she was unable to put up a $25 bond.

Yarrow was arrested in the Stadelmann home after Stadelmann had punched his nose upon finding him with Mrs. Stadelmann.

Accompanied by Brother.

The minister's son was accompanied by his brother, Paul, when he stepped up before Judge Eugene Holland. He was wearing dark glasses and kept his head down while Paul protested to the judge against the presence of photographers.

Mrs. Stadelmann, who gave her age as 30 and said she is the fourth wife of the druggist, and that she had recently started divorce proceedings against him, stood at Yarrow's left.

Nothing Wrong, She Says.

"Mr. Yarrow is a friend of mine," said Mrs. Stadelmann. "I invited him into my home and there was nothing wrong about that."

Yarrow gave his address as 11156 Longwood drive, the home of his father, who is pastor of the Auburn Park Community church and for years has been engaged in leading vice raids as head of the Illinois Vigilance association. The father avoided an interview about the son's escapade.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The home of Wallace Beery, film actor, in Beverly Hills was under police guard today after receipt of a note threatening the kidnaping of Beery's adopted daughter, Carol Ann, 4, unless the actor paid $10,000. Federal agents studied the note, composed of words clipped from newspapers, which directed the money be turned over to one B. Kelly, in care of general delivery, at Carson City. Beery is on location in Utah, while Mrs. Beery and Carol Ann are at home.

Arctic Expedition Quits Vessel Menaced by Ice

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Fifty members of an arctic expedition led by Dr. Lauge Koch, Danish polar explorer, abandoned their ship today after it was menaced by pack ice off eastern Greenland. Leaving the ship, the Gustav Holm, the fifty explorers, including twenty scientists of several nationalities, made off across the ice for Scoresby sound.

4 LEGISLATORS ARE INDICTED BY COLORADO JURY

Denver, Colo., Aug. 28.—(AP)—A special grand jury today indicted nine men, including four Colorado legislators and Walter Lear, former secretary to United States Senator Ed C. Johnson.

The four legislators were charged with violating their oaths and with bribery in connection with activities in the recent assembly. They are Representatives Marion E. Strain of Lamar, Republican; Truman C. Hall and William J. Jennings, Denver Democrats, and Senator Willard B. Preston of Adena, Republican.

Sixteen indictments were against Donald B. Clifford, secretary of the state board of medical examiners, charging he offered bribes to the legislators in connection with the defeat of a state wholesale liquor monopoly bill.

SOCIALIST GROUP FLAYS COPELAND FOR 'RED BAITING'

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Senator Royal S. Copeland, Tammany's candidate for the mayoralty nomination in both Democratic and Republican primaries, was criticized today by the New York state executive committee of the Socialist party for conducting "a Red baiting, issue straddling, opera bouffe campaign in alliance with Tammany and the Bellinger tories."

The latter reference was to the Republican committee for Copeland, of which Frederic C. Bellinger is campaign manager.

The criticism was contained in a statement issued after a meeting of the committee. The committee said it would give its opinion later on other mayoralty candidates.

MILITARY SECRET IN CIO STEEL RIOT IS MADE PUBLIC

La Follette Spurns Pleas to Keep Study Confidential.

Confidential military information compiled by the Illinois National Guard for use in case of an emergency growing out of the C. I. O. strike at the Republic Steel company in South Chicago has been made public by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.] despite official notice that this would be against public interest. La Follette's action is disclosed in a letter he wrote to Senator James Hamilton Lewis.

This letter, forwarded yesterday to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, reveals La Follette's attitude toward the request of local authorities in his position as chairman of the senate civil liberties committee. La Follette was the leader of a subcommittee which on July 22 issued a report blaming Chicago police for the ten deaths during the Memorial day riot at the steel plant. Much of the evidence, including the National Guard information, had not been submitted the committee at the time it made its report condemning the police.

Spurns Request for Secrecy.

As part of its regular duties the intelligence section of the National Guard investigated the situation at the Republic Steel company. This was done to provide commanding officers with information that would be essential in the event the Guard was called on duty in the strike.

The information was sent to the La Follette committee with an explanation of its confidential nature. Senator La Follette, however, has ordered the information spread upon the senate records.

In his letter to Senator Lewis Senator La Follette said National Guard report has a bearing on the conclusions reached by the civil liberties committee.

"The committee feels that these confidential military reports should be printed in full in the record," says La Follette in his letter. "Assistant Corporation Counsel William V. Daly in his letter of July 22 requested that the source and purpose of these reports be withheld from the public."

Daly's Plea Rejected.

Daly was quoted as follows: "It is not advisable that men who are engaged in subversive activities against the government should be apprised of the source of this report because the efforts of the military authorities would be seriously impeded in the future."

After quoting Daly's requests La Follette wrote: "It is entirely impossible to comply with Mr. Daly's request that the source of this evidence be concealed."

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the National Guard division, also had warned against making the militia investigation public. In a letter to Senator Lewis, which was turned over to La Follette, he wrote that publication would interfere with, if not completely destroy, any further use of the plan for handling domestic disturbances."

Berwyn Inquiry Completed on Escape of Ex-Convict

The Berwyn civil service committee has completed investigation of charges of negligence against three Berwyn policemen arising from the third escape of Edward Koncil, confessed burglar and ex-convict, from the Berwyn lockup. Attorney Eber J. Hubbard, chairman, said a decision on the charges will be announced next Tuesday. The policemen, now suspended, are Lieut. George Stava, Desk Sergt. Thomas Bartunek, and Policeman Otto Bliss, lockup keeper. Koncil recently was held to the grand jury on burlary charges.

Special Trains Carry Legion Delegation to Convention

SIX HURT IN PLANE CRASH; FLYING TO LEGION SESSION

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Six Michigan men who came here for the American Legion's state convention were injured tonight when a [Stinson] cabin airplane overshot the Springfield Municipal airport and "pancaked" in a nearby cornfield.

Most severely hurt were Paul Miller, 37, of Grand Rapids, Mich., pilot and co-owner of the plane; Peter Sienko, 25, of Grand Rapids, and Alton T. Roberts, 57, of Detroit.

Miller suffered head lacerations and an injured right foot. Roberts was cut about his eyes when his spectacles broke, and Sienko had head lacerations.

Robert J. Byers, 39; Lloyd Jameseson, 38, and Jack R. C. Cann, 40, all of Detroit, were shaken up and bruised slightly. Physicians said none of the six was in serious condition.

The men said they came here in the interest of Raymond Kelly, corporation counsel of Detroit, who is a candidate for national commander of the Legion. The plane stopped only a few feet from a 15 foot embankment near a railroad track. The craft's propeller and landing gear was damaged.

MOTHER SEIZED ON CHARGE SHE KIDNAPED SON, 14

Mrs. Elizabeth Bussell, 34 years old, wife of Roll Bussell, an engineer, of Druce lake, near Grayslake, Lake county, was arrested last night by Deputy Sherifs Robert Webb and Edward Zersen on a radio request from Indiana authorities who charge that she kidnaped her son, Fredrick Kamleiter, 14.

The kidnaping charge was made by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reuss, farmers, of Cedar Grove, Ind., who have reared the boy since his parents were divorced more than ten years ago. Mrs. Bussell formerly was the wife of Arthur Kamleiter, now a bank employé in Cincinnati, O.

Mrs. Bussell visited the Reuss farm last week to see her son. The Reusses assert she took him away when she left. She denied this last night, saying that she left last Tuesday and that he followed on Thursday, hitchhiking his way to Druce lake. The boy confirmed this story. Mrs. Bussell is being held in the county jail in Waukegan. She is willing to face the charges in Indiana.

Two Killed and Third Hurt as Plane Dives Into River

New Philadelphia, O., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Two men were killed tonight and a third was injured when their plane plunged into the Tuscarawas river. Those killed were Calvin B. Clark, 21 years old, St. Clairsville, O., owner of the plane, and Jesse Hanson, Martins Ferry.

LEWIS AT WHEEL AS AUTO UNION ELECTS MARTIN

Two New Vice Presidents Added for Peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—A compromise slate of officers, giving the most radical element in the United Automobile Workers of America a strong voice in the affairs of that union, was elected at the annual convention here today.

The compromise was dictated by John L. Lewis, chairman of the revolutionary Committee for Industrial Organization, in conferences with faction leaders following the C. I. O. chief's address here yesterday. The U. A. W. is a unit of the C. I. O. The election was pushed through by Ora Gassaway, Lewis' lieutenant from the C. I. O., who acted as temporary chairman.

Martin and Foes Retained.

The compromise was a defeat for Homer Martin, young reëlected president of the U. A. W., who campaigned for the removal of Wyndham Mortimer and Ed Hall, vice presidents and radical leaders of the left wing of the union. Lewis insisted that they be retained and the Martin group submitted to his orders.

Martin, leader of the so-called progressive faction, was unopposed for reëlection. Mortimer and Hall and Walter Wells, the third vice president, also were reëlected, and two new vice presidents, Richard T. Frankensteen and R. J. Thomas, both of Detroit, were elected. George F. Addes was reëlected secretary-treasurer.

Addes is a supporter of the Mortimer-Hall unity group. Frankensteen, Wells and Thomas are progressives. Frankensteen is the Detroit organization director, and Thomas is president of the Chrysler plant local.

Resume Voting Today.

As the Michigan delegation had not finished voting the composition of the executive board was undetermined when the convention adjourned at a late hour tonight until Sunday morning. The executive board, which has veto power over much of the president's authority, is to consist of twenty-four members, including the seven international officers. Excluding the Michigan representation of seven members, that board stood ten to seven in favor of the Martin faction. The Michigan vote will determine whether control will rest with the Martin group or the more radical unity faction.

The factional fight has been going on for several months. It delayed the conduct of business of the convention until Lewis forced a truce. Martin charges that Mortimer was responsible for the many "unauthorized" strikes in plants of corporations where the U. A. W. has bargaining contracts, notably those of General Motors.

Lewis Arranges Truce.

The settlement admittedly was arranged by Lewis and is evidence of the strong control he has over the leaders of the U. A. W. His control there is little if any less than that which he wields over his United Mine Workers. Lewis is patterning the U. A. W. after the miners' union.

There were indications, however, that Lewis will need to use a strong hand to control the membership of the auto union. When Gassaway tried to railroad through a Lewis proposal to reëlect present members of the executive board by convention vote, the delegates insisted on exercising their constitutional right to elect them in district caucuses.

Although there still are parts of committee reports to be heard and the work of drawing up a new constitution to be completed, the election of officers was the last major piece of business.

The convention has authorized a campaign for an organization drive in plants of the Ford Motor company and approved a special assessment of $1 a member to finance the campaign. The convention also indorsed the sitdown strike as a weapon to force collective bargaining demands on employers.

NEW GIANT COTTON PICKER

Cure 1936 Faults

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The improved cotton picking machine developed by the Rust brothers, John and Mack, was unveiled here today and will be placed on a Mississippi plantation for a two weeks' test. The Rust brothers contend that it has none of the faults found with their first mechanized picker displayed last year. Operated by one man, it can pluck as many bolls in five minutes as a field hand can pick in a whole day, according to John Rust. Last year's picker, tried out in fields where the picking has been done by hand for generations, failed to pick cleanly. The Rusts plan to invest their profits from the invention in a foundation to be used to reduce social and economic effects the machine might cause in displacing labor.

JUSTICE BLACK MAY PUZZLE OVER THIS SUIT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Somewhere on the Atlantic ocean a suit of Rudolph Black, secretary to Representative Lyle Boren of Seminole, Okla., may be in the baggage of Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, who is on his way to Europe.

The secretary said he left the suit at a cleaning establishment early this week. When he returned the clerk was unable to find it.

"By the way," the clerk asked, "was it a checked suit?"

"Yes," Rudolph Black replied.

"I believe I remember putting that suit with several Justice Black left here to be pressed," the clerk recalled. "It must be on the ocean now."

Moron Tries to Attack Girl of 5 at Her Home

A 5 year old girl was attacked yesterday by a moron who pulled her under the rear porch of her home at 1534 Milwaukee avenue. As the child screamed, her mother, who was on the second floor, came to the window and the moron fled. Later, the Racine avenue police picked up two suspects in the neighborhood, but the child could not identify either as her assailant.

RAIL PAY RAISE PARLEY OPENED BY U. S. MEDIATOR

Strike Threat Discussions to Be Secret.

Mediation of the dispute over the demand of 250,000 railroad employés throughout the country for a 20 per cent increase in pay began yesterday with the arrival in Chicago of Dr. William M. Leiserson, member of the national mediation board at Washington, D. C.

Dr. Leiserson. [Tribune Photo.]

Dr. Leiserson immediately met in the Stevens hotel with representatives of the five railroad brotherhoods which on Wednesday threatened a strike tying up the nation's railroads when representatives of 86 railroads ended three weeks of union-management negotiations by refusing a 20 per cent wage increase or any part of it.

Meets Conference Group.

Later in the day he met the carriers' conference committee in the Union station in the first of a series of pro and con discussions which, Dr. Leiserson said, would continue tomorrow and daily thereafter as long as there was a possibility of compromise.

Dr. Leiserson declared the discussions would not be made public until he has either reached a basis for a compromise or until it is demonstrated that no compromise is possible. The two groups will not meet jointly until he has obtained a basis for an agreement, he said.

Mediation Is Voluntary.

Dr. Leiserson explained that, as provided by the 1934 amended railway labor act, the present mediation is voluntary. The mediation board Thursday proffered its services and the five brotherhoods and carriers' committee accepted. The railroads claim that the wage increase, totaling an estimated $16,000,000 annually, would place a severe strain on their finances.

Should the mediation fail, he said, the national board will ask the disputants either to choose or accept a board of arbitration by whose decision they will abide. Arbitration would delay the strike threat indefinitly, but if arbitration is refused President Roosevelt may appoint a fact finding commission to make a recommendation. This commission must report 30 days after its appointment, after which employés must give thirty days' notice before striking.

TRAIN KILLS FARMER.

Dixon, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Joe Knapp, 52 years old, Lee county farmer, was killed tonight when he drove his car into a Chicago and North Western freight train.

RESENT SUPPORT OF LA FOLLETTE BY ROOSEVELT

Wisconsin Democrats Ask His Loyalty to Party.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Wisconsin Democrats take notice that while the two spokesmen in the state for their national committee emphatically demand their loyalty to the President, neither they nor Postmaster General Farley, direct spokesman for the administration has pledged the President's loyalty to them.

Charles E. Broughton and Mrs. George N. Givan, national committee members for Wisconsin both moved promptly to bring discussion of Democratic Republican coalition to an abrupt stop, but neither offered any explanation of the President's unannounced but undisputed coalition with the La Follettes. It is another chapter of Democratic resentment against being "pushed around" by the national head of their own party.

Cloud on State Organization.

The ghost of Green Bay where the President in 1934 first publicly espoused the radical Progressive leaders in Wisconsin has been a cloud on the state organization ever since.

Mr. Broughton has made no reply to the question asked by James J. Kerwin, Democratic coalitionist, if it were anti-Roosevelt for a Democrat to be anti-La Follette in Wisconsin.

The Roosevelt-La Follette united front in Wisconsin worked fine for the President, who got more than 800,000 Wisconsin votes last year, Democrats say, and it worked fine for the La Follettes, who captured all the state offices, but it is hard on the practical home state Democrats who failed to get a single state office and whose candidate for governor ran a poor third and who, being human, would like to have some reward for their work and loyalty.

State Leaders Are Silent.

It was in fact the failure of Farley to answer the direct demand for information about where the President would stand on next year's Democratic state ticket that brought the whole question of coalition into the open.

Political observers have commented that while Mrs. Givan and Broughton were quick to speak for the national administration, there has as yet been no comment on coalition from any of the state leaders. James Corcoran of Webster, chairman of the state committee, has made no announcement to backstop the national spokesmen nor has Arthur Lueck, last year's gubernatorial candidate nor State Senator Harry Bolens nor any of the other leading workers within the state.

One of the letters received this week by Kerwin in response to his request for a discussion of coalition was from W. A. Lantz, editor of Burnett County Enterprise which is published at Webster, Chairman Corcoran's home town.

Promises to Support Coalition.

Corcoran did not make the letter public, but he said Lantz expressed approval of a practical coalition and promised to support it. There is no authority for the belief that Lantz in some degree represented Corcoran's opinion except the general presumption that the Democratic editor living in the same town where the big Democratic state boss lives sees him pretty frequently and discusses politics with him.

The setting by Gov. La Follette of Sept. 13 as a tentative date for the special session of the legislature probably will defer any political organization work until the end of the session. The Republicans and Democrats in the legislature, aided by some of the Progressives who chafed under the alignment with the Socialists and Production for Users have operated a pretty successful coalition in fast ever since the session began.

Leadership in Action.

If coalition is undertaken they are the ones who will have to take leadership in the action. The old party legislators and senators who will have to run for reëlection next year all will be pretty sure of reëlection in a two way race. If the anti-radicals are split in the local fights it will insure the election of a larger La Follette majority.

Any special session is likely to be a political session and politics for the next month probably will be confined to the statehouse at Madison. After that it is expected to be the biggest subject in the state until election in November, 1938.

Elkins, W. Va., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Miss Jane Greer, 19 years old, of Morgantown, W. Miss Greer studied at the Fermata school, Columbia university, and now is at the University of West Virginia.

Police Go to Milwaukee for Parolee and Girl, 16

Policemen from the Sheffield avenue station went to Milwaukee yesterday to return James Dick, 25 years old, 1323 School street, a paroled convict, and Anna Laverne Reese, 16 years old, 3142 Southport avenue, who was graduated last June from Burley elementary school. Anna's mother, Mrs. Ella Reese, told the police early in the week that her daughter had eloped with Dick and asked police to hunt them.

WOUNDED WITH OWN GUN.
George McGee, 27 years old, 4838 Rhodes avenue, colored, was shot with his own gun yesterday when he tried to stop a quarrel among six colored hoodlums at 43d street and Vernon avenue. He was taken to Provident hospital.

PAROLEE' SEIZED WITH STORE LOOT, TO FACE SHOWUP

A paroled convict seized with loot taken in a cigar store burglary will be viewed this afternoon at the detective bureau showup. He is Martin Gockman, 28 years old, 6324 Blackstone avenue, arrested Friday by Hyde Park police who found him lurking in an alley in the rear of 4211 Ellis avenue.

He carried a bundle containing $10 in rolls of silver coins. Some postage stamps, and two cartons of cigarets. After he was seized, Harry Goldblatt, 7036 Merrill avenue, reported that his cigar store at 1000 East 43d street had been burglarized and identified the contents of Gockman's package as booty from the store.

Gockman was sent to Joliet penitentiary for burglary on Jan. 8, 1935. He was paroled last Dec. 16.

Stop Worrying About Your Fuel Bills

INSTALL A

HERCULES AUTOMATIC STOKER

THE OLD WAY

THE NEW WAY

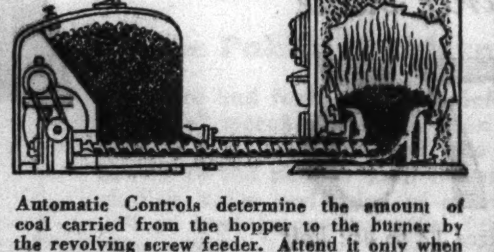
IN ADDITION TO ECONOMY, HERCULES GIVES YOU ALL THE CLEANLINESS, COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE OF MODERN AUTOMATIC HEAT



Automatic Controls determine the amount of coal carried from the hopper to the burner by the revolving screw feeder. Attend it only when the hopper needs filling!

Eliminates All Waste! Hercules Saves Money for You in THREE Ways

The Hercules Stoker means a triple saving in fuel! Here's how! (1) Hercules burns the cheaper grades of coal, and burns less of it. (2) The perfect mixture of fuel and air as found in Hercules means that maximum amount of heat is obtained through complete combustion. (3) Hercules saves fuel by eliminating waste; automatic controls permit fuel to burn only as needed. It draws the most heat out of the coal you burn. See the new Hercules Stoker at Sears Monday!

Phone Boulevard 5000

For Help on Your Heating Problem

A heating technician will call at your convenience to check your heating plant and give you valuable information on "how to heat better at lower cost." No obligation on your part, of course!

Let Us Demonstrate Its Amazing Savings

Let the Hercules itself, in operation in your own home, convince you! Once installed, you'll agree it's the world's most efficient and economical method. Makes your heating plant automatic! No more "guessy" hand-firing! No more ashes to carry! You'll burn cheaper coal and less of it with a Hercules Stoker. It gives you all the comfort and convenience of Automatic Heat while its fuel savings prove "it won't cost you one red cent to own." It pays for itself!

This Pledge Is Your Guarantee

To the Public of Chicagoland:

We have had forty Economy Sales, during which a total of over twenty-one million dollars worth of merchandise has been sold. The success of these sales is due to the fact that nothing may be placed on sale or advertised (except nationally advertised lines well known to the public) until it has been thoroughly scrutinized. We can thus guarantee the quality, value and price of every article advertised, with the further assurance that prices will go back to regular after Economy Day. There is no mystery about the success of these sales. We make unusual sacrifices as to price . . . we never sacrifice quality. Economy Day sales have established a reputation for value giving of which we are properly proud, and wish to maintain.

This is the starting lineup of the College All-Americans' football squad which will battle the Green Bay Packers, National Professional league champions, in the annual charity game to be played Wednesday night at Soldiers' field. The starting players, named to their positions in the nation-wide poll conducted by The Tribune and 150 associated newspapers, are pictured against the background of the crowd of 76,361 which saw the game last year in which the Detroit Lions were the All-Americans' foes. The 1936 game ended in a 7 to 7 tie when the Lions came from behind to score. The starting line of this year's All-Americans, left to right: Merle Wendt, Ohio State, right end; Averell Daniell, Pittsburgh, right tackle; Steve Reid, Northwestern, right guard; Bud Svendsen, Minnesota, center; Max Starcevich, Washington, left guard; Ed Widseth, Minnesota, left tackle, and Gaynell Tinsley, Louisiana State, left end. The starting back field, left to right: John Drake, Purdue, right half back; Vernon Huffman, Indiana, quarter back; Sam Francis, Nebraska, full back, and Bob La Rue, Pittsburgh, left half back.

COACHES DIVIDE ALL-AMERICANS INTO TWO UNITS

The coaches of the All-Americans have chosen two units to play the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field Wednesday night. Replacements will be drawn from the third, fourth, and fifth groups.

This was the most important development yesterday morning as all players went through a final scrimmage at Dyche stadium under a blistering August sun.

Coaches' Second Unit.

The second unit, which will take the field in one mass substitution, lines up as follows:

Sky Larking Wins Hopeful for Mrs. Mars

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago didn't have to call her Tiger out of the barn to whip the Fox from the east and carry away the $31,450 reward for winning the Hopeful stakes this afternoon.

Instead, because the track was muddy, she discarded Tiger and let her brilliant colts Sky Larking and C-Note carry on for her.

Mrs. Mars didn't know whether Tiger liked the sort of going the track afforded. She did know that Sky Larking, a courageous and fast running son of Blue Larkspur-Risk, did like it and that C-Note wouldn't object to running under such conditions.

Her decision was a wise one.

It's Sky Larking by 3 Lengths.

At the end of the struggle, which usually establishes the 2 year old championship of the year, Sky Larking, with Jocky Alfred Robertson crouched monkeylike on his back, was in front of the small field by three lengths.

Warren Wright's Bull Lea was rolling along in easy fashion in second place. He finished a nose in front of Fighting Fox—full brother to Gallant Fox—the best eastern 2 year old to come to the races this year. Five lengths back in fourth place in the seven horse field was C-Note, the roommate of Sky Larking.

With the largest crowd of the Saratoga season looking on—it numbered nearly 25,000—Sky Larking took most of the bad racing luck to win the Hopeful.

Entry in Close Quarters.

Robertson had him away flying. He was in an excellent position in English Star Runs Mile in 4:06.6; Record

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Stanley Wooderson, spindly, bespectacled bank clerk, smashed the world mile record today and became the first Englishman in more than 50 years to set a new international mark at the distance.

Paced by two clubmates in a special race, Wooderson was clocked in 4:06.6, thus clipping two-tenths of a second off Glenn Cunningham's listed world record of 4:06.8, set at Princeton, N. J., in 1934.

Cunningham's actual time that day, 4:06.7, stands as the American record but was boosted arbitrarily to 4:06.8 in the world record list because the International A. A. F. does not recognize tenth-second timing at distances beyond a half mile.

Wooderson, who established British and English native mile records at 4:10.8 in 1936 and gained fame as the man the fleet New Zealander, Jack Lovelock, couldn't beat, accepted an invitation to try for a new world standard over his favorite track in Hotspur park, London, during a meet held by his own club, the Blackheath Harriers.

Two clubmates, B. C. Eeles and R. H. Thomas, were given handicaps of 65 and 100 yards, respectively, and instructions to set the fastest possible pace. Thomas dropped out after a half mile but Eeles continued and led the fast closing Wooderson across the line.

Wooderson was caught in :58.6 at the quarter mile post, 2:02.6 at the half, and 3:07.2 at the three-quarters. Thus he achieved his new record mainly through fast times on the first and fourth quarters.

Kizer Granted Leave; Elward Acting Coach

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Noble E. Kizer, Purdue athletic director and head football coach, who is convalescing from a kidney disorder that sent him to the hospital in mid-July, has been granted a short leave of absence, it was announced today by President E. C. Elliott. Last Tuesday Kizer was released from the hospital and returned to his home.

President Elliott also announced that the staf that has worked under Kizer's direction again will have charge of Purdue football, with Mal Elward becoming acting head football coach.

Robert C. Woodworth, who has been acting as Kizer's assistant in recent years, was named acting director. The remainder of the varsity staf will consist of Guy Mackey, M. H. Taube, and William [Dutch] Fehring, former Purdue stars.

Elward, a teammate of the late Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, is recognized as one of the keenest technicians in the game. His coaching career was launched in 1916 at St. John's prep., Danvers, Mass. During the war he served in the naval air service, but managed to stick closely to football coaching.

He was largely responsible for the success of the Newport naval reserve team that scored outstanding victories over Harvard and Brown, and also coached the Hampton Roads training station eleven that won 14 straight games.

After leaving the service, Elward went direct to Grinnell as head coach, where he brought the Iowans their first conference victory in five years, and then moved to John Carroll at Cleveland, where he remained for three years. He came to Purdue from John Carroll in the fall of 1927.

Mungo Again Suspended by Dodger Chief

It was the second suspension of the season for Mungo and his third in two years. He was fined $1,000 and suspended for three days for a hotel fight with Jim Bucher, a teammate, early this year at St. Louis. In June of 1936 he was fined and suspended for quitting the Dodgers at Pittsburgh without permission.

Grimes charged the star pitcher has not been coöperating in the best interests of the club. He said Mungo, who has been handicapped by a sore arm since midseason, has not worked hard to get into shape, and refused to listen to instructions.

"There was only one thing to do—suspend him," Grimes said just before today's game with Cincinnati. "Mungo has lazed about and disregarded instructions. A specialist prescribed diathermic treatments for him, but with three off days in which to undergo these treatments he always said he had no time.

"Van can work out with the club if he wants to. It's up to him. If I think he is in shape to pitch again I'll lift the suspension. Otherwise, it sticks."

When Grimes broke the news to Mungo, the pitcher, in street clothes, was in the Dodger clubhouse smoking a cigaret and talking with Fred Frankhouse, who turned in a seven inning no hit game yesterday.

BRYANT HOMER WINS 2D, 10 TO 7, AFTER 3-1 LOSS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[An Associated Press Wirephoto of action in the Cubs-Bees double-header yesterday will be found on next page.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—Mr. Clay Bryant, the lengthy southern gentleman, was summoned to do a little pitching this afternoon and while his assigned task wasn't exactly a success he at least proved he knew how to swing a bat. He cut loose with his season's maiden homer while three mates were on base to earn the first place Cubs an even break in their double-header with the Bees, who, while light hitters, were tough enough to require the attention of six Chicago pitchers, one of whom appeared twice.

Bryant's home run heroics were badly needed. Before he showed up to reveal his batting power in the second battle the Chicagoans had been turned down cold in the first affair by the thirty year old Lou Fette, who outfoxed Tex Carleton, 3 to 1. In the second engagement the Cubs merely coasted into the ninth, leading 6 to 3 behind Charley Root. But the Bees suddenly tied it, only to have Bryant unfold his homer in the tenth to win, 10 to 7, and keep the Chicagoans in first place by one game over the Giants.

Cubs Give Up Lead.

In the second affair the Cubs collected what they considered a sweet lead while their one time associate, Guy Bush, was doing a five inning job. For the next four innings they were held in a vice by Ira Hutchinson. Next on the program was the crazy ninth in which the Bees uncorked five hits against Root, Clyde Shoun, and Bryant to bring on a 6 to 6 deadlock. Then Frank Gabler set down the first two batters in the tenth and it looked as if the party might go on indefinitly.

Fette Fools Cubs.

The first game was just one of those affairs in which Carleton exercised his usual skill over his cousin team but happened to run into a man who was slightly better. Fette, who for years languished in the minors

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Two fine old gentlemen, Ted Lyons and James Dykes, yesterday were the big shots of a 3 to 2 White Sox victory over Wes Ferrell and his Washington teammates. Lyons held the Senators to seven hits and Dykes supplied the winning run with his first homer of the season.

Of the grand total of five runs in the ball game, three were homers and the other two were the product of doubles followed by singles.

Two of the homers were knocked successively in the Sox fourth. Luke Appling smashed one into the left field stands and Dykes promptly followed with his deciding homer. Piet followed Dykes' blast with a double, but after the fourth the Sox got only one man on base—Dykes, who singled with one out in the sixth.

Lyons Yields Homer.

Fred Sington accounted for half the total off Lyons with his second inning homer. This one was tied up by gradual processes in the third. The Sox' 3 to 1 lead effected in the fourth inning dynamiting prevailed until the eighth, when W. Ferrell led off with a double and scored on Mel Almada's second single.

Lyons' strikeout knack was his salvation. He was able to whiff the Senators' power hitters when fly outs would have produced vital runs. Ted sank Lewis, Myer, Travis, Simmons, and W. Ferrell by strikeouts and ended the game by whiffing Sington.

The Sox victory, combined with Boston's success at Detroit, tightened the race for the principal also-ran honors in the American league. Detroit's second place lead over the

OMAHA VETERAN BEATS BILLOWS IN FINAL, 2 UP

Portland, Ore., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The name of Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., today was added to the list of golfing greats who have won both the American amateur and open championships when Goodman defeated Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 2 up, to win the title in the 41st amateur tourney.

By his victory, Goodman joined Jerry Travers, Francis Ouimet, Charles [Chick] Evans, and Bobby Jones, the only other golfers who have captured both titles. And in so doing the Omaha insurance salesman—who first gained national renown when he eliminated Jones in the first round of the amateur tournament in 1929, then won the national open in 1933—attained his life's ambition.

Few championship golf matches have carried the thrills that did this one at the Alderwood Country club, between Goodman, the man who has vainly sought the amateur title for a decade, and Billows, slender 23 year old member of the Duchess club of Poughkeepsie and latest star in the golfing heavens.

Carried to Home Hole.

With only eight holes left to play, Goodman was 4 up on Billows and it looked as if the "kill" might come at any time. But with the end in sight his own lapses and Billows' never-say-die spirit brought the match to the last hole on the course. With courage seldom witnessed on the links, Billows gradually overcame his huge deficit, and as he and the Nebraskan stood on the tee to play the last hole Goodman was dormie 1.

If he was at all mentally disturbed by the suddenness with which fate had turned her affections from him to Billows he didn't show it in his play of the final hole. With two shots he sent his ball up near the home green, within easy pitching distance.

The blow put it up to Billows, for the easterner now had to go all out for everything—which is what he did. However, his wood shot had a slight fade on it and his ball traveled off to the right, finally stopping in the rough, leaving him with a hanging lie to play to the pin which was placed near his side of the green—a difficult shot.

Putt Grazes Cup—It's Over.

Once again Goodman's steadiness in the pinches counted in his favor. With his title hanging on his next shot Johnny pitched his ball up within six feet of the pin—a superb shot at this nerve-wracking stage of the dramatic struggle.

Billows took out his niblick and sent the ball onto the green, but as it landed it skidded and ran several yards past the cup.

Cubs Lose to Bees, 3 to 1; Win, 10 to 7

despite his brilliance, held the Cubs to five hits in nine innings for his fifteenth victory. Two of the hits were sun kissed flukes. Carleton whose exhibition was limited to seven innings, surrendered only four hits but two of them followed a pass in the second session and one was mixed up with a series of gratuities in the seventh.

FIRST GAME

The two run lead taken by the Bees off Carleton in the second inning of the opening battle started with a pass to Di Maggio after Moore had been thrown out. Reis beat out a single to deep short. Mueller then plastered a drive against the left field fence for two bases, Di Maggio and Reis meanwhile galloping around to the plate. Carleton tossed out Fette and Garms walked. Warstler fouled to Galan.

Frey led off the fifth with a single to center and Cavarretta hoisted to Warstler. Stainback lined safely to left and it bounced past Johnson for a two bagger, Frey scoring. Both Carleton and Hack grounded to Cuccinello.

Bees Score Again.

Garms started the Bees' seventh with a single to center. Warstler's bunt shoved him to second. Johnson was purposely passed and Cuccinello also walked. With the bases filled Moore grounded to Cavarretta, who threw home, but Garms beat the throw. Moore was called out, although nobody saw Cavarretta touch first. There was considerable squawking, after which Di Maggio was passed and Reis bounced to Hack for the third out.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs went into production with one run in the second inning of the second struggle. Demaree opened with a two bagger to right center and loitered while O'Dea and Frey were grounding to Reis. Cavarretta came to the rescue with a single through Cuccinello's hands, Demaree scoring. Phil tried to steal, but was foiled by Mueller's throw.

Two more Cubs skipped over the plate in the third, one of them getting a free ride. Root bounced a single past Warstler with one out. Hack thumped a real drive down the right field line for one base, Root taking third. The bases were loaded on a pass to Galan. Billy Herman stretched the count to 3 and 2 before hoisting a cripple to Di Maggio, Root scoring after the catch. Demaree grounded to Warstler for what should have been the third out, but the Rabbit threw wild to first to reload the bases. O'Dea walked and Hack was forced to score. Frey rolled to Reis for the third out.

Root Hits Homer.

Root made it 4 to 0 in his behalf in the fourth inning by dispatching his season's first homer into the left field seats after two were out. In the home fourth Moore made it 4 to 1. He took a tip from Root and boosted a homer into the left field section.

The home run theme continued in the Cubs' fifth. Herman singled to right with one out. Bush's first pitch to Demaree was all that the latter wanted to see. He took aim and plunked it into the left field bleacher terrace for No. 15, giving the Cubs a lead of 6 to 1.

The Bees developed a streak of toughness in their half of the fifth and reduced Root's lead by two runs. Mueller led off with a scratch single to Frey at short. Turner batted for Bush and flied to Stainback. Garms tripled between Galan and Stainback to score Mueller. Garms scored the other run while Herman was busy throwing out Warstler.

That Terrible Ninth.

After the fifth Root wasn't seriously annoyed until the wild ninth when Di Maggio and Reis led off with singles. Mueller flied to Galan and Mayo, who batted for Hutchinson, singled to score Di Maggio. Root was excused at this point and Shoun stepped into the vacancy. Garms forced Mayo on a tap to Frey. Warstler singled to right, scoring Reis. Away went Shoun. Bryant came in to pitch to Lopez, who batted for Johnson. Lopez was unkind enough to single to left, scoring Garms with the tying run. Cuccinello grounded to Herman to conclude the inning. Bryant's four run homer eased the pain a few minutes later.

The splendor of Bryant's home run heroics faded when he walked Moore and Di Maggio to start the home ninth. He pitched too wide to Reis and was taken out of circulation. Davis finished Reis on strikes. Mueller rolled to Frey, but Herman dropped the throw to second. The error loaded the bases. Mayo filed to Galan and Moore scored. Then Garms tapped to Cavarretta for the final out.

third place White Sox this morning is 2½ games and the White Sox lead over the Red Sox continues to be one game, though the Chicago Sox have won four more than the Boston Sox.

Walker Continues Hitless.

Sington's No. 1 homer of the year got the day's scoring activities under way after two were out in the second inning.

The Sox started off in the third with a rush, but finished the inning with nothing better than a 1 all tie. Sewell opened with a double and stopped at third on Lyons' single to center. Berger also singled to center, Sewell scoring. Then Kreevich tapped into a double play and Walker continued hitless in the series with a grounder to W. Ferrell.

In the fourth the Sox had Lovable Wes bleeding about the ears, but couldn't quite deliver the knockout punch. With one out, Appling and Dykes knocked their successive homers into the left field stands—it was Luke's No. 4 and Jimmy's No. 1. After Piet rammed a double off the left field wall, Ferrell steadied. Sewell flied to Sington, Lyons walked, and Berger forced Lyons.

The Senators did not make their third hit until after W. Ferrell had struck out in the sixth. Almada then singled and went to third on a single by Lewis. Travis was called out on strikes and Piet tossed out Simmons.

Escape Jam in Seventh.

The Sox waded out of a jam in the seventh. Kuhel opened with a single and Myer walked. Sington then flied to Radcliff and R. Ferrell hit into a double play launched by Piet.

The Senators made a run before any one was out in the eighth. W. Ferrell opened with a double over Radcliff's head and scored on Almada's single to center. Lewis struck out, Travis flied to Kreevich and Simmons struck out.

YACHT OFFICIALS AGAIN WILL URGE ANCHORAGE PLAN

The plan to complete the harbor area north of Navy pier making it available for the increasing number of yachts and other small craft is to be presented again to congress by officials of the Chicago plan commission and the Lake Michigan Yachting association. No action was taken on the plan when presented to the last session of congress.

Hugh E. Young, chief engineer of the plan commission, revealed yesterday that efforts will be renewed by Chicago yachtsmen and civic officials for an appropriation at the next session of congress.

"The harbor situation becomes more of a problem each season," Young said. "Although new artificial harbors are proposed for construction off Jackson park and Wilmette, the comparatively large expense makes them impracticable for several years.

"In the meantime," he added, "an ideal location off the new Lake Shore outer drive cannot be used for any boats except 100 to 200 footers because it is not completed."

Locality Doing Its Share.

The plan to finish this harbor area was not included in the last federal rivers and harbors appropriation. This was attributed to an expectation that Chicago could finance the project, expected to cost $400,000. The Chicago petition, however, was quoted by Mr. Young as stating ". . . the locality is doing far more than its appropriate share."

The Chicago park district expends $40,000 a year on its six yacht harbors, and receives less than half that amount in mooring fees.

In Chicago's yacht harbors, approximately 900 pleasure craft are moored each season. One thousand other yachts are kept in out of the way places. The 1,000 yachts tied up outside of harbors, as well as the annual influx of new craft, would be largely accommodated by the completion of the anchorage plan north of Navy Pier.

Three new breakwaters, one intersecting and two short extensions, are needed to make the anchorage safe for small craft. The extensions would stop the storm waves which make anchoring north of Navy Pier hazardous at present. A 2,600 foot breakwater dividing the area in two anchorages would further protect craft from wave action.

Three New Breakwaters Needed.

Representatives of Chicago organizations who attended the session at Washington on the anchorage plan two months ago, again will present to congress a plan for a special appropriation to have the harbor ready for use next season. The government completed the present work on the harbor in 1923. In the group are Maj. Rufus Putnam, director of the Chicago regional port commission; Commodore Christen J. Peterson, director and former head of the Lake Michigan Yachting association; James T. Bristol, secretary of the Lake Shore Athletic club and Yacht Club of Lake Shore, and Mr. Young.

RUSHAWAY WINS BY NECK; EQUALS TRACK RECORD

Rushaway came back at Lincoln Fields yesterday. Owner Al Tarn's horse, which accomplished the unprecedented a year ago by capturing the Illinois and Latonia Derbies on successive days, returned to the ranks of stake winners by driving to a neck victory in the Marquette handicap.

It was Rushaway's class which told, for when Motley pulled up on almost even terms a hundred yards from home Rushaway looked him in the eye and pulled away again. Motley was second and Sir Jim James third. Rushaway ran the mile and an eighth in 1:50 to equal Lady Broadcast's track record of seven years standing.

Co-Sport Captures Joliet.

Co-Sport, racing for Bert Friend, took away the rest of the stake money at the Crete track by winning the Joliet handicap for juveniles. Jocky Bobby Dotter, who rode Rushaway, had a hand in this as well, scoring his second double stake triumph of the meeting and his sixth in four weeks. Lassator finished second to Co-Sport, but was disqualified for fouling Genevra M. The latter was placed second and Steel Knight moved up to third.

A crowd of nearly 15,000 witnessed the running of the two events.

Rushaway forced the early pace in the Marquette, with Sir Jim James out on top and Motley also well up. Dnieper, off slowly, was forced wide on the first turn by War Fellow and was never a factor.

Sir Jim James gave way to Rushaway gradually as they went down the backstretch and on the swing for home. The Tarn 4 year old bounded into a lead and drew out slowly. Motley, on the rail most of the trip, went out to battle him and the result was between the pair.

Motley Slowly Draws Up.

Motley slowly drew up on Rushaway, but a few yards from home Rushaway, driven hard by Jocky Dotter, pulled out again and was a neck in front at the wire. Sir Jim James was another length back for third.

Rushaway's previous effort had been a third in the Lincoln handicap. His victory in the Marquette was his first of the year. The son of Haste-Roseaway earned $2,090 for Owner Tarn. In the betting he paid $15.60 to win.

It was obvious in the Joliet handicap that Jocky Dotter could take Co-Sport to the front whenever he wished. Genevra M. set the pace with Lassator and Steel Knight closely lapped on each other. In fourth place was the favorite, while Knee Deep and Allanwood trailed.

Genevra M. Tires

Genevra M. still led into the stretch where she tired. As she gave way Lassator moved up slowly and Co-Sport came with a rush as Jocky Dotter brought him to the outside and let him run. It was Co-Sport and Lassator a quarter of a mile from home and as Co-Sport drew steadily out Lassator swerved to the inner rail, impeding the tiring Genevra M. For this he was disqualified. Co-Sport was so much the best that he was drawing rapidly away at the finish, two lengths in front of Lassator.

Co-Sport's time of 1:11 2-5 was exceptionally good. Co-Sport paid $3.80 to win. He was Jocky Dotter's fifth winning stake mount of the meeting.

CLASSIC LEAGUE BOWLERS OFF ON NEW SEASON

It seems the Classic Bowling league ended its long 1936-37 season only a few weeks ago, but members of the organization already are prepared for a fresh assault on the pins. The league, whose membership includes most of the city's best bowlers, will open its 1937-38 schedule tonight at the White City alleys.

Eight teams again are lined up, with a few of them having new faces. The Pabst Blue Ribbons, champions two years ago, will have two new men, Paul Krumske and Joe Sinke, to help out Adolph Carlson, Eddie Krems, Eddie Zajac, and Herb Freitag. The Prager Beers, title winners last season, again will depend upon Dom De Vito, Jake Lenzen, Sykes Thomas, Walter Freitag, and Eli Maricich.

Other teams are the Baby Ruths, Monarch Beers, Triangle Shirts, Power House, and the Bill Heerman quintet, which as yet has not obtained a sponsor.

HOUSTON POLO TEAM, FORT SILL MEET IN FINAL

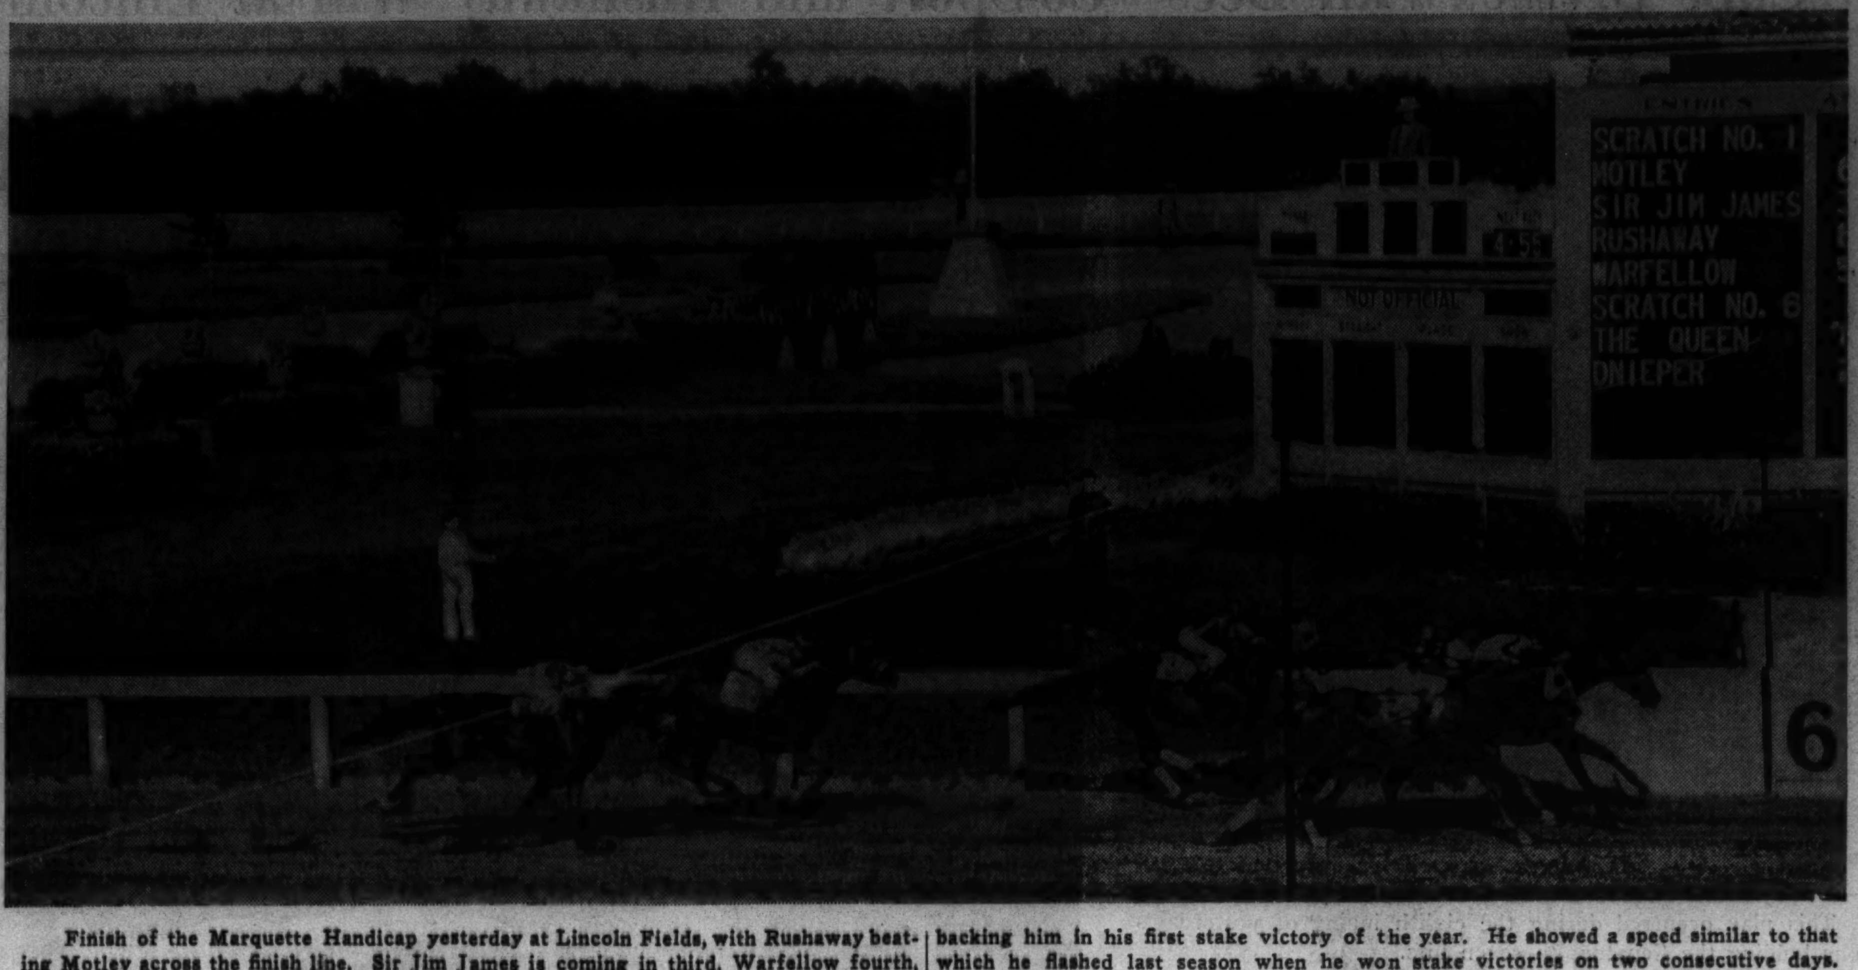
The Houston, Tex., Huisaches and Fort Sill, Okla., teams will meet in the final game of the intercircuit polo tournament this afternoon at the Oak Brook stadium, York road and 22d street.

The Santa Barbara, Cal., polo team advanced to the final round of the 12 goal tournament yesterday at Oak Brook defeating the third United States Cavalry of Fort Myer, Va., 8 to 5. In another contest the Oak Brook team gave Leona farm a two point handicap award and went on to win, 12 to 6, in a semi-final of the Byfield memorial tournament.

Hoogerhyde, Miss Yanke Lead in Archery Tourney

Russ Hoogerhyde led the men's division and Renette Yanke the women's at the conclusion of yesterday's competition in the Illinois state archery tournament in Grant park. Hoogerhyde, national champion, led with 784, while Miss Yanke had 399. The meet concludes today.

SURPRISE! RUSHAWAY SHOWS HIS OLD TIME SPEED



Finish of the Marquette Handicap yesterday at Lincoln Fields, with Rushaway beating Motley across the finish line. Sir Jim James is coming in third, Warfellow fourth, and The Queen fifth. Rushaway's followers received $15.60 in the mutuel payoff for backing him in his first stake victory of the year. He showed a speed similar to that which he flashed last season when he won stake victories on two consecutive days. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

the run down the back stretch, but approaching the final bend, where Fighting Fox made his challenge with a mighty rush on the outside, both Sky Larking and his stable companion, C-Note, were caught in close quarters.

This brought Robertson up in his stirrups. It was necessary to steady the fighting son of Blue Larkspur. Just as soon as he got back into stride, Pumpkin, from John Hay Whitney's stable, which until that stage had been the pacemaker, went slightly out from the inner rail.

Robertson immediately put Sky Larking to punishment. Sky Larking skimmed through the opening next to the rail and in a few graceful strides had taken a slight lead.

Sky Larking Draws Away.

The Hopeful for 1937 was over then and there. Sky Larking, running like a great horse and a true champion under strong handling by Robertson, drew away from the others, worked his way out toward the center of the track where the going was better and eased the nerves of his backers, who collected at 6 to 5 on him.

Bull Lea, a son of Bull Dog-Rose Leaves, from Warren Wright's barn and quite a horse at Arlington Park, outgamed Fighting Fox for second money. C-Note had no trouble finishing fourth after the Whitney owned Pumpkin had tired badly. The other two starters, Stormscud and Dauber, were never able to make it interesting for Sky Larking.

A half hour after Sky Larking had established his place at the top of the 2 year old division, Count Arthur, owned by Mrs. John Hertz of Chicago and a homebred son of her one time champion, Reigh Count, placed himself at the top of the distance running horses of the nation when, for the second time in three years, he won the mile and three-quarters grind of the Saratoga Gold Cup.

Pulls Away from Field.

The Chicago 5 year old trailed the favorite Esposa for the first mile and a quarter. On the last trip down the back stretch Jocky Lester Balaski sent him to the front. Count Arthur pulled away from his field on the last turn. He fairly ran away from them in the run down the home stretch. His margin of victory was four lengths. Matey, a 3 year old son of Man o' War and a stablemate of War Admiral, was second, Esposa, the favorite, finished third. Last in the four horse field was Red Rain.

Mrs. Hertz' prize was $6,425. Count Arthur was a long shot in the betting. Opening price against him was 10 to 1. He closed at 8 to 1.

Two Miles on Passes; That's Baugh Mileage

An indefatigable statistician once figured that if all the forward passes completed by Sammy Baugh at Texas Christian university were added end to end they would total two miles.

Such an all-inclusive observation may fail to impress one with the passing skill of the college All-Americans captain, in which case a recital of some of his exploits may prove more convincing.

It should be remembered that down in the southwest where Baugh comes from the forward pass is the principal offensive weapon. It is not used as a means of last resort when all else fails as is so frequently the case in other sections of the country.

Mr. Baugh Must Have Something.

So the fact that Mr. Baugh is regarded as the greatest passer ever produced in the south must mean that he has something. The Green Bay Packers are likely to find this out at Soldiers' field next Wednesday night.

When the lanky southerner [he is 6 feet two inches tall] joined the Texas Christian varsity in 1934 he immediately was assigned the quarter back position on the first team for obvious reasons.

The season was still young when the attention of the football world was focused upon the young sophomore. It was in the Arkansas game and Texas Christian was having a tough time of it.

Trailing at the half, 14 to 6, the Texas team with Baugh at the helm, opened up with a fusilade of passes, the like of which has seldom if ever been equalled. When the game was over the perspiring statisticians announced that Baugh had thrown 47 passes, and completed 34 of them.

Scores Twice on Passes.

It would make a story book ending to be able to say that Texas Christian won the game, but the final score was 21 to 19 in favor of Arkansas. Two of the three touchdowns scored by the losers were the result of passes hurled by Baugh.

Known by this time throughout the south as "Slingin' Sam," he added to his reputation by throwing three passes for touchdowns against the University of Texas.

Some of his greatest exploits were at the expense of Texas. In 1935 he threw four touchdown passes against the state university, and last fall four of the five touchdowns scored by Texas Christian against Texas were the result of Baugh's passes.

Miss Rose Bowl Chance.

It was principally due to Sammy's deadly passing that the Horned Frogs were almost selected for the 1935 Rose Bowl game.

The Rose Bowl selection hinged upon the outcome of the Texas Christian-Southern Methodist game, the last of the season. Each team was undefeated. The game was a free scoring affair with Baugh, as usual, the king-pin of the Texas Christian attack. But even his accurate right arm was insufficient to assure victory, for Southern Methodist won the decision, 19 to 14.

All-Americans Form 2 Units for Pro Battle

The first unit chosen by the coaches corresponds to the starting lineup elected in the national poll by 5,000,000 voters except for two positions. Jankowski has replaced Francis at full back and Baugh, elected captain of the All-Americans by his teammates' votes, will be at left half. However, Bobby La Rue, Pittsburgh half back, who was named by the fans on the starting eleven and Francis will take the field to open the battle against the Packers.

La Rue is a right half back. So is John Drake. Thus it became necessary for the coaches to find a player accustomed to play the all-important position of left half, a player who kicks, passes, and runs. The outstanding man for that position, the best offensive man on the team, and possibly the greatest player to appear in any of the All-Star games sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, is Sammy Baugh.

La Rue Safety Man.

When La Rue returns to the game, as he undoubtedly will, it will be at right half. And he will be at safety on defense.

Francis was placed on the second unit, partly because there was no kicker for this back field without him, and also because Jankowski's hard line smashes, his experience with the full back position, as required by the Notre Dame system, and his intense spirit won him the job.

A score of other players reasonably may hope to get a chance at the Packers. Several on the third and fourth units certainly are able to carry on in either of the starting combinations. And the coaches believe these men will have an advantage if they are sent in as individual substitutes on these unit elevens.

As final test to pick the list of substitutes, the third, fourth, and fifth teams, wearing blue, red, and green jerseys, scrimmaged in Dyche stadium yesterday. In 45 minutes of play, only one touchdown was made, a reverse smash inside defensive right tackle by Larry Danbom, Notre Dame full back, which went for eight yards. Danbom then kicked the extra point with La Rue holding the ball.

Review New Plays.

Gus Dorais and Bernie Moore had the other men in the lecture room. After a half hour there the first two teams went into the inclosed practice field to work out the special plays they had just been given.

This program was carried out so secretly that spectators in the stands and visiting coaches were unaware of the workout. Only the gate man can tell you what plays were prepared during this private drill.

The final surprise maneuver of the morning was scrimmage in Dyche stadium by the first and second units. Each faced in turn the third team and its substitutes. Each was limited to six plays.

Score on Baugh's Pass.

Capt. Baugh's team, after an exchange of punts had gained 40 yards, scored from the opponents' 30 yard line on a pass, Baugh to Tinsley. Two plays later the first unit scored again, this time on a pass, Baugh to Drake.

The second unit couldn't score with its six plays. Wilke is not as proficient a passer as Baugh, but Bob didn't have many chances to get set. He was rushed by the right end, Matt Patanelli, and the center, Mike Basrak. Blocking assignments on the varsity apparently were confused. The coaches soon located the trouble, a matter of option by certain linemen, but by this time the allotted six plays had been used.

The second unit did find the goal, however, in this brief scrimmage. Dick Bassi, down field under a kick by Francis, grabbed an attempted lateral pass by the third team receiver and scampered ten yards to the goal line. Bassi's interception is indicative of the heads up football the All-Americans are playing.

Cripples Round Into Shape.

John Wiatrak, Washington center, scrimmaged yesterday for the first time since he was injured last Wednesday. Al Agett, Michigan State left half, and Bud Wilkinson, Minnesota quarter back, will be in top shape for the game against the Packers, Carl Erickson, the trainer, announced yesterday. Both have had severe muscle bruises.

PACKERS READY, LAMBEAU HOPES; THEY'D BETTER BE

Former All-Stars Know Battle Will Be Hard.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 28.—Four days away from the most important assignment in the 19 year history of the club, the Green Bay Packers, world professional champions and defenders of National league prestige, stepped through another short drill tonight for the game with the All-Americans at Chicago Wednesday night.

It was the only workout of the day. No effort was made to force the men. Vigorous work was shunned. Coach Curley Lambeau sought only intensity of application. The practice was taken as an indication that Lambeau believes he has done all possible in the way of preparation except to shape the mental attitude of the veterans.

Less partial observers felt, however, that it was fear of injuries and fatigue more than satisfaction with the squad's progress that prompted Lambeau to limit the session to kicking, passing, and a little dummy scrimmage against passes. Lambeau has had too much experience in his 19 years of coaching the Packers to be fooled into believing that in the space of two weeks he has been able to bring a notoriously slow starting team up to championship heights. Nothing less than a championship performance will suffice if the All-Americans reach the same heights against the professional title holders as they are reported to have attained in intrasquad scrimmages.

First Hand Information.

Members of his own squad who have had All-Star experience have told Lambeau as much. Don Hutson, Green Bay's great pass catching end; Joe Laws, deceptive ball carrier; George Sauer, hard running full back, and Darrel [Jeeter] Lester, rookie center, have been members of previous All-Star squads. Zud Schammel, guard from Iowa who is trying professional football after coaching at his alma mater for three years, was named to the first squad, but did not report.

"Those All-Stars will play the greatest games of their careers against us," Hutson told Lambeau. "It will take a lot of football to beat them, but I am sure I am a vastly improved player over the Hutson who played against the Bears in 1935, and there is no question that Laws and Sauer are better now than they were in the first game in 1934. We have more experience. We have learned so much in this league that we never knew before. But those kids get so hopped up that all that experience and additional knowledge will not do a professional club any good unless it is hot."

Water to the Well.

Hutson was bringing water to the well. Lambeau has seen the entire All-Star series and has spent considerable time watching the college squad train. Laws, on whom will fall some of the burden of outsmarting the collegians, is convinced of the pros' superiority over a series of contests.

"But anything can happen in one game," he explained. "The night we played the Bears to a scoreless tie in the first game only our own brainstorms and a couple of bad breaks kept us from beating them three touchdowns. We wouldn't have stood much of a chance against the well drilled and conditioned outfit the Bears put on the field the next year."

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

For the third time in his golfing career young Harold Mathisen of the Woodridge club, a chemist, has won the Chicago amateur golf championship. Yesterday, at Jackson Park, he defeated Joe Franco, young star of the Skokie Playfield club, 3 and 2, in the final match. This victory gives Mathisen a tie with Chick Evans, who is the only other golfer to have thrice carried off this title.

In winning from Franco, Mathisen shot near-par in the morning round to hold Joe to a single hole advantage at the end of the first eighteen holes. Joe himself shot a 71, just a stroke over perfect figures. But in the afternoon Mathisen turned on the heat and with a 33 going out, 1 under par, he stood 3 up. A slight faltering at the thirty-second and thirty-third holes simply delayed the inevitable, and Harold won the match and title on the thirty-fourth where Franco was stymied behind a big tree.

Mathisen's first victory came in 1934 and he repeated in 1935. In 1933 he was runner-up to Walter Crowdus.

Gossoon II. and Betty Bro Win Regatta Prizes

Gossoon II. and Betty Bro were the major winners in the annual regatta held yesterday off Navy pier under the Lake Michigan Yachting ascociation and Daily News sponsorship. Fair weather and light east to southeast breezes propelled the 97 keel sailing yachts and 40 centerboard sailers around three set courses.

Gossoon II., a class R sloop of the Chicago Yacht club, repeated its 1933 winning of the racing division time prize. Owned and sailed by Malcolm Vail, Sterling Morton, and Joseph A. Moller, the 40 foot yacht also won in its class.

Smallest to Win.

Betty Bro is the smallest yacht to win the cruising time prize in this regatta since 1930. A 36 foot cutter owned and sailed by Milton H. Friend, former vice commodore of the Columbia Yacht club, Betty Bro captured the prize from Rubaiyat, Commodore Nathaniel Rubinkam's flagship and 1936-'37 Mackinac cruising victor, by less than one minute. Betty Bro's corrected time for the twelve mile course was 1 hour 53 minutes and 42 seconds, to Rubaiyat's 1:54:39.

A coincidence noted by yachtsmen was the one-two finish of Rubaiyat and Revenge, the two winners of the Mackinac race this year. Revenge is a 59 foot green hulled racing cutter, owned by Blair Walliser and Ken Griffin of the Chicago Yacht club, while Rubaiyat is a 44 foot mahoganyred cruising cutter. Revenge was badly defeated in the regatta by Warrior, Fred Wacker's 8 meter class sloop that won the large Universal class. Warrior was first of the entire fleet to finish.

Bagheera, Fortune Win.

Bagheera and Southern Cross, both flagships, race dside by side the last leg of the course, neither 55 footer given a foot. At the finish, Commodore John T. [Bud] Snite's schooner Bagheera was timed at 2:01:36, while Commodore Robert Benedict's yawl Southern tCross received a corrected time 58 seconds later. Bagheera won the class A cruising event.

Fortune, Kenneth Brown's Chicago Y. C. schooner, won the Universal [racing] schooner and yawl division contest, while the Tumlaren class event was won by Friendship, owned by George Dalseg and Joseph Richter's Adara, Howard Bordner's Chicago Y. C.. star class sloop, won the star race. Donald Jackson's Columbia won the Seawanhaka class ad Dr. Jay Lowell's Osprey was first in the class D cruising race. Rubaiyat won in class B, and Betty Bro in the C race.

THREE IN TIE AT 135 FOR LEAD IN GLEN FALLS GOLF

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Jack Patroni, Gene Sarazen, and Jimmy Hines emerged today from an unparalleled low scoring second round field to tie for the halfway lead in Glens Falls' $4,000 open golf tournament with 36 hole totals of 135, nine under regulation figures.

Patroni, a former Westchester county caddie and now a professional at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., shot a two under par 70 to add to his 65 of the opening round, while Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Conn.; and Hines, Garden City, N. Y., two time winner of the event, posted 68s after first round 67s.

Patroni, who put Sarazen out of the 1936 P. G. A. championship play, missed a chance to gain undisputed leadership with 134 when he three putted the 125 yard 18th from 20 feet.

TENSE MOMENT FOR NEW AMATEUR CHAMPION

whether or not he could hole the next one and when the ball grazed past the side of the cup he walked over and shook hands with Goodman.

The Nebraskan was just too steady today for Billows, twice winner of the New York state crown. He simply wore Billow down by pouring pars at him.

Goodman quit the field 2 up when they finished the first eighteen holes this bright morning and relentlessly increased his lead as the match wore on in the afternoon.

There were just two occasions this afternoon when Billows looked as if he might stage a rally and prevent the little Omahan from reaching his life's goal.

One of these was on the first hole after the noonday intermission. On that one he gave the gallery of close to 6,000 spectators a thrill such as comes once in a lifetime.

A Par 5 Hole in 2—Almost.

Billows almost holed out a full wood shot for a "double eagle" there to match Gene Sarazen's famous 2 on the par 5 No. 13 hole at Augusta, in the spring of 1936. His tee shot, played with a slight hook stopped in the short rough, just off the fairway and after Goodman, who played the odd, pelted one into the rough up near the green, Billows banged away at a brassie with all his might. The ball set out straight as an arrow, landed short of the green and came to a rest not more than eight inches from the pin. He covered 501 yards with those two blows.

That shot put Billows right back into the match for it left him only 1 down with seventeen more holes to play. The score didn't remain that way long, however, for a strong iron shot carried his ball over the green on the next hole and he was right back where he started.

The other time was when Billows captured the 23d hole as Goodman, catching a bunker on his approach shot, tried to chip out and half missed, leaving himself a putt too long to hole.

Billows was back to only one down again and there was still ample time for him to rally and gain the honors for which he has been a candidate twice.

But if there was any one hole that proved the turning point in today's match it was the next one—the dogs legs No. 6, which is 559 yards long. As usual Ray had a big advantage over Johnny after both the tee shots and seconds, but the former had the misfortune to find his ball in a divot which made it hard to get at.

Billows' Morale Shaken.

It was made by no means easier when Goodman's pitch, perfectly hit, landed short and ran up to within two yards of the hole. Billows was unable to get his ball into the air and it skidded into the short grass, from where he took two to get down and lost the hole, 4 to 5, when Johnny sent his putt into the cup.

That the break had a bad effect on Billow's morale was evidenced on the next hole, which Jonny won, 4 to 5, after missing the green with his approach shot. Chipping on, Goodman holed a four foot putt for his par, while Billows, only twenty feet from the hole in two, took three putts, missing one of a yard for the half.

Then, after halving the 26th in par figures, Billows had to hole a ten foot putt to hold Goodman even on the 27th where he was off the green from the tee whereas Goodman was on 10 feet past the pin.

An Uphill Fight.

Johnny found victory increasingly difficult as he advanced to the championship round.

A co-favorite from the start, he won his first round test, 7 and 6, from Donald McPhail of Baltimore.

He won from Jimmy McHale, Los Angeles, in the second round, 4 and 3.

Billows, impressive in defeat, qualified with a lower score than Goodman, 144 for 36 holes to Johnny's 149.

Goodman Feels 'Plenty Good'; He Says So Himself

"Well, this Goodman guy sure feels plenty good right now."

He told the big crowd "this is the happiest moment of my life."

He said the match was one of the toughest battles of his career and he was lucky to win.

Three titles were decided yesterday in the Chicago tennis tournament at the Oak Park Tennis club, but the most important appetizer, the men's singles final, will not be presented until this afternoon.

In the men's final at 4 o'clock the Murphy brothers, Chester and William, will fight it out for the tournament's capital honor.

Champions were decided yesterday in the veteran's doubles, boys' junior division, and the women's doubles.

Seymour Greenberg, the middle west's top ranking junior, won the championship in his division by defeating Olin Parks of Mishawaka, Ind., 6-1, 6-0, 6-0. It was a breeze for Greenberg from the start.

In the veterans' doubles final the Serrano brothers of St. Louis, Edward and G. M., conquered Herbert Mertz Sr. and Art Kaiser, 6-1, 7-5. This was a measure of revenge for Ed Serrano, who on Friday was beaten by Kaiser in the veterans' singles final.

In the other championship decided yesterday, the combination of Margaret Stiel and Virginia Grelle disposed of Virginia Winston and Nancy Molton, 9-7, 6-3.

Chester Murphy advanced to the men's single final by defeating John Clark, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1. William Murphy brushed aside John Shostrom, 2-6, 6-0, 7-5, 6-1.

In addition to the battle for the men's singles crown this afternoon, Russell Ball and John Shostrom will meet Chester and William Murphy for the men's doubles championship at 2 o'clock and Virginia Winston will play Margaret Stiel for the women's singles title at 3 o'clock.

MARION MILEY WINS WESTERN FINAL, 7 AND 6

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Less than a month after her impressive conquest in the women's western golf Derby in Chicago, Marion Miley of Cincinnati, O., Curtis cup star, added another title to her imposing list today by winning the 35th annual women's western tournament.

Miss Miley defeated Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., Trans-Mississippi champion, 7 and 6, over the 36 hole route to regain the championship she held in 1935 and relinquished last year in the tournament at South Bend, Ind. The tournament was played at the Town and Country club.

Have Met Five Times.

It was the fifth time in three years the two players had met in match play and the third time Miss Miley was victorious.

Three up at the end of 18 holes, Miss Miley ended the match on the thirtieth green with a burst of subpar golf. She was one under regulation figures for the afternoon's 12 holes. The card:

Par out	433	545	445	37
Par in	535	445	553	39	76
Miley out	533	544	465	39
Jameson	434	544	455	38
Miley in	43*	335	563	..
Jameson	53*	436	463	..
Miley out	433	544	455	37
Jameson	623	555	446	40
Miley in	435
Jameson	447

Miss Jameson had been 1 up at the end of nine holes, the result of a 38 medal score to Miss Miley's 39. Partly stymied on the tenth, Miss Miley used her No. 3 iron to curve her ball into the cup for a birdie four to win the hole and then forged ahead on the twelfth, when Miss Jameson conceded the hole after placing two drives out of bounds.

Miss Miley Moves Ahead.

Miss Miley went 4 up with the start of the afternoon eighteen when Miss Jameson hit her drive badly and was stymied by a tree and finally took a six.

Coming up to the 30th, where she had placed two balls out of bounds in the morning, Miss Jameson again drove wildly to take two penalty strokes, which gave her a seven to Miss Miley's five, ending the match.

Mills, Atlanta Nine Meet in Double Header

The opening game at these parks will start at 1:30 also.

It is to be Georgia day at the Mills stadium, where Harley has arranged a program for the interest of fans who will turn out to see the Atlanta Black Crackers. The colored club recently defeated the Chicago American Giants at Atlanta.

Four elimination tests are scheduled tonight in which twelve will qualify for the final. Other events will include a 15 lap handicap and a consolation for nonqualifiers at 15 laps.

ST. ADRIAN AND ST. MARTIN PLAY FOR C. Y. O. TITLE

Indians Have Two Homes—Cigar Box and Rolling Acres

Well, it seems only 20 or 30 months ago since we started telling the world about the major league baseball parks and here we are with only Comiskey park, Wrigley field, and Yankee stadium left on the list after this week's essay on the two homes of the Cleveland Indians. It isn't in our contract, as originally drawn up, to write about the Chicago parks. But you should see the fan mail—postcard after postcard—demanding that we treat Wrigley field and Comiskey park with even a more lavish flourish than the other layouts. And of course we'll have to bear down on the new Yankee stadium, what with the world series coming on. E. B.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

THE high dudgeon into which we had worked ourself in contemplating our treatise on League park, one of the homes of the Cleveland Indians, chilled off somewhat when we saw the place for the first time in fourteen months a couple of weeks ago. The place still has the silliest dimensions in the American league, but a new groundkeeper is the cause of the cooling of our scorn. The velvety lawn which has replaced the scraggly surface rather disarmed us and made us much less stern about the joke right field wall. And another thing—some of the boys out at the Chicago Tuberculosis sanitarium, who are keeping scrap books, have asked us to write about Cleveland's great municipal stadium, for a time the regular home of the Indians and the site of 11 of their games this year.

So this week we are going to deal with two parks, instead of one as in all previous pieces of this series. And we couldn't possibly get steamed up against League park, dividing our space.

And there is another element. We have decided that the cramped enclosure, unlike the unfair Polo grounds and Baker bowl of the National league, has come to be a disadvantage to the Indians. They get in the habit of trying to ladle balls over the wall while at home and they still are ladling for a week or so when they are on a road trip, ladling easy pop flies. Near the close of the trip they have changed to a normal style. Thus they are all mixed up and much of the time don't know what they are trying to do. The result is that the Indians each spring contemplate a pennant, but never wind up higher than third and often are in the second division.

Bevels Make Ball Take Crazy Bounces.

The right foul line at League park is only 290 feet long. The right field wall is a concrete structure, made up of 54 panels, with the bevels so deep that crazy bounces result. A screen formerly topped the entire wall, but shortly after Earl Averill and Eddie Morgan revealed their ability to knock high flies to right center the screen was removed at the place where they usually hit. The screen has been preserved at and near the foul line, but probably will be removed if Hal Trosky continues in the slump that has had him down in recent weeks. Hal's success at League park has been built on his ability to dip high flies that just clear the high screen.

The boxholders and reporters are closer to the players at League park than in any other major league layout excepting only Griffith stadium, Washington. Cleveland writers, known as the most biased in the majors either for or against the Indian management, used to point with pride to this folksy proximity until they developed their current feud with the Cleveland nabobs. They said that having the players in their laps made the fans better acquainted with their heroes. Recently the proximity of the press box to the plate has enabled some of the writers to get a better closeup on how the Indians should be managed than Steve O'Neill can get from the dugout.

The dugouts, by the way, are more folksy than those at any other major league park. They are set back in the field boxes and the boxholders who flank the dugouts virtually are sitting on the Indian bench.

On the Whole Its a Sporting Field.

Aside from the right field area the field is very sporting. The flagpole and the right end of the center field scoreboard are 460 feet from the plate. A shallow bleacher to the immediate left of the scoreboard is 415 feet from the plate and a deeper concrete bleacher curves back of the left foul flag which is 375 feet from the plate. The field boxes jut out at both the left and right field ends almost to the foul line. The double decked stand extends from the right field wall to the bleacher which curves into foul territory beyond the left foul flag. The entrance is from the corner off the right foul line. Approach to the part of the grandstand back of the plate is made through long, screened-in chutes. Upon entering one of these chutes a stranger has little idea where he is going to wind up. He picks his chute at the main entrance and prays that when he comes out he'll still be in the ball park.

The Cleveland municipal stadium probably rates as the best ball park in America, especially since the Sox infield was ripped up at the Braddock-Louis fight. At any rate it shares with the Comiskey park the distinction of being the only symmetrical playing field in the majors.

The Field Is Almost a Perfect Circle.

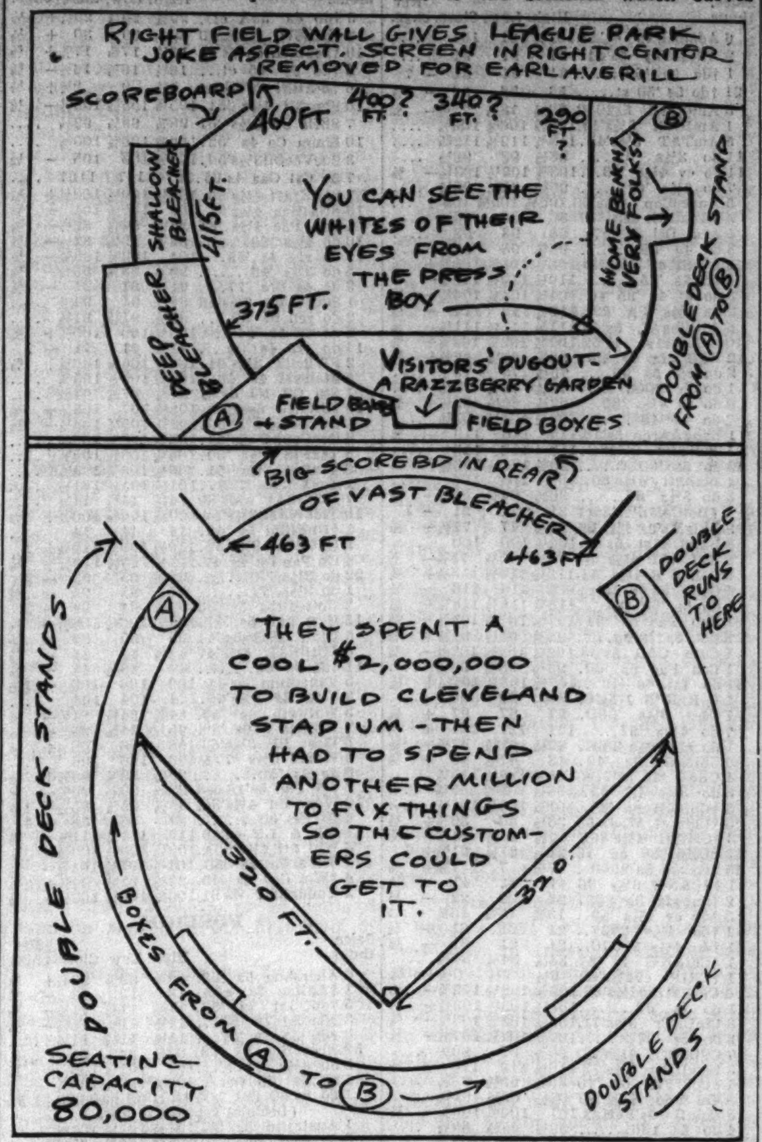
The stadium, which seats 80,000, was built on the lake front at a cost of $2,000,000. Another million was spent on building approaches from the business center. The stadium was finished in the early spring of 1932. The Indians played their first game there on July 31, after a summer of bickering with politicians, and was the home of the Indians throughout 1933, with more bickering with politicians. At the beginning of 1934 the Indians returned to League park with occasional appearances at the stadium. This year, with Bob Feller counted upon as a big Sunday attraction, the stadium was booked for eleven Sundays. Feller got a sore arm, but the Indians lived up to their contracts, and drew good crowds, though, among other happenings, they lost two double-headers to the White Sox, who play better in big arenas than in cigar boxes.



The upper drawing depicts League park, daily home of the Cleveland Indians. The lower drawing presents Cleveland stadium, largest park in the major leagues, in which the Indians will have played eleven Sunday games when season ends.

SCHMELING ASKS SHOWDOWN ON OCTOBER FIGHT

Threatens to Quit Jacobs; Wants 30 Per Cent.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—As Promoter Mike Jacobs today directed final plans for the world heavyweight championship battle between Joe Louis, the title holder, and Tommy Farr, British empire champion, which is to be held Monday night in the Yankee stadium, he faced an important defection from the ranks of heavyweights he has under his control.

Max Schmeling, former title holder, upset the calm on the fight front with an ultimatum in which he emphasized he has no intention of waiting on the pleasure of Promoter Jacobs for his overdue chance to regain the heavyweight crown.

Won't Lower Demand.

"I will consult with Mike Jacobs Tuesday morning, just as soon as the Louis-Farr bout is out of the way," said Schmeling, while his American representative, Joe Jacobs, nodded approval. "I will ask him to give me a definite answer whether he intends to match me this October with the winner of that bout. I will not lower by 1 percentage point my demand for 30 per cent, because I am entitled to that much, in view of the fact that I knocked out Louis. If Jacobs rejects my proposal I will proceed with a campaign of bouts in the United States and in Europe which will keep me at fighting peak, and at the same time exhaust the available supply of opponents for Louis. And in this campaign I will fight for other promoters than Jacobs. I have no intention of sitting idly by and waiting until next June or whenever Jacobs decides I should get my chance to regain the title."

Outlines Program.

Manager Jacobs outlined Schmeling's proposed campaign. He said he would first accept Jack Kearns' offer for a bout in Detroit between Schmeling and Jimmy Adamick, for which Kearns has offered Schmeling a guarantee of $100,000, with a privilege of 40 per cent of the receipts. This bout is proposed for late September or early October. A bout against Max Baer in Los Angeles in February is under consideration, it was revealed for the first time, and Schmeling's plans would be so arranged as to include a bout in Chicago under the direction of Nate Lewis.

Between the proposed Adamick and Baer bouts Schmeling would return to Germany for battles in Hamburg and Berlin, Manager Jacobs said, emphasizing, at the same time, that this schedule is contingent on what develops when Schmeling and Promoter Jacobs get together Tuesday morning.

LOUIS' SPARMATE HURT.

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The serenity of Joe Louis' final workout for his fight with Tommy Farr Monday night was disturbed today by an accident.

Pal Silvers, Williamsburg boxer, working out in the first round of a scheduled two round test with the champion, made a sudden leap backward to evade a long punch driven by Louis. Silvers forcibly hit the top rope of the ring, and the barrier snapped. He landed squarely on his neck on the apron of the ring.

The fall stunned the sparring partner, but he was not long in recovering. When Silvers was examined in the dressing room it was found he was unhurt, except for the contusions about his legs.

It is the plan of his handlers to have Louis enjoy a day of complete relaxation tomorrow. Jack Blackburn, his chief trainer, said that the bomber again will scale 198 when he weighs in on Monday. Louis was in top form in his training session.

FARR STAGGERS MATES.

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Apparently infuriated by his undignified sitdown act during yesterday's sparring session with Abe Feldman, Tommy Farr was in a vicious mood today as he completed heavy training for Monday night's postponed meeting with Joe Louis.

Bob Scally and Joe Wagner, who went one round each, and Feldman, who faced him for two, were subjected to heavy punishment, and while no knockdowns were scored, Tommy repeatedly staggered his hired hands with smashing blows to the face and body.

Tomorrow he will indulge only in light limbering up exercises.

LETTERS

Letters of not more than 200 words, addressed to the Financial Editor, will be printed in these columns from time to time.

Bank Debits.

Wauconda, Ill., Aug. 25.—I notice for the last several months you have been writing longer stories on the weekly reports on debits to individual deposit account. These figures are an important gauge of business and I hope you continue. The figures are far more comprehensive than bank clearings, which show only the amount of money passing between banks in a certain locality. Debits show the total withdrawn by check in an entire reserve district, whether the funds are redeposited in the same district or not. I make a weighted average of the figures and thus get a fairly accurate picture of the amount of money changing hands, for, as your stories have pointed out, about 90 per cent of all business is handled by check.—P. I. R.

More Everyday Economics.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 24.—The articles appearing daily in THE TRIBUNE under the caption, "Everyday Economics," are most interesting and instructive. Because of that we have a desire to have them for reference should occasion prompt. Is it your intention to publish them later in pamphlet or book form? If not, is there a book in existence now containing all the information which you have given thus far and still expect to give?—George E. Manschot.

[Editor's note: Because of the fact that the editor knew of no book which contained the information appearing in Everyday Economics, the column was inaugurated. Its contents are the result of personal knowledge and research by THE TRIBUNE financial staf. Most items discussed thus far have been suggested by readers who were confused by financial terms and were unable to get adequate information. Everyday Economics will be published in booklet form within the next two months. Its issuance will be announced on these pages.]

Chief Middle West Cities Report Declines.

Check transactions in the middle west last week indicated a decline in business activity, statistics of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank disclosed yesterday.

Debits to individual deposit account—checking withdrawals—in the Seventh federal reserve district during the week ended Aug. 25 amounted to $1,110,175,000. This compares with $1,214,570,000 in the preceding week and $1,010,067,000 during the week ended Aug. 26, 1936.

The statement covers transactions by 162 banks in 41 leading cities of the district, which embraces parts of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan, and reperesents about nine-tenths of all money changing hands during the period.

Chief Cities Show Declines.

Declines were shown by all principal cities of the territory. Chicago reported debits of $644,838,000, compared with $690,713,000 a week earlier and $576,507,000 in the comparable period last year. Des Moines, Ia., reported $18,985,000, against $19,873,000 and $18,709,000, respectively; Detroit had $202,964,000, against $227,264,000 and $189,395,000; Indianapolis, $37,625,000, against $44,497,000 and $36,050,000, and Milwaukee, $54,873,000, against $66,991,000 and $56,241,000.

A decline in business activity was also indicated for the nation as a whole. Debits by banks in the twelve federal reserve districts totaled $7,454,299,000 for the week ended Aug. 25, compared with $8,245,637,000 in the preceding week and $7,281,319,000 in the week ended Aug. 26, 1936.

Chicago Bank Clearings Lower.

A decrease was also registered in bank clearings for Chicago during the week ended yesterday. The Chicago Clearing House association reported volume of $301,200,000 for the week, compared with $327,100,000 in the preceding week and $264,100,000 in the corresponding period last year. Clearings by days follow:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 43,400,000	$ 4,200,000
Tuesday	52,800,000	6,100,000
Wednesday	52,600,000	8,800,000
Thursday	47,800,000	5,000,000
Friday	52,800,000	7,500,000
Saturday	52,800,000	5,800,000
Total for week	$301,200,000	$32,800,000
Cor. wk. last year	264,100,000	26,300,000

The New York Clearing House association reported clearings for the week ended yesterday of $2,908,686,804, against $2,870,369,716 in the preceding week.

PRICES OF BONDS ARE UNEVEN IN NARROW RANGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—Irregular price trends marked bond trading on the New York exchange today. Prices moved back and forth seemingly without incentive although changes were held to fractions in most instances.

Obligations of the federal government displayed a stronger tone, and domestic corporation loans edged forward a bit.

Transactions were unusually small, even for a short Saturday session, amounting to only $2,473,400 par value, compared with $2,947,825 last Saturday.

In the government division gains ranged as high as 8-32d point and losses ran to the same amount. However, advances were in the majority. Principal activity centered in treasury 2¾s of 1954, which rose 4-32.

Small gains were shown by a few rails, although upturns were held to less than $10 per $1,000 bond. Utilities and industrials were almost neglected.

Irregularity was shown in the foreign group. Japanese 6½s dipped a point, although the 5½s closed unchanged on the day.

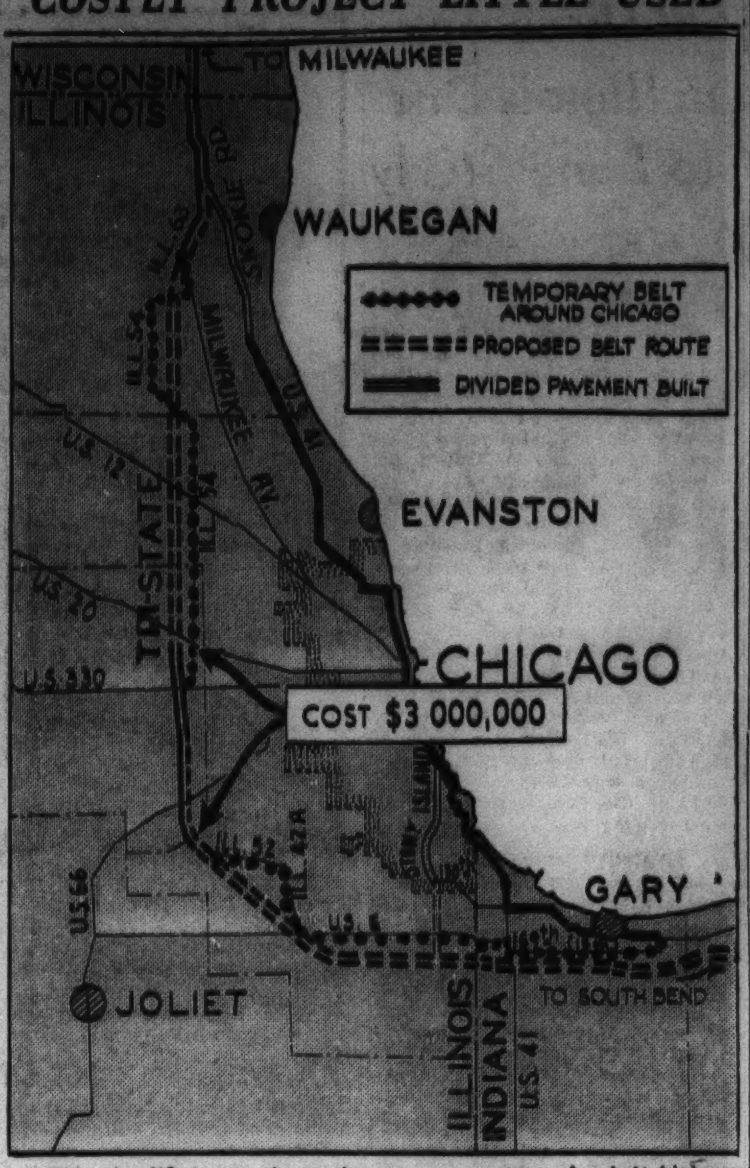
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

COSTLY PROJECT LITTLE USED



This simplified map shows the temporary route of a belt highway around Chicago opened a few weeks ago with the completion of a $1,000,000 viaduct over the Des Plaines river valley linking Ill. 54 and Ill. 52. A survey disclosed that little trafic is using this viaduct and $2,000,000 worth of construction on its approach from the north on the projected tri-state superhighway around Chicago, which is also indicated on the map. The survey also disclosed that the direct route through Chicago in nonrush hours takes less time than driving the temporary route around the city.

VALUE OF NEW BYPASS ROUTE CALLED DUBIOUS

BY HAL FOUST.

A month ago the completion of a $1,000,000 viaduct over the Des Plaines valley waterways and the Calumet Sag channel was hailed by the Illinois highway department as closing the last gap in a bypass route around Chicago for travel between northern Indiana and eastern Wisconsin.

An inspection in the Tribune roadster a few days ago discloses that such a bypass route is difficult to follow and that the advantages of the bypass in its present condition are dubious. Little trafic is using the $1,000,000 viaduct or its $2,000,000 continuation northward to Elmhurst as Illinois 54.

Believes Trafic Will Develop.

"A trafic sufficient to warant the $3,000,000 investment will be developed," said Robert Kingery, manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association, "when the Tri-State route is built around Chicago as a four lane highway in accordance with a proposal this association has been advocating since 1926."

Optimists do not hope for the completion of the Tri-State route within the next few years. The distance is 69 miles from where the belt line would tap Skokie road west of Waukegan to a projected extension of Stony Island avenue in southern Cook county where it would connect with a projected superhighway to South Bend, Ind.

Of this 69 miles, 16 have been completed or placed under contract in the last seven years, from Archer avenue at 111th street to North avenue. About 9 miles of the 16 are still a 20 foot slab with right-of-way and grading providing for another two lane slab in the future. Only about six and a half miles of four lane pavement is open to trafic, between Roosevelt road and 55th street and over the mile viaduct.

The cost of finishing the belt line from Skokie road at Stony Island is conservatively estimated at $6,400,000 and the cost for the continuation of the superhighway to South Bend is estimated at an additional $7,900,000.

Temporary Route Badly Marked.

Pending this additional construction that will probably require five or ten years, there's an inadequately marked temporary route leaving the Dunes relief road, U. S. 20, at Miller, Ind., and joining Skokie road, U. S. 41, opposite Waukegan. Logged in THE TRIBUNE roadster, the distance was 96.5 miles and the time was 2 hours and 31 minutes. The distance and time between the two points through Chicago over the marked U. S. 20 and U. S. 41 route over the outer drives was 76.6 miles in 2 hours and 17 minutes. The rural cruising speed over both routes was 50 miles an hour.

The bypass route, starting at the north, left Skokie road on Ill. 63 through Libertyville to pick up Ill. 54 in Mundelein and thence south following the 54 markers across the Des Plaines valley at 111th street. At the south end of the viaduct a sign reads "route 54 temporarily marked 52." The 52 markers are followed to Harlem avenue [Ill. 42A]. South in Harlem leads to U. S. 6, which can be taken east across the Indiana line.

Sign Points to Connection.

In Hammond, Ind., where U. S. 6 turns south in Hohman avenue, the bypasser continues east in 165th street to U. S. 41, thence south to 169th street. East in 169th street the road becomes 15th avenue through the outskirts of Gary, Ind., to where a homemade sign on a telegraph pole points to a diagonal connection with the Dunes Relief road at Miller, Ind., just east of Gary.

These directions, while complicated, are simpler than covering the route. The Indiana authorities have neglected their duty to guide travel and the Illinois department has bungled its job.

The northbound motorist who is lured from U. S. 6 by Ill. 52 markers west of Indiana avenue is led to a blind end of Ill. 52 at the Governor's highway in Dixmoor. If he tries to follow a map he might encounter barricades at a railroad viaduct in 127th street in Blue Island, barricades posted "closed for repairs," although no repairs are being made and no detour is marked.

The south and east bound motorists, after leaving the new Des Plaines valley viaduct, might logically continue to follow the Ill. 52 markers south of Harlem avenue. If he does, he'll be led to a dead end of the pavement south of Ridgeland avenue, with no markers to guide him out of the trap.

Little Trafic on Viaduct.

So you'll find little trafic on the $1,000,000 viaduct and the $2,000,000 landscaped boulevard carrying the Ill. 54 markers in Du Page county. From the Tribune roadster parked for an hour on the grade separation of Joliet road and Ill. 54 thirty-two cars were counted that had crossed or were about to cross the long viaduct to the south. At the same time 314 automobiles were counted in Joliet road, which is U. S. 66.

These counts were made on a weekday afternoon. The trafic in U. S. 66 was not heavy. Its volume at this particular time was about the minimum requirement to warant an investment in a four lane highway. But this volume was almost ten times as great as the dribble over the $1,000,000 viaduct.

Cadillac-La Salle Output Sets New All-Time Mark

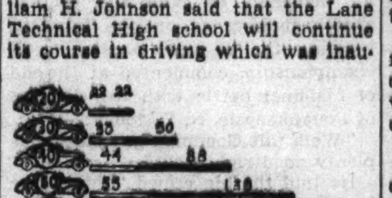
New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The Cadillac-La Salle division of General Motors corporation reported today a new high record for 1937 model production. It totaled 46,153 units, 26 per cent ahead of 1929 output, and 78 per cent ahead of last year's output of 25,905 cars.

EXPAND AUTO DRIVING COURSES IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Recognize Value of Safety Program.

High schools throughout Illinois have expanded their automobile driving and trafic safety instruction programs for the semester to open next month. Educators have recognized training in motor car operation as valuable preparation for living [and for avoiding death] in this motorized society.

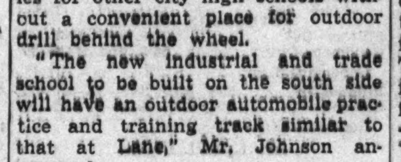
In Chicago Supt. of Schools William H. Johnson said that the Lane Technical High school will continue its course in driving which was inaugurated last year with a secondary purpose of developing classroom studies for other city high schools without a convenient place for outdoor drill behind the wheel.



Stopping distances. Various speeds are indicated in miles per hour on the cars. The white line shows the "thinking distance," the feet traveled before the brake is applied after the need to stop is noted. The black line shows in feet the distance traveled after brakes are applied before car can be halted.

"The new industrial and trade school to be built on the south side will have an outdoor automobile practice and training track similar to that at Lane," Mr. Johnson announced.

Harry H. Harrison, trafic and safety engineer of the Illinois highway department, said last week that 269 high schools have ordered a text, "Man and the Motor Car," edited by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters and published by the state for distribution to the schools at 30 cents a copy. Some illustrations from this text are shown herewith. State highway police and engineers are available for schoolroom lectures.



Miles per gallon shrink as miles per hour increase.

The Chicago Motor club has been active in introducing into high schools a text, "Sportsmanlike Driving," prepared by the American Automobile association. Oscar Gunderson, engineer for the club, said that Evanston, Oak Park, Downers Grove, Hinsdale, and Normal High schools would have classes in driving this fall and that Waukegan and Highland Park have been preparing similar plans.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The sale of $2,000,000 worth of used cars by Ford dealers in the Chicago territory was planned at meetings last week in Chicago, Bloomington, Rock Island, South Bend, Galesburg, and La Salle, attended by 10,000 members of the Ford Motor company's organization in the Chicago branch.

"The factory and various branches throughout the country," said W. K. Edmunds, Chicago manager, "are cooperating in what we believe will be the greatest used car movement in the history of the industry. An intensive advertising campaign is scheduled. Prices on all makes and models in dealer used car stocks will be reduced. The company has set aside $100,000 as salesmen's prizes during the campaign."

F. T. MacKay, assistant branch manager, said that throughout the country 100,000 used cars and trucks will be offered in the September clearance sale.

Appointment of Storrs J. Case as director of advertising and sales promotion for Graham-Paige is announced by Robert C. Graham, executive vice president. R. B. Blanchard, who has been acting advertising manager, has been appointed sales promotion manager.

Pontiac retail deliveries are continuing at a record breaking midsummer rate enabling the company to maintain its position of fifth in the industry for the year, according to C. P. Simpson, general sales manager. During the first ten days of August Pontiac dealers delivered 7,929 new cars, compared to 5,057 for the first ten days of July and 4,335 for the first ten days in August of last year. This figure exceeds the next highest first ten days of August, which was in 1928, by 1,536 cars.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

OGDEN AND CLARK JAM.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—There is need for a trafic policeman at the corner of Ogden avenue and Clark street, especially during the rush hours of 8 to 9 a. m. and 5 to 6 p. m. With all the trafic that meets at that corner, it is a constant fight to try to get a car through the jumble of street cars, taxis, and trucks.

I have waited as long as 5 minutes for a chance to cross over to Lincoln Park West, and even after that time I had to cut off trafic at the risk of my car and even my neck. Occasionally there is a policeman there after 5:30, and on those lucky days trafic crosses smoothly. But let's have one there all the time.

H. RICHARD GRAUMAN.

ACTIVE MOTOR COPS.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Beware of a speed trap on South Chicago avenue between 68th street and 75th street.

While standing at the corner of 71st street and South Chicago avenue, I saw four arrests made at that corner within fifteen minutes. The two motorcycle cops patroling this district hide in the side streets, and then chase after a motorist like a couple wild Indians going after a scalp.

Don't say you weren't warned, if you should happen to become a victim of this speed trap. BENJAMIN MARK.

UNDISCIPLINED TRAFIC.

Toluca, Ill., Aug. 20.—The writer returned Saturday from the vicinity of Hayward, Wis. Over the entire route, a distance of 480 miles, not a single highway patrolman was sighted. The following infractions of safe driving repeatedly were encountered:

1. Straddling the black center line.
2. Passing on hills.
3. Passing on blind curves.
4. Cutting in and out of trafic.
5. Failure to dim headlights.
6. Only one headlamp burning.

Let us have some action from our highway department. R. OGDEN GRANERT.

ABANDONED AUTOS.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Just a line to say that the number of old dilapidated automobiles on the streets parked permanently is increasing, and possibly a drive on your part might help this disturbing situation. F. H. MARKS.

COPS IN WAITING.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—On Sunday night I found our own cute police department conducting a trap of its own at 24th street and Cottage Grove avenue, where, apparently, two cops on motorcycles were operating on 24th street waiting for motorists to go through the stop sign there. If you're out that way take a look. H. M.

FINDS MACHINES MAKE JOBS, LIFT PAY, CUT HOURS

Head of Studebaker Cites Experience.

Mechanization of industry and development of technological processes have reduced hours of employment, provided more jobs, and increased wages, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation, asserted yesterday. He cited the history of his company to substantiate the statement.

Paul G. Hoffman.

In 1870, Hoffman said, the company employed 300 workers. Their average yearly wage was $465, they were paid 16 cents an hour and they worked an average of 60 hours weekly. The company's sales that year were $566,000, or an average of $1,550 per man.

Reviews Early History.

"From 1870 to 1908," he continued, "a steady increase in employment occurred but wages and hours remained almost stationary. In 1908 the corporation employed 3,000 workers, who received an average of $624 yearly and worked 60 hours a week. Their hourly wage rate was 20 cents, the company's total sales for the year were $5,959,790 and average sales per man amounted to $1,986.

"Mechanization commenced in 1909 and has continued at an accelerated rate ever since. By 1936 a total of 7,337 employés was on the company's pay rolls. Their average yearly wage had nearly tripled to $1,698 and the hours worked had dropped to 40 per week for 48 weeks per year.

Hourly Wages Soar.

"In contrast to the hourly wage rate of 20 cents in 1908, workmen last year were paid an average of 87 cents an hour. They received $1,698 for 1,920 hours of work, contrasted with $624 for 3,120 hours in 1908. Sales in 1936 were $68,928,724, or an average of $9,175 per worker.

"As far as Studebaker is concerned, the machine has not enslaved man. It has freed him. It has added to our employment. It has not made robots of workingmen but has made them better, more enlightened citizens who take a greater pride in their workmanship than did the craftsmen of 1870."

COMMERCE GROUP URGES FIGHT ON FEDERAL CONTROL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce said today that "those who are opposed to centralization and regimentation [in the federal government] must be prepared" to continue their fight on certain New Deal policies in the next session of congress.

The weekly Washington review of the chamber, summarizing results of the recently adjourned session, said: "Washington now accepts as a foregone conclusion the assumption that the heated battles over controversial legislation, which broke out in the recent session, will be resumed with even greater intensity when congress reconvenes.

"The major issue at stake is clear-cut and fundamental. It involves the question as to whether further powers, such as are embodied in the wage-hour bill, shall be vested in the federal government at Washington."

BRITISH DRIVE FOR COLLECTION OF SCRAP IRON

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The heavy demand for scrap iron in England, due to the British armament program, has caused the British Iron and Steel federation and the National Federation of Scrap Merchants to launch a national campaign for the collection of scrap iron, which will be sold to British manufacturers, Harry E. Carlson, United States consul at London said in a report made public today by the department of commerce.

The campaign will stimulate the practice of throwing out iron and waste from houses and factories. The sharp increase in the demand for steel and the difficulty of rapidly enlarging output of pig iron occur at the time of marked diversion of supplies to other countries.

MORE FOREIGN GOLD ENGAGED FOR U. S. ACCOUNT

Additional gold engagements for shipment to the United States aggregating $6,685,000 were reported by the New York reserve bank yesterday. The transactions consisted of $4,831,000 engaged in England, $1,700,000 in Belgium, and $718,000 in India. The price of the metal was quoted in London yesterday at $34.78 an ounce, a cent above Friday's price.

Foreign currencies declined slightly in terms of American funds. The pound sterling closed 11-16 cent lower at $4.98, the yen ended .01 cent off and the Shanghai dollar sagged .05 cent. French and Dutch exchanges were also [illegible]

Oil Discovery in Illinois Due to Long Study

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Illinois' latest oil boom, which centers around Olney, differs from some of the other developments in the country in that recent oil discoveries were not the result of chance, but were made after long and painstaking explorations by geologists and scientists, Chicago oil men said yesterday. The preliminary work has been expensive, and for that reason much of the oil production in the new district is in the hands of well established companies.

The Illinois geological department years ago was convinced that there was oil in commercial amounts in undeveloped areas in the state and it carried on a great deal of survey work to locate it. A geological department map made years ago placed the most likely area in the state in the Olney district, which embraces Richland, Clay, Wayne, and Jasper counties. This area includes the Clay City fields, where some of the largest wells of the new discoveries have been brought in.

Companies Continue Work.

Geologists of the petroleum companies took up the exploratory work where the state geologists left off. The Pure Oil company, which has taken a leading part in the development work leading up to the current boom, started its exploratory work in the Olney district in 1928. Other interests previously sought to find oil in the area and wells had been drilled, but never deep enough. These tests went to a depth of only 1,500 feet.

The Pure Oil geologists used the seismograph—a device for recording earthquakes—in their exploratory work. Their system included the placing of dynamite charges 10 to 12 feet in the ground. A seismograph was placed 100 feet or so from the charge. The shock resulting from the explosion of the dynamite would penetrate deep into the earth to be reflected from hard formations somewhat in the manner that radio waves are reflected from the ceiling high above the earth.

Able to Estimate Depth.

These shocks, bouncing back from the hard formations, were recorded by the seismograph, enabling the geologists through mathematical calculations to estimate the depth of the formation and thereby furnishing a clew as to the possible location of oil deposits. In carrying on this work Pure Oil set off thousands of dynamite charges.

As a result of their investigations the Pure Oil geologists were convinced that oil was to be found at a depth of 2,800 feet or more, and in April, 1936, started buying up leases on likely farm lands. The company now has about 300,000 such acres under lease.

Dr. Morris M. Leighton, state geologist, said recently that about 6,000,000 acres are under lease in forty counties. Among other companies reported to have leased large tracts in the southern part of the state are: Texas Oil company; Magnolia Petroleum corporation, a subsidiary of the Socony-Vacuum corporation; Carter Oil company, a subsidiary of Standard of New Jersey; Gulf Oil corporation, the Shell Petroleum corporation, the Wiser Oil company, and the Wicklund Development company.

Illinois Drilling Expensive.

Because drilling for oil in Illinois is expensive, veteran oil men warn the public not to waste money by taking chances in untried ventures. Nature, in forming the oil deposits under the Illinois farm lands millions of years ago, did a good job of hiding them. Consequently, it is said, a large part of the "wild cat" operations—operations undertaken in uncertain fields—are a wild gamble. Purchase of leases and royalties on possible wells also is said to be a gamble when the buyer has no real knowledge of the situation. Many concerns are locating in the oil district for the purchase and sale of leases and royalties, and although some of them may be reputable the inexperienced buyer is taking a big chance when he deals in these highly uncertain developments, oil men asserted.

CHERRY-BURRELL TO VOTE SEPT. 15 ON STOCK SPLITUP

Stockholders of the Cherry-Burrell corporation will be asked to approve a three for one split of common stock at a special meeting Sept. 15, the company announced yesterday. The action would change the present no par common into 600,000 shares of $5 par common.

The split would apply actually to 148,115 outstanding shares of common which would be exchanged for 444,345 shares and leave unissued 155,655 shares.

Stockholders also will be asked to approve changes in the company's charter to make them correspond to changes recently made in the Illinois corporation statute.

Streamliner's Trafic Makes Steady Growth

Although its novelty has long ago worn off, the Milwaukee railroad's Hiawatha, high speed streamlined train, has shown steady gains in the number of paying passengers carried ever since it was placed in service between Chicago and St. Paul-Minneapolis on May 29, 1935, according to statistics issued yesterday by the road.

From May 29, 1935, to Aug. 5, 1937, this train carried 636,689 paying passengers. This figure includes the operations of the Hiawatha when it runs in two sections—which it does much of the summer—and the North Woods Hiawatha in its run over the main line as far as New Lisbon, Wis.

Train's Trafic Figures.

From Jan. 1 to July 31, this year, the train carried 188,497 paying passengers. In the corresponding period of 1936 it carried 149,076, showing a 39,436 increase for 1937. From Aug. 1 to Aug. 15, this year 17,892 paying passengers were carried, against 16,669 in the like 1936 period, a gain of 1,223. The total gain for this year up to Aug. 15 over the corresponding period last year was 40,649.

The number of passengers carried in July—a good summer vacation travel month—in the last three years was as follows: 1935, 20,237; 1936, 29,261, and 1937, 34,333.

Gross revenues of the train from Jan. 1 to July 31, 1937, were $890,255. These did not include dining and buffet car receipts. Revenues per train mile, excluding dining and buffet, were $3.85. The cost of operation per train mile was $1.23, leaving a profit of $2.62 a train mile.

Explains Basis of Cost.

The operating cost includes full allowance for interest, depreciation, and maintenance of equipment. It does not include a proportionate share of the track expenses, taxes, solicitation, and miscellaneous costs because it is difficult to allocate properly such charges against the operation of a single train.

Gross revenues of the train for the first two years of its operation totaled more than $2,600,000.

The train is still a nightly entertainment feature for north shore residents who turn out in large numbers to watch it go by. In the latter part of the week these railroad "fans" have been witnessing a regular parade of high speed trains, consisting of the regular Hiawatha traveling in two sections, the North Woods Hiawatha, and the new fast train from Mason City, Ia., to Chicago.

APPEAL TRUSTEE APPOINTMENT FOR UTILITIES POWER

An appeal from a recent order of Federal Judge William H. Holly appointing Willoughby G. Walling trustee for the Utilities Power and Light corporation was filed with the clerk of the Circuit Court of Appeals here yesterday.

The petition was filed by Utilities Power, Atlas corporation, Associated Investing corporation, debenture holders, and class A and common stockholders. Walling was named Aug. 15. Judge Holly allowed 15 days in which to appeal. Substantially all security holders opposed the appointment, but the action was favored by the Securities and Exchange commission.

Yesterday's petition asserted that in appointing Walling Judge Holly "abused" his discretionary power at the sole request of the SEC "which" does not have a substantial interest in the proceedings."

INDUSTRY INDEX ADVANCES AGAIN IN LAST WEEK

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Industrial activity continued to recover slowly this week, with cotton manufacturing and electric power output the biggest gainers. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index moved up to 104.4 per cent of the 1929-'30 average from 103.2 last week and 95.1 a year ago.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-'30 as 100, compared as follows:

LABOR BOARD CITES BETHLEHEM STEEL FOR 'UNFAIR METHODS'

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The National Labor Relations board issued a complaint today accusing the Bethlehem Steel corporation of unfair labor practices intended to deny its employés the right to organize and bargain collectively.

The board announced it would conduct a hearing at Franklin Boro, Pa., Sept. 8, on the complaint which charged the corporation and the Bethlehem Steel company, a subsidiary, dominated an organization in their fourteen plants known as the "plan of employé representation." Company domination of unions is forbidden by the Wagner labor relations act.

The complaint further charged that other unfair practices were employed at three plants. The board said its hearing also would involve a petition requesting it to determine whether the 55,000 Bethlehem employés want the steel workers organizing committee to represent them. That committee is allied with John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization.

Will Call 7,500 Witnesses.

New Cumberland, W. Va., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Officials attending a labor board inquiry into the Weirton Steel company's labor relations prepared to dig in for the winter today.

William T. Fahey, attorney for the Employé's Security league, which is accused of maintaining a "hatchet gang" to attack C. I. O. members, said the case could not be completed this year.

"Mr. Fahey is conservative," observed Clyde A. Armstrong, counsel for the company. "We'll call 7,500 witnesses if necessary."

WASHER FIRM SUBMITS PLAN TO REORGANIZE

A plan of reorganization for the Automatic Washer company of Newton, Ia., was submitted to stockholders yesterday for vote Sept. 23. It calls for a reduction in the company's capital to $383,070 from $983,940, which would eliminate a balance sheet deficit and create a surplus.

Under the proposal 180,000 shares of new $3 par common stock would be created, which would be exchanged on the following basis: Three new shares for each old share of convertible preferred stock, and one new share for each ten shares of old common. In addition, common stockholders would be given the right to buy additional new common shares at $4 a share, in the ratio of 1⅛ new shares for each 10 of the old. Officers and directors would be given the right to purchase 4,000 shares at $4 each up to Dec. 31, 1938.

Coal Union and Operators Agree on Illinois Contract

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Joe Ozanic, president of the Progressive Miners of America, announced today that an agreement on a contract had been reached today with the Coal Producers Association of Illinois. The agreement provides for a $5 daily basic wage scale, the same as contained in the United Mine Workers of America contract.

Hits Air Line Plan for Joint Sleeper Plane

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—An application of the United Air Lines and the Western Air Express to operate through sleeper plane service from New York to Los Angeles was termed an illegal agreement today by Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the postoffice department.

Karl A. Crowley.

Under present operating agreements United passengers westbound change planes at Salt Lake City, boarding Western Air Express ships for Los Angeles. Western Air picks up passengers at Los Angeles and transfers them to United at Salt Lake City. The companies proposed the operation of sleeper planes from the west coast to New York, using the facilities of both air lines.

Sees Danger of Monopoly.

Crowley said the need for eliminating a change of planes by passengers at Salt Lake City was not as important as the companies asserted, and added that the contract contained monopoly dangers. He said United would virtually "swallow" Western Air under the agreement through complicated provisions for use and supervision of planes on the joint transcontinental route.

"It is clearly the intent of congress," Crowley said, "that monopoly in the air transport services of the United States should not be permitted.

Argues Effect on Air Mail.

"If the proposed contract should be approved, similar arrangements would be made by the three larger aviation companies with smaller air mail contractors, which would necessarily result in complete control of the air transport industry and of the carriage of mail by airplane becoming concentrated in the hands of a few large monopolistic corporations.

"No agreement which may result in the creation of such a situation should receive the approval of the postoffice department and no such agreement is within the letter or spirit of the air mail act. I am of the opinion that the contract entered into between United Air Lines Transport corporation and Western Air Express corporation is contrary to the provisions of the amended air mail act of 1934."

OFFICIALS ARE SILENT.

Officials of the United Air Lines at the general offices in Chicago withheld comment yesterday on the opinion of Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the postoffice department, terming the proposed sleeper plane agreement between the company and Western Air Express "illegal and monopolistic."

ILLINOIS SETS UP NEW FORM FOR UTILITY REPORTS

The Illinois commerce commission has formulated a new uniform classification of accounts for financial reports of electric and gas companies operating in the state, James M. Slattery, chairman of the commission, announced yesterday. The utility companies will be required to use the new classification after Jan. 1, 1938.

The system is similar to methods used in at least twenty-one other states, Slattery said, and should simplify bookkeeping of companies doing business in more than one state. The chairman also predicted that the new classification would make reports of the companies easier for the public and investors to understand.

Wheat Lower on Rainfall in Argentina

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the September delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$1.04¼	$1.06⅜	$1.00¾
Corn	.94¼	.95¼	1.06⅛
Oats	.28¾	.28¾	.42⅛
Rye	.78¼	.79¼	.83¼
Soy beans [Oct.]	.95⅞	.96¼	....

Reports of beneficial rains in parts of the drouth area in Argentina were largely responsible for a break of more than 2 cents a bushel in wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Final trades were at the low levels of the day in the world's leading markets, with net losses averaging about 2½ cents a bushel.

September corn met with liquidation by longs and dropped more than 2 cents at the extreme, but shorts became fairly aggressive buyers later, causing a rally. Final trades were 1¼ cents lower. December and May corn, after dropping a cent a bushel to new low prices since June 30, 1936, recovered part of the lost ground and closed ⅜ to ½ cent lower.

Corn Futures Decline.

December corn touched 62 cents a bushel on the early break and closed at 62½ cents. Corn for October delivery sold early at 79 cents and later at 76 cents, closing at the latter figure, or 18¼ cents under the September future.

Aggregate trading in wheat futures was not large, as professional operators were disposed to await additional information on the extent of rains in Argentina before taking a stand on either side of market. The official Argentine weather forecast was for showers over the week-end.

The change for the better in weather conditions in Argentina curtailed the European demand yesterday for both American and Canadian cash wheat and no sales of consequence were reported.

Corn Shipped from Texas.

Reports that new Texas cash corn was now en route to Chicago and that southern Illinois had sold some new No. 4 corn for shipment by Oct. 5 to the local market had some effect on the September delivery. The trade had reports that shelling of the new corn crop would start in parts of Oklahoma next week and would be under way by the middle of September in Missouri and Tennessee. This tended to shake the confidence of holders of the September future during the early trading, although No. 4 grades of corn cannot be delivered on future contracts.

Continued favorable weather and crop reports were reported to have been largely responsible for the early decline in December and May corn. The forecast indicated generally favorable weather conditions would prevail this week for rapid maturity of the new crop.

Rye futures declined as much as 1⅜ cents in sympathy with wheat. Soy beans closed ⅝ to 1¼ cents a bushel lower, with all deliveries in new low ground for the season.

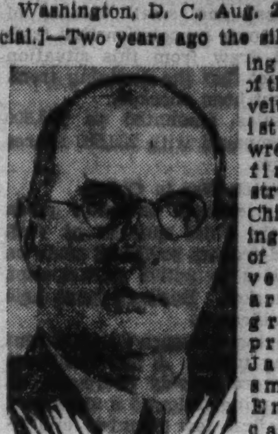
CHINESE SILVER MAY BE DUMPED AND PRICE FALL

Fear U. S. Program Will Suffer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Two years ago the silver buying program of the Roosevelt administration wrecked the financial structure of China, forcing her off of the silver standard and greatly profiting Japanese smugglers. England came to China's rescue, commissioning Sir Frederick Leith-Ross to put her on a managed currency basis.



Sir Frederick Leith-Ross.

Now the tables are turned. There is grave apprehension in treasury circles that China, with a great war on her hands, will be forced to dump her white metal and wreck the United States silver purchase program.

While admitting this concern over the Chinese situation, treasury officials nevertheless are increasing their silver purchases in a sharply declining world market in the hope, apparently, of pegging the price and averting further losses on the huge silver stocks already acquired.

London Price Drops.

The London price yesterday fell to 38½ cents an ounce, the lowest for the year, due to heavy selling by India. India in turn was selling because of fear that China would dump her silver on the world market. American silver speculators bought heavily in the London market, for in New York the treasury was still paying 44¾ cents an ounce, offering them particularly attractive profits.

As of March 4, 1937, the last date for which official figures are available, the treasury had acquired 1,188,266,948 ounces of silver since Dec. 31, 1933, when President Roosevelt issued his original silver buying proclamation under the Pittman agreement, sole fruit of the London economic conference. Under that proclamation purchases had totaled 125,828,709 ounces; under the silver purchase act of June 19, 1934, a total of 949,441,501 ounces had been purchased, and the total acquired under the silver nationalization decree of Aug. 9, 1934, was 112,996,733 ounces.

Average Price 55 Cents.

The average cost of all this silver, the buying of which artificially boosted the world price, was about 55 cents an ounce, while the world price is now 38½ cents. Thus the loss to the United States taxpayers was 17½ cents an ounce. There are no official figures on purchases since March 4, 1937, but the treasury statement shows that, since then, the silver stocks have increased from $1,302,000,000 to $1,378,000,000, or $76,000,000. Figured on the monetary value of silver at $1.29 cents an ounce this would indicate the purchase of an-

STOCKS DROWSE AS WEEK ENDS; CHANGES SMALL

Gains and Losses About Equally Divided.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—A highly irregular trend characterized dealings on the New York Stock exchange today as the list staggered through a dull and uninteresting session. Little change took place in prices, although one set of averages registered minute advances in the three major groups.

Few Saturdays in the stock market have matched today for lack of trading interest and small volume of sales. The only consolation that traders could draw from this situation was the fact that the declining trend had at least been checked.

Watch War in China.

The far eastern situation again claimed the chief interest of Wall street and traders preferred seats on the sidelines to active participation in the market. Business news held little significance.

A steadying influence was apparent in opening trades. A few fractional declines were quickly overcome, although trading followed a slow pace after the first few minutes, and irregular movements took place in subsequent dealings. United States Steel started at 108½, a gain of a quarter point on a block of 50 shares. By the end of the first hour the stock was at 109 but there it lost its momentum and faded to 108⅝, showing a gain for the day of only ⅛ point.

Rails Recover Moderately.

Rails staged a modest recovery, led by Southern Pacific and Pennsylvania, each of which advanced fractionally.

Pullman reached a new low for the year with a decline of more than a point. Deere lost an early gain of a point and Sears-Roebuck gave up an early advantage to close unchanged. Montgomery Ward advanced a fraction.

Chemicals displayed signs of strength. Allied Chemical rose more than 2 points on one sale and du Pont gained 1½ points. Union Carbide climbed a point.

Standard Oil of New Jersey and Socony advanced fractionally. A. M. Byers rose in response to the declaration of a dividend on its preferred stock.

FEAR CHINA MAY DUMP SILVER AND HIT U. S. PROGRAM

other 58,000,000 ounces since March 4.

Thus the net loss on 1,246,266,948 ounces at 17½ cents an ounce would be $218,096,715. And the world price, which was about 45 cents an ounce when the silver purchase program was initiated, is down to 38½ cents. One of the objectives of the silver purchase act of 1934 was to increase the price of silver to its monetary value of $1.29 an ounce.

More May Be Purchased.

The alternative was to increase the monetary stock of silver to one-third the gold stock. Since we now have on hand about 12½ billion dollars in gold and only one billion, 378 million in silver, another 2 billion, 788 million dollars worth of silver would have to be acquired to bring the ratio up to one-third the gold stock.

Further declines in the world price would decrease the average cost of the treasury's silver stock, although it was still paying 44¾ cents in New York yesterday, but the lower the world price goes, the greater will be the loss on the gigantic stock already acquired at artificial prices. It was in the hope of preventing such further losses, financial experts believe, that the treasury undertook to support the price by heavy purchases yesterday.

Besides its buying activities in the threatening world market, the United States is obligated, under an agreement announced July 9, to purchase "substantial amounts" of silver from the Central Bank of China and to make available to that bank dollar exchange for the stabilization of the Chinese currency. The dollar exchange is to be used for the purchase of American gold, to be retained here as a reserve against China's managed currency.

How much silver the United States is acquiring from China under this arrangement is not known. At the close of the last session of congress Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] demanded complete information respecting the Chinese gold-for-silver arrangement, but the treasury told him that it would not be in the "public interest" to make such information available.

The official announcement said that Chinese silver would be purchased with gold "under conditions mutually acceptable." China presumably will have the whip hand, for if the United States does not meet her demands she can dump her reserves on the world market, with disastrous effects on the United States treasury.

Investigation Demanded.

Senator John G. Townsend [R., Del.], a member of the banking and currency committee, introduced a resolution in the last session demanding an investigation of the operations of the silver purchase act and the circumstances leading to its passage. The resolution got nowhere, but further demands for an investigation are expected to be made at the next session.

The bill was passed and signed by President Roosevelt after tremendous agitation and propaganda on the part of New York speculators and senators from the western silver producing states. The treasury still pays 77 cents an ounce for newly mined domestic silver. This subsidy to the miners of half a dozen sparsely populated states has aggregated more than $25,000,000.

Japanese Smugglers Profit.

One result of the gigantic silver buying program was the draining of China's reserves by Japanese smugglers, who reaped vast profits by selling it to the United States treasury through London. When China nationalized silver in the fall of 1935 and instituted the death penalty for smugglers it was estimated that Japan had drained out more than 60,000,000 ounces.

Japan's economic reviews boasted that her operations in Manchukuo were enhanced by these profits, and it was the drain of silver out of China that enabled Japan to win autonomy of five northern Chinese provinces adjacent to her puppet state.

CHICAGO SHOWS MORE JOBS, PAY DECLINE IN JULY

Survey Records 418,605 at Work in Month.

Employment in Chicago during July increased slightly over June but total wages paid were a little lower, Peter T. Swanish, chief statistician of the Illinois department of labor, reported yesterday. He said 4,032 establishments reported employment of 418,605 workers, an increase of 0.2 per cent, and that wages paid by the group declined 1 per cent.

Peter T. Swanish.

For the Chicago metropolitan area percentage changes were the same, 4,349 establishments reporting total employment of 458,053 workers, an increase of 0.2 per cent. Wages paid declined 1 per cent.

Industries Showing Gains.

Industrial groups in Chicago reporting gains in both employment and wages for July over June included: transportation equipment, building and repair; paper goods, printing and publishing; food, beverages, and tobacco; public utilities; building construction and contracting; miscellaneous nonmanufacturing.

Groups reporting increases in employment but decreases in wages were: stone, clay and glass; metals and machinery; wood and allied products; lether and related goods, and services.

Declines in both wages and pay rolls were reported by rubber and rubber products industries, chemicals and allied products, textiles, clothing and millinery, miscellaneous manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade.

State Employment Rises.

For Illinois as a whole employment in July rose .4 per cent over June, a contraseasonal rise, while pay rolls declined 1.9 per cent, a less than normal decrease for the period, Swanish said.

Employment at the end of the month was 13.5 per cent ahead of July, 1936, and wages were 25.4 per cent higher, he added. The employment index for all reporting industries rose to 90.1 in July this year from 79.4 a year ago. The wage index climbed to 82.5 from 65.8.

The report covered 6,266 manufacturing and nonmanufacturing enterprises which employed 659,998 workers.

Average weekly earnings for the month were $26.92. Men's wages averaged $29.55 weekly and women's wages were $15.75.

Investors' Guide

Bonds—Buying and Switching.

Two interesting viewpoints on bonds were expressed recently by reputable investment advisory concerns. One advised purchase of "credit risks" or second grade bonds; the other advised shifting investments from second grade to high quality issues.

At first glance, the two views appear to be contradictory. Actually, they only illustrate the different objectives people have when they invest money. One speaks the language of the man who is speculatively inclined. The other speaks the language of the more conservative investor seeking maximum safety of principal and interest.

In a study of the London bond market, the one advisory service gives an opinion catering to the person looking more for appreciation in value than for bonds of top quality. It sees greater "opportunities" in credit risk bonds.

Its conclusion is based on figures showing that on previous occasions action in the London market has preceded similar movements in the American bond market. It points out that market prices of lower grade English bonds as a whole have risen much more sharply in the last year or two, and that a similar situation is to be expected in the American market during the next year or so.

The Brookmire corporation, on the other hand, advises investors to be on the lookout for opportunities to switch bond holdings from second grade to high quality issues.

As both agree, prices of lower grade bonds usually advance much more sharply than prices of higher grade bonds in the upswing of the economic cycle. Likewise, they fall much farther and faster on the downward swing.

This market action is not difficult to understand. Two principal factors affect prices of second grade bonds—money rates and the ability of the debtor to pay interest and principal when due. In the case of top grade bonds, money rates are the principal factor influencing prices.

The natural result is wider fluctuations in prices of lower grade bonds in relation to changes in general business conditions. When business is at high levels, lower grade bonds tend to sell nearly as high as the better grade issues.

Participating and Nonparticipating.

Insurance policies may be either participating or nonparticipating. Holders of participating policies share to a certain extent in the profits of the company selling the insurance. Nonparticipating policy holders do not share in the profits.

Both classes of policy holders pay specified rates for insurance. Usually the rates on participating policies are higher, but the actual cost of insurance is reduced, however, for the participating policy holder by means of dividends paid to him by the company out of surplus earnings.

As would be expected, mutual companies usually issue participating policies. Stock companies usually issue nonparticipating policies or policies with a limited degree of participation by policy holders.

The fact that a policy is participating does not always mean that it is more attractive than a nonparticipating policy. Competition between insurance companies is keen and rates are usually not far out of line with each other. In insurance, as in most other things, the buyer usually gets what he pays for in quality and safety.

COTTON PRICES RALLY BRISKLY FROM NEW LOWS

Close Is at Small Gains for Day.

Cotton rallied sharply near the close of trading in leading North American markets yesterday to score gains ranging from 0.01 to 0.17 cent a pound after penetrating new low ground since 1933 earlier in the short week-end session.

The brisk upturn, one of the sharpest in several weeks of almost uninterrupted decline, was attributed to short covering by traders who wanted to get out of the market over the week-end in view of uncertainty over the federal cotton loan and the far eastern political situation.

May Announce Terms Tomorrow.

Agriculture department spokesmen said yesterday that announcement of the terms for the cotton loan and subsidy payment program probably would be made tomorrow.

Hedging sales by southern producers was said to have been responsible at least in part for the decline early in the session. Liverpool and the spinning trade were understood to have absorbed the selling. The closing rally brought Chicago prices 0.01 to 0.08 cent above the close Friday. In New York prices advanced 0.06 to 0.17 cent with October contracts registering the peak gain.

Losses in cotton for the week ranged up to about 0.30 cent a pound, or $1.50 a bale, despite the rally yesterday. The decline for the week, however, was smaller than that of the preceding week.

Spot Cotton Advances.

Middling cotton for immediate delivery advanced 0.10 to 0.15 cent a pound in leading markets yesterday. The final price in New York was 9.70 cents a pound, compared with 9.65 cents in New Orleans and 9.40 cents at Galveston and Houston.

CHICAGOANS PAY DEARLY FOR U. S. SWINE CONTROL

Hog and Pork Prices Now Highest in Country.

Chicagoans and consumers in nearby suburbs are paying a higher price for the program to hold down production of pork in the United States than any other consumers in the country, a review of the nation's leading live stock and meat markets for the last few weeks disclosed yesterday.

Costs of live hogs and wholesale markets for pork here have been higher than any other place in the country most of the time for several weeks, running substantially higher than in some cities in the east, where consumers under normal conditions pay a higher price for meat because the hogs and pork must be shipped from Chicago and other big middle west markets. However, slaughtering here has dropped so low that supplies are not sufficient at times to take care of the needs of the city.

Receipts Abnormally Low.

Receipts of hogs at Chicago this month are running the smallest on record for August. The decline in volume has not been as severe at other points. Volume here is about 12 per cent of the total slaughter under federal inspection for the country, whereas before the pig killing program Chicago received about 16 per cent.

The east is getting large amounts of pork from other countries, only part of which is sent inland as far as Chicago. Live hogs and pork are coming here from districts in this country which never before shipped to Chicago. While this helps to relieve the acute shortage, it means that consumers here must pay a higher price than the sections from which shipments are made, areas ordinarily supplied with pork and hogs from here.

East Sends Hogs Here.

Live hogs came from several districts of Ohio and some shipments of heavy hogs came from markets as far east as Buffalo, selling here at prices that not only paid for the freight and market cost but made a profit for the owner over the Buffalo market.

At the close of last week top live costs of hogs at Chicago were $12.10 per 100 pounds, which was 90 cents under the preceding week's close, but excepting Pittsburgh, which had $12.15, it was the highest of the principal markets.

Frequently during the last two weeks top grades here have sold higher than in Buffalo and Pittsburgh, which under normal conditions are 40 to 50 cents above markets in the middle west. The Indianapolis top late last week was $11.80; Cleveland, $11.90; Cincinnati, $11.75; Buffalo, $12; East St. Louis, $11.75; Kansas City, $11.35; Omaha, $11.40; St. Joseph, $11.40; Sioux City, $11.40, and St. Paul, $11.50.

New York Imports Pork.

New York in the four weeks ended Aug. 21 imported 4,132,164 pounds of pork from other countries, sufficient for about 1,000,000 persons without assistance from American farmers.

There was a sharp break in pork and hog prices here and in the east last week as supplies of new crop light hogs increased somewhat. Pork loins here closed at $17.50 to $24.50 per 100 pounds, off 50 cents to $3.50. Costs of live hogs declined 70 to 90 cents, but still were relatively the highest in the country.

Most classes of steers advanced 15 to 35 cents during the week, the top at $18.25 setting a new 18 year high for August. The bulk of lambs sold steady with a week ago, but ewes showed 25 cents losss.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission authorized the Great Northern railway company today to continue until Sept. 30 reduced freight rates on live stock shipped out of drouth areas in Montana and North Dakota.

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Thom McAn stores have advanced prices on men's shoes from $3.45 to $3.50 a pair and women's shoes from $3.65 to $3.95. The mark-ups are general in all stores in the chain.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR ORE KEEPS SHIPPING ACTIVE

July's Consumption Is Ahead of June.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Ore consumption kept pace with shipments last month when furnaces absorbed 5,336,487 tons, and lake vessel operators, after checking over figures compiled by the Lake Superior Iron Ore association, reiterated today that this season's ore movement will reach 60,000,000 tons. With ten additional furnaces blown in following resumption of operations at strikebound plants, ore consumption was 596,754 tons heavier than in the preceding month.

Ore on hand in furnace yards Aug. 1 totaled 25,299,841 tons and Lake Erie docks were holding 3,851,416 tons. However, surplus stocks were only about 4,000,000 tons above those of a year ago.

Furnaces are consuming ore in larger volume than they were in the banner season of 1929. Although 196 stacks were in blast that year, and against only 155 this season, there is little difference in consumption figures.

With consumption averaging about 5,000,000 tons a month, it appears certain that present top speed shipping activity will continue for some time. Current strengthening of steel scrap prices also is expected to result in an increased ore movement. Steelmakers, according to reports, are now using a larger percentage of ore and a smaller proportion of scrap in the mix for the furnaces.

Grain Shipments Small.

Grain shipments from Fort William and Port Arthur were light in the week ended Aug. 21, vessels loading 608,758 bushels of wheat, 94,945 bushels of oats, 324,256 bushels of barley, and 59,650 bushels of rye.

The movement from grain fields to lake elevators was small and stocks are the lowest in many years. At the close of the week elevators were holding 4,461,286 bushels of wheat, 186,115 bushels of oats, 657,040 bushels of barley, 285,467 bushels of flaxseed, and 256,427 bushels of rye. Figures at the corresponding period last season were 16,782,849 bushels of wheat, 1,630,862 bushels of oats, 1,597,748 bushels of barley, 90,155 bushels of flaxseed, and 1,228,716 bushels of rye.

WAR AND LIGHTER BUYING WEAKENS COMMODITIES

Concern over the far eastern war situation and lack of demand from large consumers caused prices of most commodities to turn lower last week. Among the staples losing ground were wheat, lard, hides, cotton, cottonseed oil, eggs, coffee, silk, and most metals. Advances were recorded by cocoa, butter, and a few cereals.

Most domestic futures markets were closed yesterday for the usual Saturday holiday. In the few markets open, cottonseed oil advanced 0.07 to 0.11 cent a pound. Wool tops were unchanged to a shade lower. Export copper eased about 0.11 cent a pound.

U. S. HAS LARGE ECONOMIC STAKE IN FAR EAST WAR

Trade and Investments Total Many Millions.

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The United States has an economic interest in the Sino-Japanese conflict which is based on a trade volume with both countries aggregating about $500,000,000 a year, and investments estimated between $450,000,000 and $877,000,000.

In the Shanghai area alone, where bombings and artillery barrages have wrought widespread death and destruction, about $100,000,000 in physical property is owned by American companies.

In 1935, the trade between this country and China and Japan amounted to $458,538,000 and it was $497,191,000 in 1936. The 1937 exports to these countries have been far ahead of last year.

Balance Favors United States.

Exports to Japan in 1936 were $204,312,000 and imports were $171,720,000, a balance in this country's favor of $32,592,000. Exports to China totaled $46,819,000 and imports were $74,339,000, a Chinese balance of $27,520,000. The "invisible' balances—freights on shipments of merchandise in American vessels, interest payments, and such—tend to even up the Chinese-American trade.

With its ever-expanding industrialization program, Japan is the United States' third largest customer, following only Great Britain and Canada. It is the largest market for American cotton, iron and steel. China, which has been much slower to industrialize, has been an increasingly more profitable market for finished materials, machinery, tools, and airplanes.

Concerned About Japan.

American business regards the future with much conjecture particularly in the case of Japan. The effects of the neutrality law, if it is applied, on future trade are still problematical. But if trade is curtailed, and these countries are forced to look elsewhere for their materials, there is the possibility that such shifts in trade may be permanent.

Japan's mounting American trade deficit, and the heavy flow of Japanese gold to this country are primary objects of consideration for American investors. Japan has used the gold not only to finance purchases in the United States, but also to build up sterling balances for British purchases, selling gold at the New York rate, which has been higher than the London free market quotation.

MESSENGER BOY: NEW HANDY MAN FOR THE NATION

He'll Serve You Anything but Processes.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Miss Evelyn Feinberg is general secretary in her father's scrap steel yard at 2035 43d street, and the yard is a long way from places where ice cream sodas can be bought. The nearest thing to a soda fountain, says Miss Feinberg, is the fire hydrant.

"He was in uniform," she explained, "and I thought he was bringing a telegram.

"Instead, he handed me a big sack. I opened it, and in it were three cartons. Not one, but three chocolate ice cream sodas!

"They were from Bobby," she said, referring to Robert McLain, who works in a plumbing shop at 5100 West 16th street, Cicero. "He can think of the most novel things."

Bobby is Miss Feinberg's gentleman friend. He had telephoned her, she explained, and she had sighed over the weather. He had said "So?" like that, and telephoned a telegraph company.

Original? Pooh! Pooh!

Miss Feinberg thought it mighty original, but the company didn't. Nothing, they say, is original any more. Why, you should just hear the requests made of their messenger boys. . . .

Now, just the other week, three young women on Astor street needed a fourth at bridge. Did the telegraph company have a bright, clean boy who knew how to count honor tricks, bid and keep score? The company did and the four bridge players—made a long afternoon of it.

And then there was the political luminary who had a new speech and wanted to try it out. Was there a nice, bright telegraph boy who might pose as the average mind. There was.

Little That They Don't Do.

There's really little the boys don't do, an official explained. They sing birthday greetings over the telephone, they act as clerks in offices, as chauffeurs, as nurses for the baby while Mamma goes shopping and even as motion picture reviewer. This last is the result of out-of-town requests from firms who want a sleuth to sit in at theaters to see if certain advertising films are being run.

Not long ago a Chicagoan who is divorced from his wife wanted to see their small son. He had a messenger go get the child, bring him to a loop hotel, and later return him.

Quite frequently, the official explained, the messengers act as Cupid. A boy has a date with a girl to meet him at a loop department store entrance. He is detained. So he calls the telegraph company, gives a minute description of the girl, and a messenger meets her, and entertains her until the boy's arrival.

A Baffling Request.

Occasionally, however, the request baffles the messengers. Such was the case when a boy was asked to carry a white duck in a bird cage to a guest at the Drake hotel. He thought it most unamusing. Nor could the messenger who did nothing the night of the Braddock-Louis fight except hold a gentleman's straw hat understand that.

Putting people on trains, meeting strangers, conducting tours of the city, that's all nothing, nothing. Nor is the common practice of appearing in Trafic court to pay a speeder's fine. But the Western Union company does balk at one thing:

"We get all sorts of requests from lawyers to serve legal processes," an official said, "but we just won't let our boys do it."

Henceforth Postal Telegraph also will balk, but at kisses rather than warants.

A jaunty New Yorker telegraphed a birthday kiss to a friend vacationing at Atlantic City Tuesday, and the messenger who delivered it—Jimmy McGuigan—received a dime tip from the girl who was kissed. But such service now comes to an end.

"Our messengers are such young boys," explained Mrs. Katharine Bleecker Meigs, director of the company's personal service bureau, "that it might lead to all sorts of difficulties."

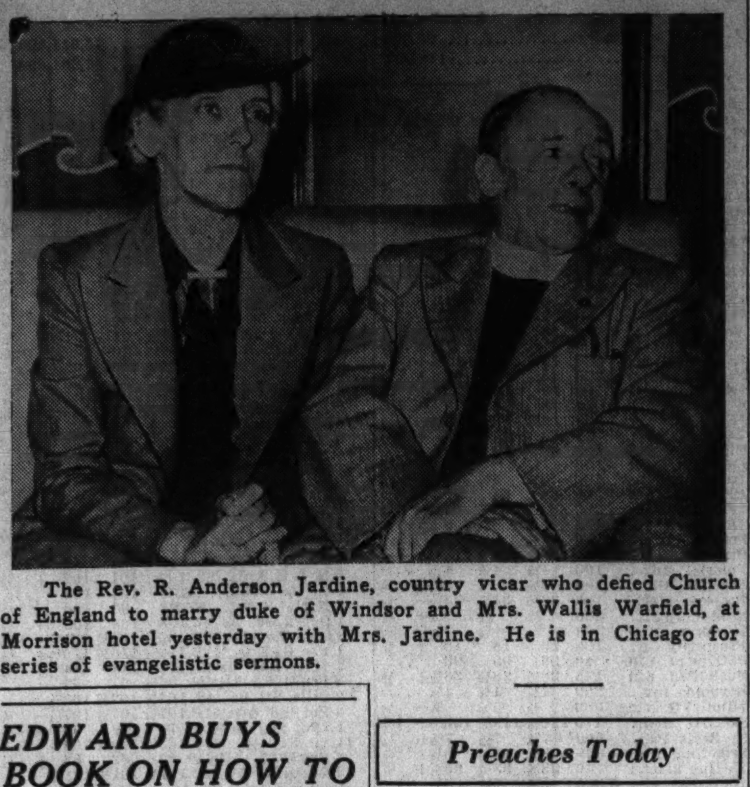
TELLS OF WINDSOR'S WEDDING



The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, country vicar who defied Church of England to marry duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, at Morrison hotel yesterday with Mrs. Jardine. He is in Chicago for series of evangelistic sermons.

EDWARD BUYS BOOK ON HOW TO TRAIN HIS DOGS

NOETSCH, Austria, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, bought a book on canine education today and started to wrestle in earnest with his dog troubles.

At the same time, the gatekeeper at Castle Wasserleonburg, where the duke and duchess are spending their honeymoon, put up a sign: "Beware! Ugly dogs!"

Tasks Windsor faced as a dog trainer included:

1. Teaching the dogs to follow "at heel." Short winded detectives who accompany the duke and duchess on their strolls have had to spend a good deal of their time rounding up Schnucki and Pucki, the two Cairn terriers.

2. Putting a stop to chicken, cat and sheep chasing and oxen scaring.

[The dogs chase all domestic animals on the castle ground. Their yapping upsets oxen in Noetsch streets. Farmers don't like it.]

3. Housebreaking.

LOSES TWO OIL FORTUNES; DIES ON POOR FARM

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 28.—(AP)—John R. Ware, who made and lost two oil fortunes in Ohio, died in the county poor farm here Thursday, relatives said tonight.

Mrs. Della Singleton, a niece, who arrived today from Louisville, said Ware went to the poor farm after he had broken down attempting to build a third oil fortune in Oklahoma. She said he proudly refused help from his family.

Ware was a young Baptist minister in Kentucky when the new oil fields of Pennsylvania and Ohio opened, she said. Going to Findlay, O., he began drilling wells and soon built a large fortune. He lost it, accumulated another and lost that. Twenty years ago he came to Healdton, Okla.

Mrs. Singleton said Ware took a great interest in Ohio politics and numbered many political dignitaries among his personal friends.

Preaches Today

The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine of Darlington, England, came to Chicago yesterday to tell of the wedding of the duke and duchess of Windsor. Their romance will be his theme for a series of seven evangelistic sermons which will begin this afternoon at the Chicago Gospel tabernacle, 825 Barry avenue.

At the Morrison hotel yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Jardine, the chubby, polite little vicar told of performing the marriage ceremony for the former king of England and Mrs. Wallis Warfield [Simpson], which resulted in his resignation from his parish.

The vicar will return to England for farewell services attending his resignation Oct. 1 and will come back to America in midwinter for an extended tour.

MOTHER CAREY'S 'CHICKENS' FIND HAVEN IN STORM

Beacon Hse. Leader Aids Destitute.

(This is the second of a series of stories about the work and adventures of head residents of west side settlements. Another will appear next Sunday.)

BY MILDRED WILDS.

An old store building blackened with the soot from nearby factories, its dusty bricks crumbling in spots where the weather has beaten it, is the home of Mrs. Georgia Carey at 1444 South Ashland avenue. She has resided there for ten years within a stone's throw of a railroad track and overlooking a hazy panorama of smokestacks. She resides there because she has work to do.

Mrs. Georgia Carey.

When Mrs. Carey sits in her tiny office she can see out the half open door that sags on its hinges. Little girls with blonde pigtails and bright plaid dresses smile at her when she looks up. Boys in patched pants yell in the door, "Can I come to see the magician tonight?" and a little colored boy dragging along in shoes too big for him wants to know "Isn't we gonna have school no mo'?"

Refuge for All.

Mrs. Carey answers them all. Questions, answers, and friendly smiles are a part of the work she does all alone at Beacon house, where she is director, head resident, teacher, counselor, and mother to some 500 children who play on the worn stone step because it's the one place from which they don't get chased away.

When Beacon house was started in 1927 by the church extension board of the Chicago presbytery Mrs. Carey, a slight woman with blue eyes and a halo of burnished copper colored hair, was invited to come to see what she could do with the tough young gangs in the neighborhood.

The settlement or junior church had its origin back in 1858 when the Third Presbyterian church founded a mission Sunday school. This grew into the Reunion Presbyterian church and in 1892 the name was changed to Ninth Presbyterian church. In 1927, after the organization was disbanded, the church extension board took over the work of the youth training and called it "the Ninth Presbyterian center." Two years ago the name was changed to Beacon house.

Scene of Misfortunes.

Mrs. Carey came into the neighborhood, where she has been robbed nine times, armed with nothing except an interest and sympathy for people. When she was a little girl in Kansas City, Mo., she walked a mile to a Sunday school where she could sit with the "poor kids," and when she was older she did volunteer work there at what was called a Methodist Mission Sunday school.

After years doing office work and juggling business figures Mrs. Carey came to Chicago to help solve the problems of unhappy little figures in torn trousers. She studied religious education at Moody Bible institute and worked her way through the Presbyterian Training school by organizing boys' and girls' clubs at the Ninth Presbyterian center and then stayed on as head resident.

Here was a neighborhood rampant with racial and national prejudices. Unwritten laws ruled its people. Boys who lived across the viaduct of the B. & O. railroad crossed it at peril of a bloody nose or a sore jaw. Mrs. Carey interested them in playing together and now all people can cross any boundary line to come to the Beacon house playrooms.

Where Men Start Over.

When the bottom fell out of business it punctured holes in a number of pockets of men too old to start all over. Their shelter was the old Clark Street school and there was no church where they felt free to go in a ragged collar. Mrs. Carey started services Sunday afternoons at the settlement for these men and 175 still assemble there for preaching and prayer.

They have hammered nails in broken chairs and manage to keep their assembly room in spic and span order. Nothing disturbs the solemnity and Mrs. Carey tells of two drunken men who came in uninvited one day and caused a confusion in the rear of the room. When the first of these inebriated men punched the other he was ordered out by one of the regular members and questioned. "I did it," apologized the intoxicated one, "because he didn't close his eyes when he prayed."

One of the men who attended the Sunday afternoon service once found a part time job. "I want to do something for the others," he told Mrs. Carey. "Please have a big kettle of steaming Irish stew for them all after the meeting."

Mrs. Carey has tried to arrange a program for every one from the small-

Clothes Make the College Girl—Popular

College girls took notes on the course of style last week in Oak Park when a fashion show of fall clothes at Wieboldt's furnished them with an outline of campus prerequisites. The model student knows that when she goes to college to listen and learn she will also be looked at, and while she is getting an earful of knowledge she wants to be an eyeful for the handsome swain who makes an extracurricular activity of sorority teas. Miss Virginia Olson, 138 South Austin boulevard, Oak Park, will find plenty of southern hospitality at North Carolina university when she goes there in this black hat with a veil subtly covering her curls. Her black crepe dress girdled with satin and fringy new sleeves will be her password for the most hard-to-crash fraternity luncheons. Miss Beth Sebastian, 715 North East avenue, Oak Park, will translate popularity at the University of Wisconsin in terms of black crepe, lace, and pert velvet bows.

OLD RABBIT HILL SCHOOL TO HOLD REUNION TODAY

Teacher Recalls Start 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago Mrs. W. H. Engel, 38 South Monroe street, Hinsdale, was a teacher at Rabbit Hill school, one mile east of Spring road and 31st street. Although close to the metropolitan area, the white frame structure in its acre of playground was typical of those of other rural sections. Today, Mrs. Engel and her former pupils will gather for their annual "round up."

"It does not seem as if so much time has elapsed since I taught at Rabbit Hill," recalled Mrs. Engel. "I quake when I think of the temerity I had in tackling the job for I was equipped with no more than a high school diploma, a teacher's certificate and plenty of determination.

"This year we will hold the reunion at the Butler school which has taken the place of the pioneer institution, and I expect nearly half of the enrolment of 1907 to answer the call.

"The reunion will be our fifth, and each year brings new faces to claim recognition from former classmates. Recently, I was able to locate six of the pupils whom I haven't seen in sixteen years."

Mrs. Engel's former pupils are being asked to bring along their families and baskets of food. The afternoon will be turned over to a long "recess" during which there will be a ball game and races. A roll call will be taken at supper time, after which there will be a program of songs.

St. Casimir Pilgrimage.

Members of St. Casimir parish will make their annual pilgrimage Sunday, Sept. 12, to Holy Hill, Wis. Tickets are available now at the home of Mae Byczynski, 2311 South Wipple street. Reservations must be made by Sept. 5.

HENRY OTTO RETIRES AFTER 36 YEARS IN THE NATIONAL GUARD

A top sergeant who once commanded a regiment—that's Henry M. Otto of Glen Ellyn who retired from the 132 infantry of the Illinois National Guard last week after 36 years of service. Sergt. Otto has just turned 64, which is the compulsory retirement age.

Sergt. H. M. Otto.

Sergt. Otto's "command" of his regiment occurred during the recent encampment of the 33d division at Camp Grant near Rockford. At the instance of Col. Leroy Nelson, regimental commander, all officers of the regiment were supplanted by noncommissioned officers as the regiment was paraded with Sergt. Otto in command.

Otto joined the Illinois National Guard in 1901 when he began service with the First Illinois engineers. From 1909 to 1917 he served with the 2d and 132d infantry, taking part in the Mexican campaign in 1916. In 1917 he was transferred to the ordnance department and went to France, winning the Victory medal with five bars signifying his participation in as many major engagements. He returned to the 132d infantry in 1919 and has served with that regiment ever since. He was an expert marksman for 22 years and has won numerous rifle championships.

Sergt. Otto was retired from the service of the Western Electric company in 1933 after 22 years with the concern. His wife died several years ago. His two children—Henry E. Otto and Mrs. George Knowles—live in Chicago. Sergt. Otto's Glen Ellyn home is at 87 Parkside avenue.

FETE TO DEPICT ST. CHARLES AS IT WAS AND IS

Gala 3 Day Program Opens Saturday.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Touches which distinguished St. Charles from other communities and belie the modern notion that all towns have become standardized to the point where local color has vanished, have been lent to plans for a three day celebration to be held in the suburb, starting Saturday and continuing through Labor day. Many of the activities will take place at the recently improved Pottawatomie park. Proceeds from the celebration, sponsored by the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce, will go to the community chest.

Civic organizations will have booths at the park where the celebration will open Saturday afternoon. A feature of the first day's program will be a Boy Scout demonstration directed by Karl Asplund, said to be the second oldest Scout in years of service in the United States. Mr. Asplund is commissioner of the Shabona council.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

LOTS of folks whose name is O'Malley went to a picnic last Sunday so that all the O'Malleys would get to know each other. The family tree stretches back to 357 A. D., and since then O'Malleys have been knights in armor, king's guardsmen, lawyers, teachers, policemen, and firemen. At the picnic the twentieth century O'Malleys organized a clan. A tug of war tested the strength of the O'Malley policemen and O'Molley firemen. The firemen won. The family of Tom O'Malley, 141 North Stone avenue, La Grange, won a prize as the largest one present. Tom O'Malley was chosen chairman of the clan.

Equestriennes of Oak Park have demonstrated their ability at the game of boots and saddle. They rode in the annual horse show at Camp Kohahna, Maple City, Mich., and came home with prizes. The girls are Barbara Butts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Butts, 730 Linden avenue; Doris and Betty Berry, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Berry, 921 Fair Oaks avenue, and Lois and Patsy Saunders, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Saunders, 1132 Fair Oaks avenue, all of Oak Park.

Rallying from the heat wave, the Village club of Western Springs announces its annual autumn golf tournament for members and their guests to be held Sept. 11 at the Midwest Golf club. On the committee of arrangements are Paul Drexler, Walter Bainbridge and Dick Bennett. Glenn Trumbo will succeed Sam McMurray as president of the club this fall. Jack Oliver is next season's vice president; Val Price is secretary, and W. J. [Jake] Wise is treasurer.

New faces of 1937 are Lorretta Margaret Mueller, born recently in St. Anne's hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Mueller. And it was a girl at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Appel, 3437 West 16th street.

ALL summer two Austin High school graduates, Lester Isaacson, 1117 North Massasoit avenue, and Trygve Johansen, 5400 North avenue, have been preparing for winter. They have made an eighteen foot trailer with five windows and running water. They painted it ivory and red. This week they will start out for the west in their covered wagon, pulled by a convertible coupe. When they get to California, where the redwood trees grow high and thick, they will stop for the winter.

That there has been a revival of croquet is evidenced in Hollywood, where a number of lawns have been given night lighting. Those who gather in the yard of Joseph Benoit, 3617 Woodside avenue, have stepped up the sport to a point where it is a combination of midget golf and the old fashioned game. Each arch presents a different hazard, and some of them require a billiard shot wherein the ball must pass safely through the wire on the rebound. Spectators seem to get as much thrill from the proceedings as do the participants.

THE scheduled première of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," by the Hinsdale Little theater group, having been called off due to rain in the vicinity of the Western Springs orchestra shell on the night recently set for the performance, Everett Mesenbrink, director, has arranged for an engagement of the troupe Friday night in the Downers Grove Masonic temple. The Downers Grove Business and Professional Women's club is the sponsor. The postponed show at the Western Springs shell will be given Sept. 9.

It's a bit out of the ordinary for Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Harper of Onarga, Ill., to visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Somerville, 4528 Adams street, in the summer. Thanksgiving is their visiting time. For thirty-two years the two doctors who were classmates at Northwestern university spend Thanksgiving together either in Onarga or Chicago. Recently they added another visit to the year's calendar when Dr. and Mrs. Harper spent a few days with the Somervilles.

Grades make the graduate, but clothes make a co-ed comfortable in the classroom. At the University of Michigan when tired eyes turn from senior calculus problems they will see this gray and black striped wool dress worn by Miss Louise Williams, 632 Woodbine avenue, Oak Park, who did her calculating on clothes before the first school bell rang. It's a feather in her cap for Miss Margaret McNutt, 646 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, for choosing this Robin Hood hat to wear to Rosary college this fall. She will be a bright girl, too, with red, green, yellow, and royal blue accents at her waistline and matching buttons that make a black crepe dress as young as college frivolity itself. Because existing buildings are adequate, pending completion of plans for their replacement, west side schools are not included in the major building list. New buildings and additions for 31 schools in other parts of the city will cost $7,274,000. Beauties All, But Only One Miss St. Charles

While waiting for the judges to decide, nine young contestants for the title of Miss St. Charles believe in making merry during the days of suspense. One of them will be chosen to reign during the suburb's three day celebration opening next Saturday. In the meantime rivalries are forgotten as blondes and brunettes perch in the patio of the Hotel Baker overlooking the Fox river. Left to right: Miss Katherine Blozis, Miss Genevieve Gleamza, Miss Leta Johnson, Miss Margaret Noel, Miss Betty Jane Beystehner, Miss Florence Reader, Miss Gwen Leonardi, Miss Margaret Hahn, and Miss Edna Tolman.

GOOD-WILL SHOPS LAUNCHCURATIVE WORK PROGRAM

Will Open Occupation as Health Builder.

Goodwill Industries, 1841 Congress street, the manufacturing company that attempts to make over broken minds and bodies as well as broken toys, electrical appliances, and old shoes, will open a new curative work shop in a few weeks under the supervision of a trained occupational therapist. Funds for the new department are being raised by the Woman's club division of Goodwill Industries.

Walter C. Loague.

Several years ago curative work as a separate department was closed because of lack of money. Since that time the work has been carried on for five or six people at a time where it was possible. Walter C. Loague, superintendent, believes that in adding the curative department that 100 persons a year who are orthopedic cases, or recovering from the effects of tuberculosis or who are suffering from neurosis may be restored to health through work.

Curative Methods Told.

In the case of orthopedic disorders, he explains, certain muscles that have become stiff or limited in their functions will prohibit a man from returning to his old job. The occupational therapist will provide these patients with the proper movements so that muscles can be retrained. Physical therapy, consisting of massage, heat, light, and electrical treatments, will be used in conjunction with the occupational therapy.

Another phase of the work will consist of a graduated hardening program as in the case of a man who has had tuberculosis. This man will be given one or two hours of light work each day until his weakened body becomes accustomed to the amount of work assigned. Also in the case of neurotic persons who have broken down through fear, worry and emotional stress work will be assigned that will bring about a mental balance and a regulated program of living.

In addition to the curative work, Goodwill Industries will continue its other services, taking on a few more people about Sept. 1. Vocational work is offered that trains handicapped persons for those jobs in regular industry which their handicaps may permit them to perform. Sheltered work is also given to men and women who otherwise could not earn a living. All the services done for the crippled, the deaf, and the paralyzed depends upon the collecting and reconditioning of discarded material.

An annual budget of $2,000 must be raised to make the operation of the curative work shop possible. Officers of the Woman's club division who are raising this money by parties and by obtaining personal contributions are Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, president; Mrs. Charles S. Clark, first vice president; Mrs. Bertha MacGregor, second vice president; Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair, third vice president; Mrs. J. Willson Coffey, secretary, and Miss Florence Sebern, executive secretary.

Directors of Division.

The directors are Miss Allie M. Anderson, Miss Minnie Albert, Mrs. A. W. Axtell, Mrs. Albert Beath, Miss Mary Burris, Mrs. Ozora Davis, Mrs. Holland Flagler, Mrs. Victor Munnecke, Mrs. R. Maynard Reed, Mrs. Oscar Shanks, Mrs. C. Leslie Swander, Mrs. J. Van Wakeman, Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, and Mrs. Fred W. Waterman.

LONG NEGLECTED BASEMENT GIVEN PLACE IN HOME

Space Used for Study or Recreation.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

It is being rumored, and on good authority, too, that work has already been started on thousands of basements; revolutionary work it would have been termed a score of years ago, for it is adding space to the house by cellar renovation.

Certainly it is true that we see so many instances of sparkling spots in bloom where once only gloomy drabness reigned that we are inclined to credit these rumors and to believe printed statistics when we see them fortified by photographs of actual work accomplished.

The two basement transformations pictured today are among many renovations now being entered in the Basement Modernization contest, which is sponsored by the Chicago Coal Merchants' association. They are practical and worthwhile instances of the new trend which stresses the wisdom of getting the most out of everything we have.

Fireplace of Flagstone.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Frase of 904 Forest avenue, Oak Park, decided to convert a portion of the basement of their home into a combination living-recreation room. They segregated this room from the utility spaces, and relegated the heater room and coal bin, the laundry corner, and storage closets to quarters all their own.

As the room looks now it has a well painted concrete floor, painted walls, and a large flagstone fireplace with built-in book shelves on each side. There is, besides, plenty of space for game tables and card tables, and for a refreshment nook at one end for midnight snacks. Changes, however, still are to come. At no distant time the walls will be paneled in knotty pine and a wood floor laid over the concrete.

A very different purpose room was built by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Cameron in the basement of their two apartment house at 5457 Thomas street. They wanted a study room for their son Caryl, who is in his last year of dentistry at Northwestern university.

New Room Set Apart.

Like the added room in the Frases' Oak Park home, this study is completely apart from the service portion of the Cameron basement; heater and coal bin, laundry tubs, and storage spaces are segregated.

As there are any number of definite purposes for which an extra basement room may be used, so there are numerous decorative themes which may be employed in adding to the zest and charm of a basement recreation room.

If there are boys in the family with a nautical or Indian yen it can be called a "fo-cas'le," or appear in the Rio Grande spirit with Indian rugs and serapes, cacti, and corrals. If boys or girls have footlight or movie-dramatic aspirations a small stage can be built below stairs, and there can always be found a place for a screen and projector.

A pleasant basement workshop can have its ceiling painted pale yellow, with walls a deeper yellow and black stenciled dado. The woodwork in the room can also be black, with work bench stained a rich green.

A game room often flaunts a ceiling which contrasts quite strikingly with the walls. Light terra cotta walls will blend with a light orange ceiling. Then you can have your trim orange and repeat the color in a band around your black painted floor.

Old English or Modern.

If you wish to stress an old English wayside inn atmosphere in a recreation room stain your overhead beams an oak finish, paint the plaster walls a cream, and hang a few old steel engravings on the wall.

A pine wainscoting with colonial paper or walls painted a colonial tan will suggest the early American.

Plenty of glass and cromium and copper will hint at the modern. A dado rail and molding of aluminum above an ultramarine blue dado and chrome yellow walls will strike a modern note, especially if you lacker your tables and chairs a gleaming black and paint your floor a silver and black.

We are becoming more basement conscious, and a checkup of the possibilities below our first floor probably will show us that we don't need any Aladdin's lamp this fall to fit up nether spaces for greater fields of usefulness.

FETE TO DEPICT ST. CHARLES AS IT WAS AND IS

Gala 3 Day Celebration to Open Saturday.

night, the judges will choose Miss St. Charles, queen of the celebration, from among nine contestants for the honor.

There will be two parades on Labor day. In the morning the parade along Main street will be a children's project and will have for its theme, "The Three Bears." Appearing in the pageant will be the live bear, Lulu, brought to St. Charles following her capture in the Canadian woods. Youngsters directed by Mrs. L. J. Norris will portray characters from nursery rhymes and those made famous by the movies.

Water Fight or Labor Day.

At 11 o'clock on Labor day the St. Charles fire department, of which George Modine is chief, will stage a water fight.

The "March of Time" parade, under the direction of F. R. Johnson, will take place at 1:30 o'clock, and will include floats portraying St. Charles industries. The Mooseheart band of sixty-five pieces and the St. Charles High school band will play. The Women's club and the Junior Women's club will have floats. Dunham farm will contribute the old station wagon from Wayne. "Dimitri" of the Club Arcada has arranged for a float depicting dances, old and new.

A special feature of the parade will be the appearance of two former race horses, Winnipeg and Labrador, from the stables of Col. E. J. Baker. One of the horses will be driven in a sulky of the gay '90s model.

Take Life Easy Now.

Winnipeg, now 15 years old and enjoying an easy life at Twin Pines farm with his old stable mate of the tracks, Labrador, established one of the greatest records of all time in 1929 by winning nine out of ten races against the country's best. Labrador won the $25,000 Derby at Toledo, O., four years ago.

Col. Chester R. Davis will be marshal of the parade, with its historical presentation of St. Charles—old and new. A division of the parade will include the Chicago and Northwestern railway pioneer train, Miss St. Charles and her court of honor, and 110 Boy Scouts wearing gold colored tropical hats manufactured in St. Charles by the Hawley Products company.

Following the parade there will be a show in the amphitheater in the park, and in the evening teams of the Industrial league wall play softball. A night show at 8:15 o'clock will be presented by professional talent and will include eight boxing bouts. A display of fireworks over the river will provide a finale for what St. Charles leaders believe will be the biggest celebration ever held in the community.

Those Planning Events.

Dr. C. A. Potter is chairman of the committees planning the celebration. Richard T. Y. Lambert is vice chairman and business manager.

Committee chairmen are Cleon Miller, queen contest; F. R. Johnson, parade; Dr. R. J. Lambert, concessions; E. A. Keplar and Joe Plunket, publicity; Joe Gaffney, sports; P. S. MRS. LAMBERT'S LAURELS GROW WITH HER GARDEN

New Leader of Society Wins 500 Prizes.

There is a west side housewife, Mrs. F. C. Lambert, who makes a hobby of planting flowers in her back yard. Her home at 5445 Iowa street is a white frame house that looks something like the other houses on the street. The yard is about the same size as the others, big enough to take care of an average size Monday wash. It's the flowers and what she does about them that stand out.

Mrs. F. C. Lambert.

Mrs. Lambert has won 500 first and second prizes in flower shows and two national medals from the American Iris society. Her own yard is a CHICAGO TRIBUNE award garden of a few years back. She has seen to it that 5,000 elm trees were planted throughout Illinois. She has given hundreds of garden lectures through the state. She worked in Horticulture hall during the Century of Progress Exhibition and originated the bottle garden.

First Woman in Office.

She has supervised the work of fifty-two garden chairmen in the Sixth district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs and in one year organized seven west side garden clubs, promoted eight flower shows, sixteen tours, and six plant sales. She is an accredited national judge of flowers and is now beginning her first fall season as president of the Midwest Horticultural society, the only woman to ever hold office.

Mrs. Lambert doesn't know exactly how it all came about. She has a husband who likes to fish and she spends hours sharing his hobby with him. She listens to her daughter's music lessons and in between times she cooks and sews, washes and irons, and goes over to Garfield park conservatory to see every new flower that comes into bloom. She does what every other woman does and more.

Mrs. Lambert has always had a hand with flowers. Her earliest memory is of admiration for her mother back in her home in Indiana, who could break off a stick or a stem, douse some water on a plant, and make it grow like a seedling from Eden. Like other little girls, she studied botany in school.

Triumph in Potatoes.

When she was married and her first child was born she did a bit of reading between baby's naps. She wanted to make her hobby farming with a trowel, but not a tractor. She read government books on soil and seed and learned how to create roses as well as rosettes for baby's bonnet. In time she was out planting red triumph potatoes because some one told her they wouldn't grow in Illinois. Hers grew. She heard a lecturer advise against planting magnolia in this climate. She has magnolia growing in her yard.

She started with a few peonies and iris and hybridized them. She has some that no one else has and blue ribbons to prove it. Great hybridizers have conferred with her. Eight years ago she started entering her flowers in local, state, and then national shows. When the blue ribbons started coming in she was made garden chairman of the Austin North End Woman's club. Then she became Sixth district garden chairman, a three year job. Then the Midwest Horticultural society made her vice president and program chairman. Now she's president.

Dream of Floral Home.

Mrs. Lambert wants a horticulture building for Chicago. That is her aim for fall and winter work. She wants to take Paul Battey's plans—he is a former president of the society—and put them on a firm foundation and build with brick a monument to the women who want flowers in their back yards and shade trees out front. She wants showrooms that will attract to Chicago the international flower exhibitions that have never been here.

Working with her in the horticultural society is a garden consultant committee that answers questions through a monthly bulletin. Serving on this committee are Oakley B. Morgan, past president of the Men's Garden Clubs of America and superintendent of Elmhurst parks; Gustave Lindberg, superintendent of Oak Park parks, and Robert Van Tress, past president of Chicago University Horticulture society.

The conservation committee of the society will keep in touch with all conservation programs in the United States and report its findings to Mrs. Lambert. David Kennicot Sr. of Des Plaines is chairman.

Lecture Each Month.

During the fall and winter, lectures will be held the last Friday of each month in Garfield park, the society's headquarters. Last Friday W. F. Christman, secretary of the American Peony society, spoke. The September lecture will be given by David F. Hall, regional vice president of the American Iris society.

A city beautiful isn't a thing of chance. This observation comes after a glimpse of the notebook of Mrs. Lambert, the housewife who spends time between paring potatoes in planting pretty things in her yard.

TWO YOUNG ARCHERS SURE OF THEIR MARK

Some one once shot an arrow into the air and it fell to earth and no one knew where it landed. So a poem was written about it. These archery stars know just where to look for their arrows. They usually hit the center of the target. There is a good reason for practice on the Columbus park ranges these days, for the good name of Chicago must be upheld in the face of all the archery in England. A contest by mail will be played between the archers of Blackburn, Lancashire, and a team from Columbus park on Oct. 26. Gladys Rys, 5711 Madison street (left), and Cecelia McMahon, 5659 Ohio street, are smiling in advance of victory. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Max Bendix.

Other concerts will include an appearance of the American Concert orchestra, directed by Dr. Gustave Ronfort, at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the Illinois Research hospital, Polk and Wood streets.

The Dixie orchestra, conducted by Zilner Randolph, will play at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Psychopathic hospital, Polk and Wood streets.

The final outing of the summer season will be held by the board of officers of the Cicero Woman's club Tuesday at the summer cottage of Mrs. Charles Dressel, Diamond Lake, Ill. Mrs. John Meyer is chairman.

"All Quiet on the Western Front," a moving picture adapted by Maxwell Anderson from Remarque's account of the world war, will be shown Wednesday evening on the roof garden at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. It will be one in the series of picture classics which have been shown each Wednesday during the summer. In addition to the main picture a few scenes from "The Jazz Singer" including the "Mammy aria" and the first Walt Disney Mickey Mouse comedy, "Steamboat Willie" will be shown.

COLUMBUS PARK ARCHERS APPEAR IN BRITISH NEWS

Team Beaten in First Shoot by Mail.

Mill workers who read the evening papers last month in Blackburn, Lancashire, England, saw among the domestic news the startling headlines, "Chicago Shot Up by Mail." Columbus park, Central avenue and Congress street, is responsible for the story.

Edwin Weiner.

The news in the English paper told the results of the first international archery match between the archers of Columbus park and the Community house team of Blackburn. The scores were exchanged by mail. England was victorious in the first tournament which ended July 25. There will be another chance for the Chicagoans in a mail contest Oct. 26 as Columbus park begins a full year of experience in exchanging recreational ideas and sorces with its British neighbors, a plan of Erwin Weiner, Columbus park director.

Book Inspires Contest.

The international contest started after Harry McEvoy Jr. published a book on the history and the technique of archery. Harry Kellett, director of the Blackburn Community house, wrote to Mr. McEvoy, a member of the Columbus archers, telling him he enjoyed the book and explaining how his English team was getting on. The contest by mail grew out of the correspondence of these two men and the Englishmen won by 35 points. The scores show the Columbus park team with a total of 1,895 points and the Englishmen with 1,930. The event was the "team around," each archer shooting the required 96 arrows.

Mr. Weiner plans to continue the relationship. Publicity, scores, and pictures of teams will be exchanged as tournaments open in golf, checkers, bowling on the green, and free throw contests in basketball. For the checker and chess tournament Mr. Weiner suggests that diagrams be made of the board and each play so that it can be mailed back and forth as the game progresses.

Would Exchange Handicraft.

If the Blackburn Community house is willing, samples of handicraft will be exchanged as well as scores, and American playground games will be introduced on British soil. It is expected that heavy mail will begin when Columbus park classes open in September.

est child in the neighborhood to the oldest man. Children 2 to 5 years old come to play school. In the summer she has two vacation schools, one for colored children and one for the white. Women come to Beacon house to learn to sew and cook. Boys come to play checkers and chess, and the colored girls are now making bright pictures for their rooms at home. During the fall and winter volunteeer workers help Mrs. Carey, and before the program starts in a week or two the neighborhood people will meet to tell her what they want to do.

Mrs. Carey does not think she has sacrificed anything in her work for the Polish, Russian, Lithuanian, Irish, and Jewish people who come to Beacon house. She never pigeonholes her good deeds and she has no measuring stick that will give percentages of accomplishments. As she talks of Beacon house work she nods her head occasionally at some one passing by. Once she said: "See those two good friends? They used to 'scrap because they had to sit beside each other. Their hair was a different color and their fathers came from different countries. They each suspected the other of being a foreigner."

As the children passed by hand in hand, taking a lick from the same lollypop, Mrs. Carey added: "You see, they feel they're both Americans now."

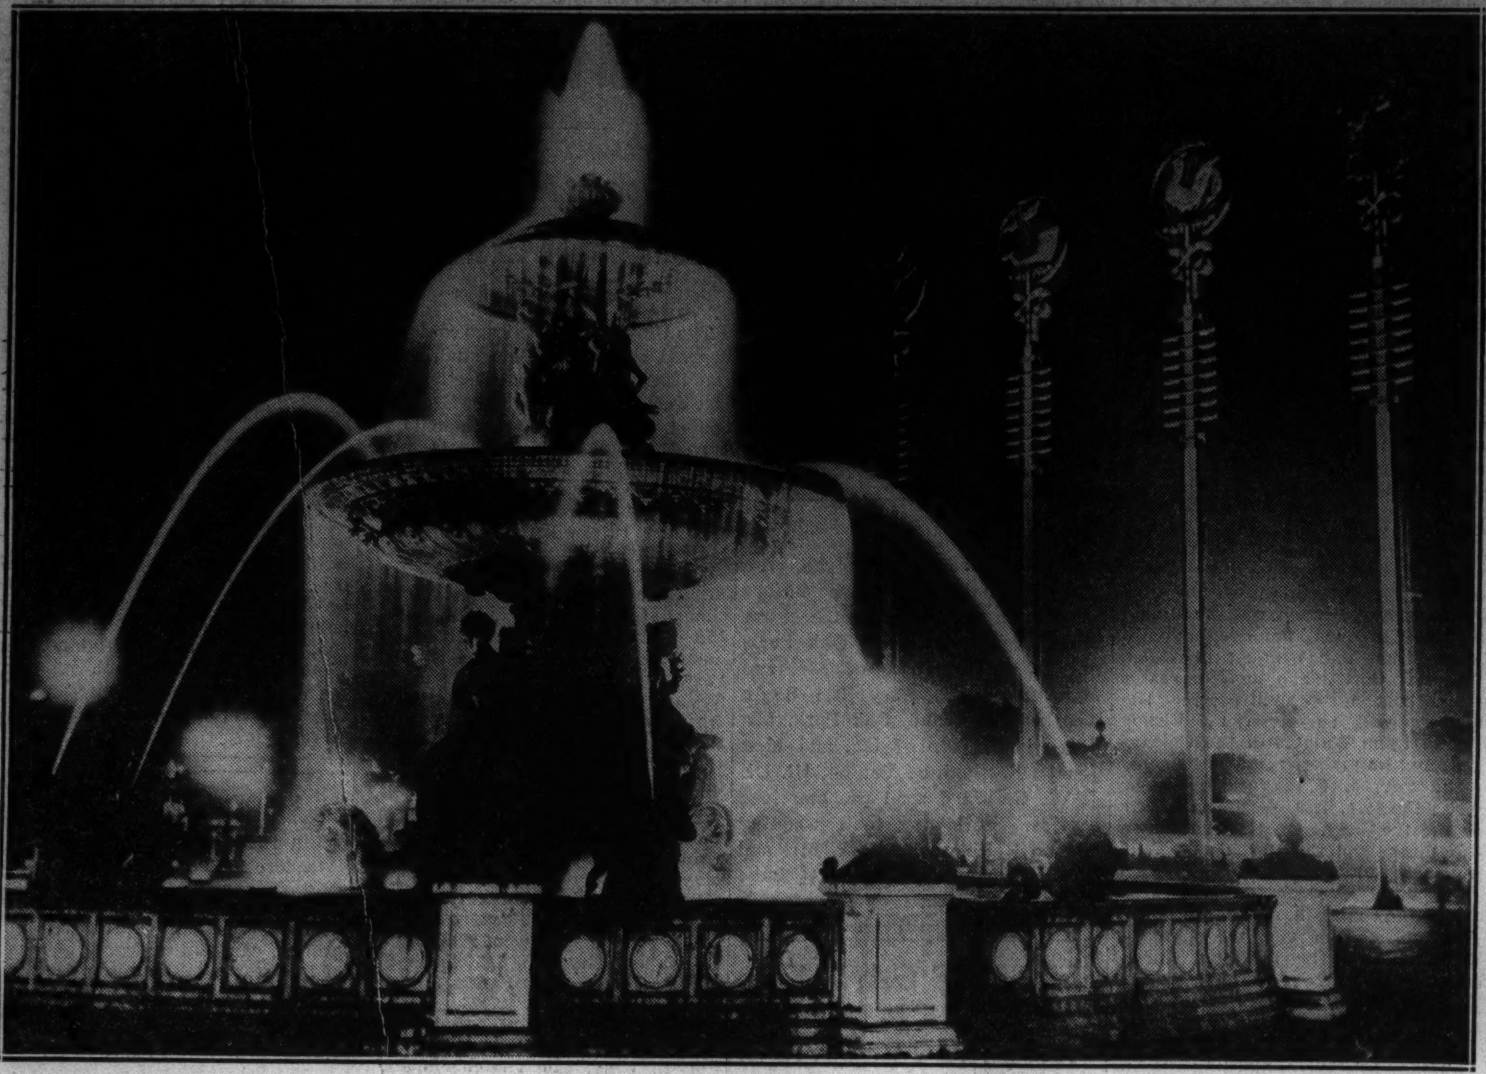
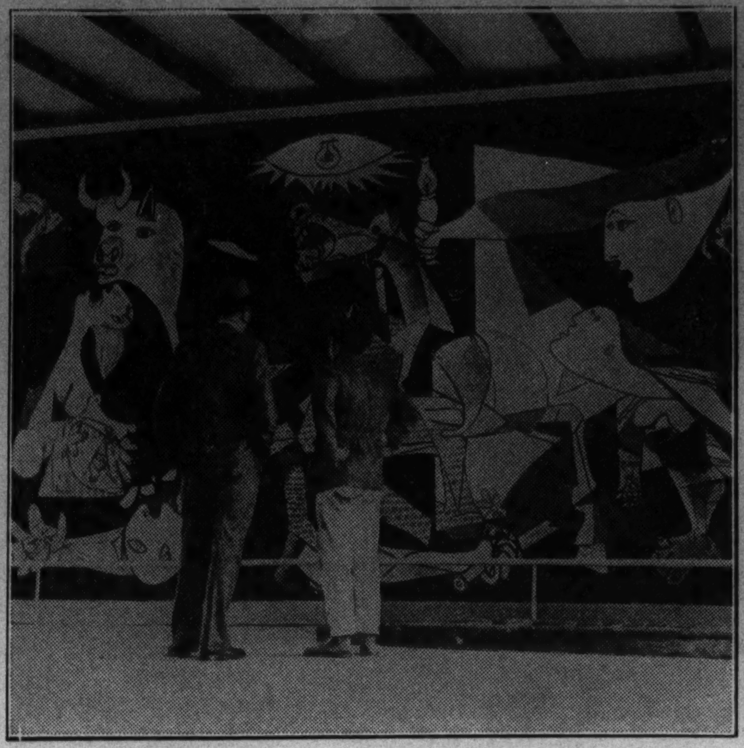
Seeing the Paris Fair at Night with the Camera—France Expects 50,000,000 to Attend Exposition



MODERNISTIC ENTRANCE TO THE PARIS FAIR BATHED IN FIREWORKS—Four decorative pylons stand out in the brilliant illumination over the Place de la Concorde entrance to France's big show of 1937. Modernistic architecture is the keynote of the fair, which officially is called the International Exposition of Arts and Crafts Applied to Modern Life. It is attracting visitors from throughout the world. France expects 50,000,000 will attend this year. [Acme Photo.]



WAR INFLUENCE ON ART AT FAIR—The destruction of Guernica in the Spanish civil war is said to be the theme of this mural by Pablo Picasso, the famous painter. It is in the Spanish pavilion at the Paris fair.

KEEP YOUR MOTOR COOL AND SAVE MONEY

EXTRA MARGIN OF SAFETY MOTOR OIL KEEPS DOWN HEAT AND DRIVING COSTS

Sweltering at 90?

It's 3,000 degrees inside the combustion chambers of your motor — 600 on the cylinder walls — 350 on the bearings!

Result, oil has a double job to do: 1—keep your engine safely lubricated, 2—carry heat away from vital parts. Pennzoil, the oil with the extra margin of safety, does both jobs so well it saves you money on oil, gas and repairs.

Here's why: Pennzoil double refines selected Pennsylvania crudes so that the tough, heat resisting portions are left. Then washes out harmful, sludge-forming impurities with a special solvent.

This refining method makes Pennzoil fast flowing, so it carries heat from pistons and bearings. It "fireproofs" Pennzoil so it resists heat . . . saves you money on added quarts. It purifies Pennzoil so it doesn't form sludge that clogs piston rings and slows up valve action — doesn't waste gasoline through lost compression.

Don't See Him Again
UNTIL YOU'VE MADE THIS "ARMHOLE ODOR" TEST

No matter how sweet you are, if the slightest moisture collects on the armhole of your dress, a stale "armhole odor" will become noticeable to others

HE can't explain why he doesn't ask you to dance the second time! But, before you see him again, take this precaution: NO MATTER HOW CERTAIN YOU ARE of your daintiness; test your dress. Smell the fabric under the arm. You will probably have a painful surprise.

Dryness Is Necessary . . . Single-action preparations that deodorize only, cannot give you absolute protection because they are not made to stop perspiration. The scientific double action of Liquid Odorono keeps the underarm not only odorless, but also dry. And with all moisture banished, your dress can't develop an unpleasant armhole odor.

Odorono gently closes the pores of that little underarm hollow, diverting perspiration to other surfaces where it can evaporate freely. In two strengths, Regular and Instant. Buy Odorono and be sure you never offend again!

BRAND NEW IDEA IS WHAT RADIO NEEDS FOR FALL

If You Have It, You Can Collect, That Is, if—

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What radio seems to need is a new "trend." Other years when Labor day was just around the corner and radio's fall crop of new shows just about ready to hit the air, one could usually spot a half dozen more or less new ideas soon to be much talked about, imitated, wax successful, or dropped. Last year at this time the air was filled with barber shop harmony that later bloomed in the form of community sings. A season or so earlier it was Maj. Bowes trailing clouds of amateurs. Somewhere in between those two trends the nation's listeners got their biggest dose of Man-on-the-Street and other forms of curbstone interviews.

But this year—from our corner at least—not a trend has risen above the horizon. Why? Who can say. Perhaps it's because all of the easy and obvious things have already been done. Radio has borrowed many a device from the theater, from pictures, from the concert stage. It has used all the ready made entertainers and artists of our day—except for those few who have steadfastly refused to submit—and has run through a mint of material. It begins to look as if broadcasters are going to have to give much more serious thought both to the development of performers and the creation of material.

Wanted: New Ideas.

What the big bosses of broadcasting are looking for this minute is a brand new topnotch, sure fire idea. And if you happen to have one tucked away you can name your own price for it—but remember it's your job to convince the sponsors or their agencies that it is a wow!

Right now there are a half dozen sponsors who have reserved time on coast to coast networks, which they must soon begin using, and as yet they have not settled on what they are going to do with it. Several of these have sent out a lot of talk about ideas so novel, so radically different that to show their hands now would only mean risking having some unscrupulous competitor filch them. But a little inquiry has disclosed that in several instances these concerns have no more idea what they are going to do with their radio time than a Sunday driver has about what he will do at the next intersection.

The simultaneous rediscovery of Shakespeare by both NBC and CBS this summer has served at least one good purpose [in addition to the entertainment it provided], that of again focusing the attention of program makers on the drama. And it appears likely that there will be more serious drama on the air, much of it under commercial sponsorship, this fall than at any time in radio's brief history.

Ambitious Plans for Workshop.

The Columbia Workshop, which under Irving Reis has done considerable toward the encouragement of original radio writing and production, has some ambitious plans for this season. Director Reis has gone abroad to put on broadcasts from London and Dublin on Sept. 12 and 19. From London will come "Death of a Queen," an adaptation of Hillaire Belloc's "Marie Antoinette" on Sept. 12. The following week from Dublin the famed Abbey players are to do James Millington Synge's "Riders to the Sea."

Ernest Hemingway, won over to radio by Director Reis' handling of his "Fifty Grand," is said not only to have given his permission to adapt all the stories in his volume "Men Without Women," but to have promised to fashion an original drama for broadcasting this season. James Hilton and Archibald MacLeish are two other noted playwrights who are said sufficiently intrigued with the possibilities of radio drama to do some special work for broadcasting.

"Curtain Time's" Opportunity.

Blair Walliser's "Curtain Time" on W-G-N is another dramatic feature that is offering opportunity both to young actors and playwrights.

The Monday evening Radio theater from Hollywood which has been so popular for several seasons will, of course, be back again shortly. One takes a lot of bitter with the sweet on this program. But all reliable surveys seem to indicate that it has a tremendous following. It is probably the success of this production that has prompted two other sponsors to try something in the same vein. One is to be called the Silver theater offering half hour adaptations. Rosalind Russell, movie star, is to headline the first presentation of this program Sunday, Oct. 3, over CBS from Hollywood.

Tyrone Power in New Series.

Another sponsor has snapped up Tyrone Power, the romantic young man of Hollywood, for a dramatic series in which he will have a different leading lady each week in such plays as "Journey's End," "Petticoat Fever," "Her Cardboard Lover," and others which, for the most part, have been aired on the CBS Radio theater.

Still another venture, to be called Grand Central Station, will present original plays to be written around the adventures of this crossroads of the world.

May Robson, the grand old lady of stage and pictures, has been engaged for her first radio series which is to be a sort of serial, each instalment complete, however, titled "A Lady of Millions." Helen Gahagan is another stage celebrity who has been put under contract for a dramatic and musical series.

So far there has been no word forthcoming as to the radio plans of Helen Hayes. If someone, within the next fortnight, comes forth with the announcement that she has been engaged for a serious play project we should almost be willing to say that at least one "trend" for fall is apparent. And that trend would be dramatic—yes, definitly.

READY FOR LIFETIME REVIEW

This is an idea session. Maestro Harold Stokes and vocalists for the new "Lifetime Review" are running over some new tunes for the broadcasts, which will be heard each Friday at 7:15 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network. The girls are "The Three Graces," harmony trio, while behind the piano keys are Tenor Arthur Wright and Maestro Stokes.

R. APPLEBERRY BACK FOR NEW W-G-N SERIES

Show Is Also to Be Aired Over Mutual.

"Rube Appleberry," that mythical baseball hero of the air whose antics delighted W-G-N listeners for several years, will return for a new series of programs tomorrow night over W-G-N and the Mutual network. "Rube" will perform each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 6 p. m.

The part of "Rube Appleberry" again will be played by Lawrence Reed, creator of the chesty pitching star of the "Panthers" baseball team. Gordon Sprague will play the part of "Tommy," "Rube's" pal, while Paul Fogarty, the author of the sketches, again plays the part of "Mac McConnell," the manager of the "Panthers." Connie Wills will be introduced as the girl interest in the scripts later in the series.

When the "Appleberry" series went off the air in 1935 Fogarty established his hero as a comic strip character and the cartoon "Rube Appleberry" now appears in many newspapers.

For the first four weeks of the new series of programs the "Appleberry" scripts will be broadcast over W-G-N and a limited Mutual network of stations. After that the network will be expanded.

For the opening program tomorrow Author Fogarty will bring his listeners up to date on the "Rube's" history and start off on a new series of adventures. Many of the major league's greatest baseball players and officials were among "Appleberry's" listening audience on the original series and it is Fogarty's plan to have several well known men of the diamond sport as his guests for the opening program.

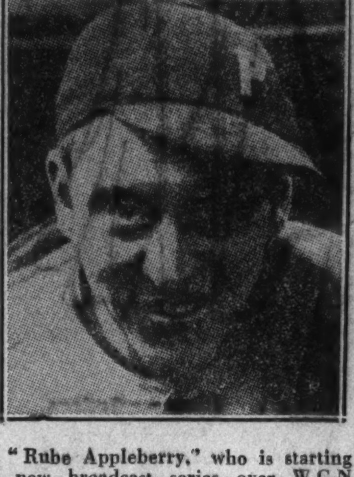
RUBE IS BACK



"Rube Appleberry," who is starting a new broadcast series over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 6 p. m. tomorrow. He'll be on the radio every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for a spell, too.

M'CARTHY FEUD WITH W. C. FIELDS DONE IN MUSIC

The feud between Charlie McCarthy, the ventriloquist's dummy, and W. C. Fields will be depicted in music by Werner Janssen's orchestra at 6:30 tonight over WLS-NBC. The title of the novelty presentation by America's foremost conductor is "Knock-Turn."

Charlie McCarthy's theme in the musical interpretation of the feud will be "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," while Fields' theme is "Pomp and Circumstance."

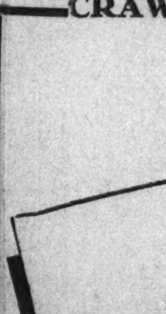
Sound effects include a few clang, clang, clangs, sounding the approach of Mr. Fields; then the whang-whang of a sawmill, representing fulfillment of Mr. Field's desires of having the spinning saws slash Charlie into a million pieces.

Janssen and Allan Jones, tenor soloist of the program, also will be featured in a unique arrangement of "The Touch of Your Lips."

Loretta Lee will sing "Old King Cole."

Brief Biography

John J. Anthony, who conducts the Good Will hour, aired over W-G-N-Mutual at 9 o'clock Sunday nights, was born in New York in 1896, was educated in the east and toured the country lecturing for the Marital Relations bureau, an organization devoted to family problems. The Good Will hour is the offspring of the much discussed Good Will court, the center of legal controversy a year ago.



John J. Anthony.

Anthony has no lawyers advising him in this year's version of the program and handles all the problems himself. He has, however, dozens of social welfare organizations ready to lend a hand to the people who come to him every week for advice. He has been influential in agitating for reform in marital legislation in New York and other states.

Teachers' Attitude to C.I.O. Subject of Review Stand

The convention of the American Federation of Teachers at Madison, Wis., this week to decide whether it would affiliate with the Committee for Industrial Organization will be the topic of discussion on Northwestern university's reviewing stand to be aired at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and the Mututal network.

Participating in the discussion will be two members of Northwestern's education department—Prof. George E. Axtelle and Prof. E. T. McSwain.

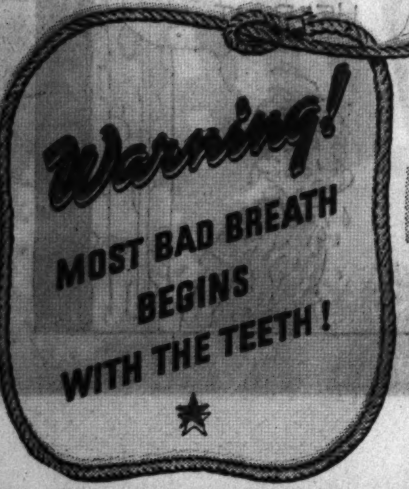
READ HOW COLGATE DENTAL CREAM PROTECTS YOU!



76% OF ALL PEOPLE OVER THE AGE OF 17 HAVE BAD BREATH!

Tests conducted among 2,152 men and women (of all ages and from all walks of life) indicate that 76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath! And tests also show that most bad breath comes from improperly cleaned teeth!

Ordinary cleansing methods, which merely polish the exposed surfaces of your teeth, fail to remove the decaying food deposits in hidden crevices between your teeth. And these deposits, tests prove, are the source of most bad breath—of dull, dingy teeth—and of much tooth decay.

But Colgate Dental Cream has a special penetrating foam which gets into all those tiny crevices—emulsifying and washing away those food and acid deposits that cause bad breath.

And at the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans and brightens the enamel—makes your teeth sparkle—gives new brilliance to your smile.

So brush your teeth, gums, and tongue with Colgate Dental Cream at least twice daily and have cleaner, brighter teeth and a sweeter, purer breath.

GASOLINE ALLEY
THIS IS THE FIRST REAL TRYOUT FOR OUR NEW BOAT.
IT WAS A SWEET DEAL, TOPS, TRADIN OUR TRAILER FOR THIS.
I THOUGHT YOU SAID IT DIDN'T LEAK.
THAT'S WHAT FUZZY TOLD ME.
BLIMP
I WAS SUSPICIOUS WHEN HE INCLUDED A BAILER IN THE DEAL.
WELL SHE DOES.
BUT HE SAID IT WAS ONLY IN CASE OF RAIN.
I HOPE THE TIRES ON THAT TRAILER BLOW.
AN' THE SPRINGS BUST.
BLIMP
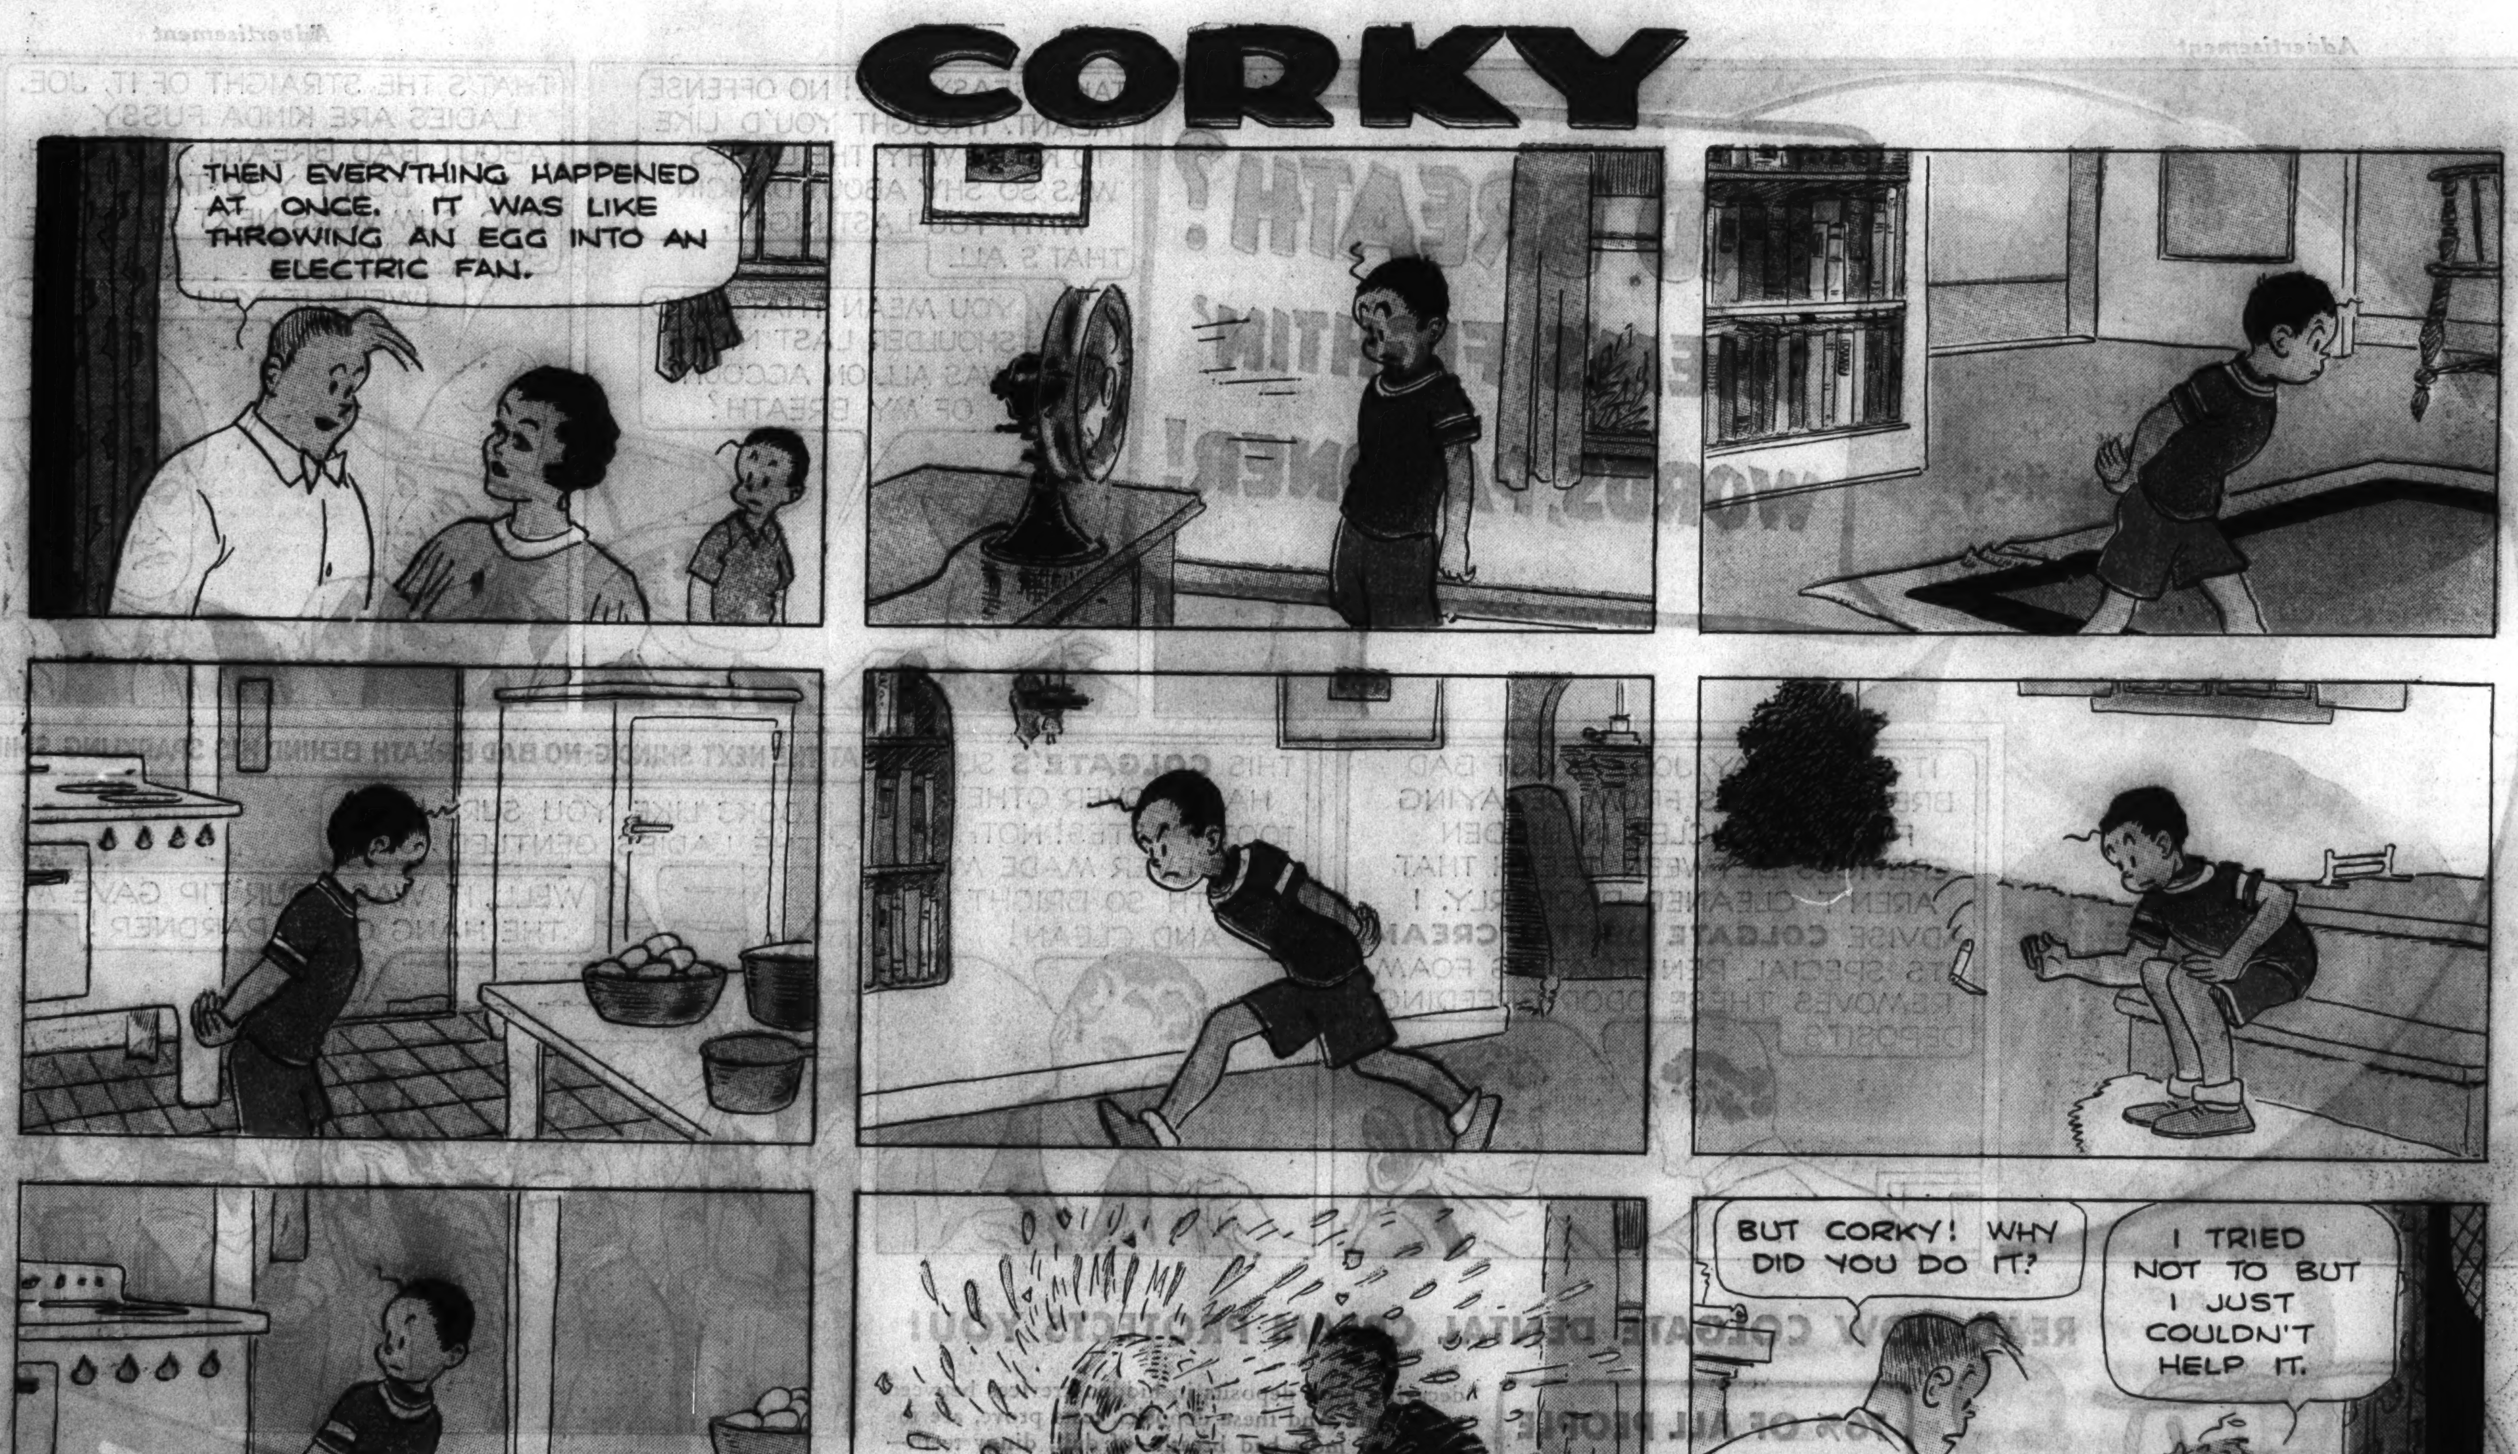
YOU'D BETTER START BAILIN' TOO SKEEK.
I'LL HAVE TO USE THE LUNCH PAIL.
STEP IT UP— IT'S COMIN' IN FASTER.
SWING IT! WE'RE HOLDIN' OUR OWN.
NOW, WE'RE GAININ' ON IT.
IT DOESN'T LOOK THAT WAY TO ME, TOPS.
WE MUST BE. WE'VE RAISED THE LAKE TO WITHIN THREE INCHES OF THE TOP!
King



CORKY
THEN EVERYTHING HAPPENED AT ONCE. IT WAS LIKE THROWING AN EGG INTO AN ELECTRIC FAN.
BUT CORKY! WHY DID YOU DO IT?
I TRIED NOT TO BUT I JUST COULDN'T HELP IT.

JEANIE, CURIOUS OVER NOT HEARING FROM STREAKY IN SOME TIME, HAS HERSELF INVITED TO A GIRL FRIEND'S HOME IN THE CITY SO SHE CAN SURPRISE STREAKY WITH A VISIT. IN THE CITY, SHE LEARNS HE HAS MOVED FROM WHERE SHE EXPECTED TO FIND HIM, LEAVING NO FORWARDING ADDRESS BUT "GENERAL DELIVERY, CITY POST OFFICE". WALKING HOME, SHE SPIES STREAKY ON A PARK BENCH WITH A GIRL. WITHOUT A WORD TO HIM, SHE RETURNS TO MIDVILLE, BELIEVING HE HAS DISCARDED HER IN FAVOR OF THIS OTHER GIRL.
HELLO
WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE? I THOUGHT YOU HAD TO TAKE A MUSIC LESSON—
I DO, BUT I SKIPPED IT—DON'T YOU THINK IT'S SORT OF ROMANTIC, US MEETING ON THIS BENCH LIKE THIS, ALL THE TIME—DON'T YOU?
HUH? OH, ROMANTIC—NAW!
STREAKY, YOU PROMISED TO SHOW ME WHERE YOU LIVE—REMEMBER?
SO I DID—WELL, COME ON, I'LL SHOW YOU, AND INTRODUCE YOU TO OL' MIKE
MEANWHILE—JEANIE, STILL SHOCKED OVER HER EXPERIENCE IN THE CITY, RECEIVES A LETTER FROM STREAKY, WHICH SHE PROMPTLY RETURNS UNOPENED
RE-TURN... TO.. SEND-ER..... THERE!
WELL, HERE'S OUR MANSION—FRONT PORCH AND ALL
OH! HOW CUTE-HOW QUAINT!
MIKE, THIS IS MISS DAWSON—SHE WANTS TO SEE OUR BACHELOR QUARTERS
HOW D'DO, MISS—
SIMPLY ADORABLE!
WELL, NOW I KNOW WHERE YOU LIVE, I'LL BE AROUND TO BAKE YOU A CAKE—

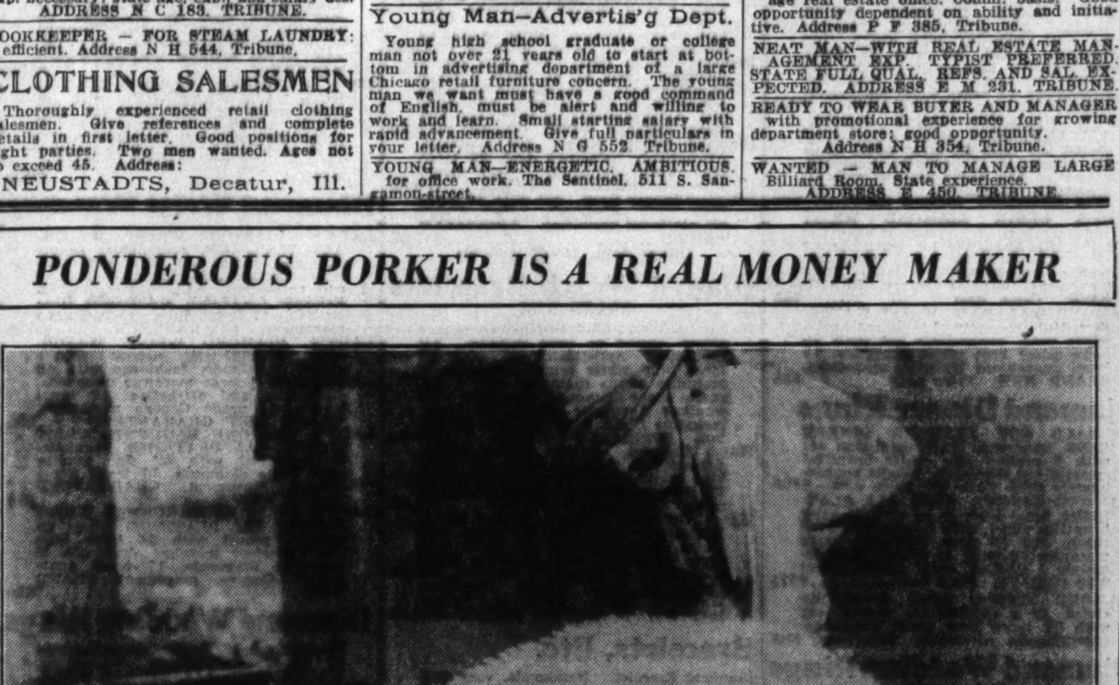
PONDEROUS PORKER IS A REAL MONEY MAKER



This hog, owned by a Newburg (Me.) farmer, weighs 1,600 pounds—and that's a lot of pork! He is 10 feet long, 9 feet around at the shoulder, and is fed ten quarts of milk twice daily, with four or five dozen eggs tossed in occasionally as a tonic. He's so heavy he can't stand himself, so a pulley and sling are used to lift him. His owner charges five cents to see him, and thus far has collected $800 from the curious.

IT PAYS
"TO JUMP THE GUN"
By starting a year's lease now rather than in the fall you save from 8 to 15%.
In furnishing and servicing the apartments now available our one thought has been—WHAT WOULD WE WANT IF WE WERE GOING TO LIVE HERE?
Approaching the problem from that angle has produced several surprises —surprises that will greatly add to your comfort and convenience and happiness.
If you plan to move this fall and are free to do so now—come—see what the Bryn Mawr has to offer.

THE TRUE STORY.

WONDER

NATURE'S BEAUTY SPOT
4 Miles from McHenry, Ill.

A Group of
SPORTSMEN

Bought practically ALL 12 miles of shoreline around this magnificent wooded, Spring-Fed, Sand Bottomed Lake, just 50 miles northwest of Chicago. Then they

[1] Stocked this lake with 5,000,000 Bass and Pike and prohibited fishing for 3 years so the fish could grow and breed under ideal conditions. [Fishing officially opened at Wonder Lake September, 1934.]

[2] Set aside 60 acres as a permanent pheasant cover and hunting grounds for owners.

[3] Made the lake STRICTLY PRIVATE, so only owners could fish or hunt.

[4] Refused to sell property further than 1½ to 2 blocks from the water.

[5] Set aside great big sand beaches with piers every ¼ mile so there would always BE MORE than ample beach facilities for children, grown-ups, and boat landings.

[6] Priced the property so low that every one—even ordinary wage earners could afford a country home.

[7] Arranged financing terms on homes so low that the yearly cost is less than a season's rental for a cottage elsewhere.

[9] Made it an exclusive GENTILE community.

[10] Built homes that are ready now for you to move into. Here are a few:

4 Rms., English Style, $500.

REAL ESTATE—RESORT PROPERTIES.

Wisconsin.

Two Million Tourists

and more have visited Wisconsin's Lakeland regions this year, leaving large sums of money with resort and cabin owners, thus making the resort business one of Wisconsin's greatest industries.

Now is the time to buy a large or small resort, where for legitimate reasons the owner is obliged to sell.

$1,450—Nineteen acres of wooded land with 1,000 feet frontage, including 2 room cabin, furnishings and boat.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Marking Time.

Aug. 28, 1937.

A HIKE over the experimental farm at this season of the year will show both woods and fields marking time. At least that was the impression given the other day on a walk through one of the cornfields, across a stand of big oak timber, and then through a field to a pond to see the birds.

Everywhere it looked as if there were a hush. The outdoors seemed to be waiting for the definite transition from summer to fall. Big green oranges were on the osage orange tree. Wild sunflowers blazed their yellow along the roads and even in the oak woods. There was a murmur from the cornfields when the wind rustled through the stalks. Goldenrod and vivid purple ironweed contributed more autumnal color to the green of the woods.

A Trickster Plant.

When we walked through one stand of oak woods a few days ago we found one plant that fooled us for a few minutes because it was sporting such bright red berries. We were walking near a growth of young wild cherry trees when our eyes caught the red of the berries. They seemed to be growing on the cherry trees, which appeared to be developing something new in the way of fruit.

When we examined the little plant with the red fruit we found that the bittersweet nightshade was the trickster. This interesting vine had climbed over the slender branches and leaves of the wild cherry tree. At this season of the year it bears clusters of beautiful berries. Looked at from a distance these appear to belong to the cherry tree.

The nightshade has left the ground, spread its vine over the low cherry trees, and now is showing its autumn color so that the visitors to the woods can't help but see it.

Wage War on Weeds.

The boys on the farm have been waging a successful war with the scythe against ragweed and other weeds. When not swinging the blades against the weeds they have been building fences. The lambs are going to be turned into a grazing area which is new to them, so a fence has to be put up to confine them.

The Muscovy ducks on the Half Moon pond thought that they were getting another party the other day when we were investigating the turtle population of the pond. The net used to catch the turtles also brought in plenty of crayfish and some salamanders or mud puppies. The ducks were so curious about the work and the seine that they were under foot all the time. But trouble began when one fat old duck spied a mud puppy wriggling on the mud as it hustled back to the water. This duck grabbed the salamander and began to walk around, followed by a half dozen other birds intrigued by this new and unusual tidbit.

Big Turtle Found.

A big snapping turtle was found on the farm this week. This is the species with a mean disposition, a powerful jaw, and an appetite that causes it to kill ducklings if it gets the chance.

Some of the farm families are planning to make apple vinegar during the next week or so. There is a small press on the farm used to make cider from the apples. This cider then will be fermented into vinegar. Later on when apples are picked sweet cider will be made by taking the fruit to a large press near the farm.

M. K. NEEDED A LOAN TO RENEW HIS mortgage and for repairs; we, however, advised making a 15 yr. loan and instead of repairing to sell the old house, buy a lot and build a new one with a 20 year FHA loan. Mr. K. followed our advice and just moved into the new bungalow. We handled the entire deal, made both mortgages and also lent him money to buy the new lot before the old house was sold.
This is an example of our sincere efforts to help our clients. May we serve you, too? Apartment Hotel Owners Blame Ever Mounting Taxes for Increasing Rents

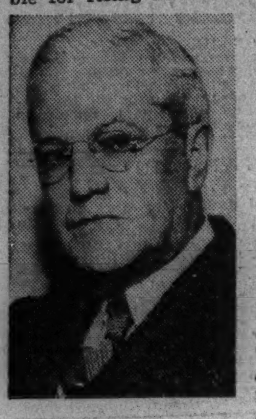
City and Federal Levies Add Another $23.86.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Ever-mounting taxes are responsible for rising rentals in both apartment buildings and hotels, according to surveys made public yesterday by the Greater Chicago Hotel association and the Greenebaum Sons Investment company. The figures compiled by the taxation and statistical committees of the hotel association cover commercial and residential hotels with a total of 15,250 rooms.



William M. Dewey.

"Bills for 1936 hotel realty and personal property taxes total $2,050,493," said William M. Dewey, president of the hotel group. "This is $134.41 for every available room.

Taxes Up 10.5 Per Cent.

"Unemployment compensation and old age retirement taxes accruing this year amount to $20.40 per available room. Adding to these the thirty-one various city licenses and permit fees of $3.46 per room, the total for every room in the hotel, rented or vacant, is $158.27. A comparison of the real estate and personal property taxes assessed for the tax year of 1936 against 1935 shows an increase of approximately 10.5 per cent.

"It is apparent that the taxes assessed against each room in Chicago hotels is approximately equivalent to those of an average six room house in the suburbs. The general public figures in abnormal hotel taxes because it, in the end, must pay the bill. Room rates have to be made high enough to cover tax costs or the hotel can't exist."

Big Increase Over 1933.

General tax assessments on twenty-four of the larger properties controled by the Greenebaum Sons Investment company amounted to $1,575,323 in 1936, an increase of $489,708, or 45.1 per cent, over the 1933 assessment of $1,085,615, Edgar N. Greenebaum, president, said yesterday.

The 1936 assessments on a group of seventeen smaller properties totaled $90,123, against $57,651 in 1933, an increase of $32,472, or 56.3 per cent.

"The increase of 1936 taxes over 1935 taxes was $6,106, or 7.3 per cent for the group of smaller properties," said Greenebaum. "The increase of 7.3 per cent in the taxes payable by the smaller properties compares with the increase of 10.7 per cent for the larger. This may indicate that the smaller properties received some consideration in the assessment for 1936 taxes. It is in the three year comparison, 1933 and 1936, that they fare so much worse.

Out of Renter's Pocket.

"It should be understood by every renter and every holder of real estate securities that increased taxes come directly out of his own pocket. Real estate managers figure that taxes represent 20 cents of every rent dollar. If the taxes on the apartment you occupy are raised 50 per cent the landlord is justified in giving you a 10 per cent increase in rent."

Greenebaum said that if taxes could be held down rents could be stabilized until an acute demand forced them up. Such a demand, he said, would result in building which again would tend to maintain the rent level.

"It is apparent that high taxes are compelling people to pay higher rents, are making conditions more difficult for the landlord without compensation in the way of increased net income, and are holding back the building industry with jobs at high wages," he said.

FORMER BRYSON RESIDENCE MAY BE TORN DOWN

Milton H. Callner of Milton H. Callner & Co. yesterday bought the former residence of the late William J. Bryson, 731 Buena avenue, for a reported $150,000. The property fronts 225 feet on Buena and extends 178 feet through to Gordon terrace, with 150 feet of frontage on that street.

The new owner may raze the house and erect apartments. The land was purchased from the estate of Elizabeth Tonge Bryson.

William J. Bryson, an engineer, was a director in several large Chicago corporations and was president of St. Luke's hospital board. At the age of 80 he married Miss Elizabeth Tonge, a nurse. His first wife, Emma Horton Bryson, was active in Chicago social life.

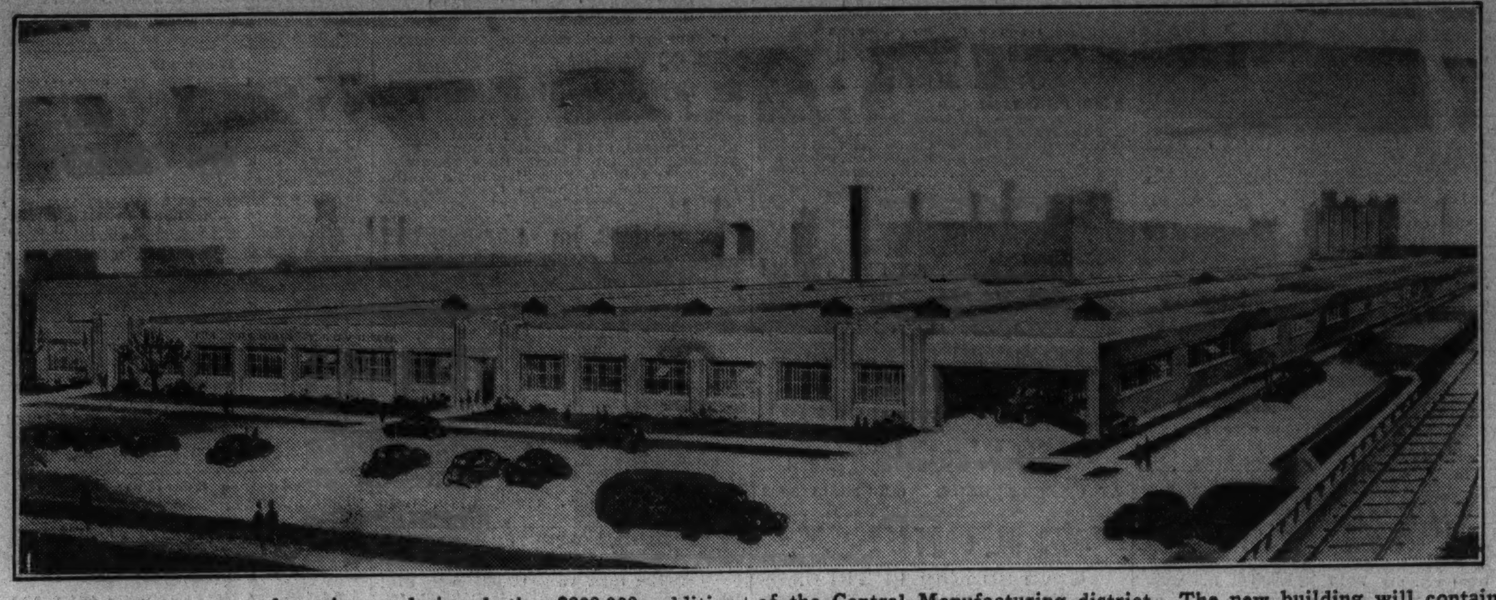
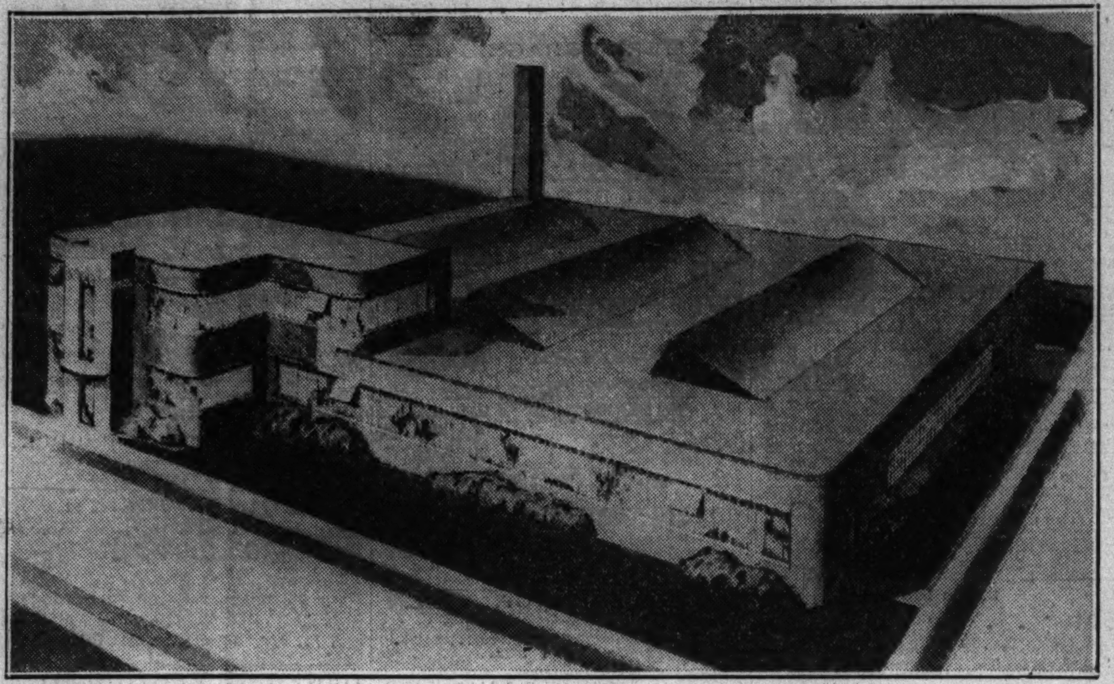
Sherman-Klove Company to Enlarge South Side Plant



A. Epstein, structural engineer, designed the $200,000 addition shown above for the Sherman-Klove company to be built west of and adjoining its plant at 3531 West 47th street in the Kedzie development of the Central Manufacturing district. The new building will contain 54,000 square feet of floor space. Completion is scheduled for Jan. 1, 1938. W. N. Alderman made this sketch.

New Factory Will Have Roof Dancing Floor



Fred C. Foltz is architect of the above plant, being erected by the Manufacturers' Research Institute, Inc., at the northeast corner of Laramie avenue and 66th street, in the Clearing industrial district. The two story office section will be air conditioned. The building will contain 16,500 square feet of floor space. The grounds will be landscaped, with a rock garden and fountain contemplated. A roof garden will be a feature, with dance floor and tables. Completion is set for December.

Nixon Plans 100 Houses on Glenview Road

Following a year of negotiations with the Federal Housing administration George F. Nixon yesterday outlined a building program which, if sales of the first units warrant, will result in the erection of modern homes on 100 residence sites on the south side of Glenview road, four blocks west of the center of Glenview. The 80 acre development is known as Glen Ayre.

Construction is far along on five residences scheduled for completion by Oct. 1. Designed by C. W. Lampe & Associates, these are valued from $16,000 to $25,000 each. Each occupies a site of half an acre or more.

John R. O'Connor, state director of the FHA, yesterday said: "The FHA, in seeking a demonstration project of ideal land utilization, home planning, and advanced construction methods, has been pleased to coöperate in bringing Glen Ayre to fulfilment."

According to Nixon, the FHA has approved a layout for 100 homes. Whether that many are built depends on the attitude of the public, he said. Plans already have been drawn for another group of five.

The development is across from the North Shore Golf club, and is bounded on the south by the Glen View Golf club. The Harms Woods forest preserve is east.

URBAN FAMILIES BUY 500 FARM ACRES IN FOX RIVER VALLEY

Farm sales totaling 500 acres were reported yesterday by A. L. Allen, realtor of St. Charles, near that town and Wayne. The old Winteringham farm on the west side of the Fox river, half way between St. Charles and Elgin, improved with an old stone home more than 100 years old, was bought by Seth D. Sims, an executive of Sears, Roebuck & Co. The owner is remodeling the residence to resemble an old Pennsylvania farmhouse, and will reside in it.

S. E. Baker of Glen Ellyn, president of the Produce Reporter of Chicago, bought the Ed Nessler dairy farm in the Wayne-Bartlett district. The old colonial farmhouse, on a wooded knoll, will be remodeled.

The John P. McDonald farm, seven miles northwest of St. Charles, was purchased by John E. Olson, a commercial artist of Chicago. The property is about 15 per cent wooded and is crossed by a spring fed stream. It has a five room modern house. Olson will live on the farm and commute from Elgin.

PIXLEY & EHLERS LEASE JACKSON-CANAL CORNER

Pixley & Ehlers yesterday leased the southwest corner of Jackson boulevard and Canal street, across from the Union station, for their fifteenth Chicago restaurant. According to Albert J. Pixley, president of the company, the new unit will be opened Nov. 1.

Plans by Architect Frank O. De Money call for walls paneled in maple, with terrazzo floors. Tables will be used exclusively. The exterior of the restaurant space also will be modernized. The policy of installing air conditioning in all of the company's fourteen restaurants will be followed in the new unit.

Pixley & Ehlers were represented in negotiating the ten year lease by William H. Ames, of Aldis & Co. Robert White of Robert White & Co., agents of the building, represented the lessor. The new unit will have 2,040 square feet of floor space, fronting 51 feet on Jackson and 40 feet on Canal.

At the Realty Boards

The dining room at the Chicago Real Estate board was re-opened last Wednesday for fall and winter service to realtors.

Work Started on Factory in Clearing

Work has been started on a new factory and office building for the Manufacturers' Research Institute, Inc., at the northeast corner of South Laramie avenue and West 66th street, in the Clearing Industrial district.

The corporation, principally buyers and sellers of patents and inventions, recently bought 20,100 square feet from the trustees of the district, and also took an option on land to the north for future expansion.

Will Have Roof Garden.

The factory section will be one story, while the air conditioned office unit will be two stories. A feature will be a roof garden on the west front roof of the plant section, 25 by 100 feet, with a dance floor and tables.

The Manufacturers' Research Institute owns the following subsidiaries: The Taylor Weigh Master corporation, the Lessors' Machines corporation, the Service Placement corporation, the Roto-Way corporation, and W. J. Shay and Associates, Inc.

Plans Nine Branches.

The new Clearing plant will be used for the manufacture of water softeners, electric hamburger machines, vending machines, and other items. The company, which now has branches in Milwaukee and St. Louis, will open two more branches in Kansas City and Cincinnati next month.

H. E. Taylor is president and treasurer; Albert G. Burns is vice president, and E. I. Eggleston is secretary. According to H. Perry Phelps, vice president and general manager of Clearing, the district now has 118 firms.

Palmolive Building Now Has 94 Per Cent Occupancy

The Palmolive building is now 94 per cent rented, according to C. E. Olin of Ross, Browne & Fleming, manager of the property. In order to protect large tenants and enable them to expand when necessary, short term leases are being made on smaller spaces, Olin said. Nine concerns recently have enlarged their quarters. Fifteen new tenants have taken space in the building during the last few weeks.

Plan $200,000 Addition to District Unit

Plans were announced yesterday by the Sherman-Klove company for the erection of a $200,000 addition to its plant at 3531 West 47th street, in the Kedzie development of the Central manufacturing district, from plans by A. Epstein, structural engineer.

The new building will occupy part of the 296 by 598 foot yard of the Lake Building Material company, purchased recently for $45,000, which adjoins the present Sherman-Klove plant on the west.

When completed on Jan. 1, 1938, the manufacturing operations of the Sherman-Klove company and its Brazil Stamping division, now in the Clearing industrial district, will be under one roof.

The Brazil unit will use about 25,000 square feet of the 54,000 square feet in the new building. The balance will be used for office, parking, shipping and storage purposes. The present office space of the Sherman-Klove company will be used for manufacturing. About fifty employés will be added to the company's pay roll, increasing it to 180.

The company manufactures socket wrenches, hand tools for mechanics, tool boxes, contract screw machine products, fishing tackle boxes and sheet metal articles. The original plant was built in 1927.

CITY FAMILIES BUY FARMS IN WAUCONDA AREA

Walter F. Sommers, member of the Chicago law firm of Sommers & Sommers, bought the W. M. Koss eighty acre farm two miles north of Cary for a reported $12,000, or at the rate of $150 an acre. He intends developing it into an all-year country home.

Samuel Greene, a Chicago manufacturer, bought the 132 acre farm five miles east of Harvard, adjoining farm lands acquired by him last year, and is operating it as a dairy and grain farm.

F. H. Gesselbrecht of Park Ridge purchased the eighty acre Bolvig farm, three miles northeast of Woodstock, for investment. J. U. Willman of Chicago bought the Otis Phillips forty acres three miles north of Wauconda, which he plans to develop into a country estate.

START WORK ON FOURTEEN MORE MARKHAM HOMES

Work is scheduled to start this week on fourteen more residences in Markham, according to Fred J. Walsh, head of the Fred J. Walsh company. He stated that to date 150 homes in the south side suburb have been completed and sold. Ten are under construction at present, it was reported, all of which were sold before work started.

Announce Plans for New Subdivision in Homewood

Cowing Brothers, Inc., announced the opening yesterday of a new development of one hundred acres in Homewood, between 179th and 183d streets, and Sacramento and California avenues. It has been subdivided into one acre and half acre lots with restrictions. Several homes will be built, it was asserted.

SIXTY-THIRD STREET LEASE.

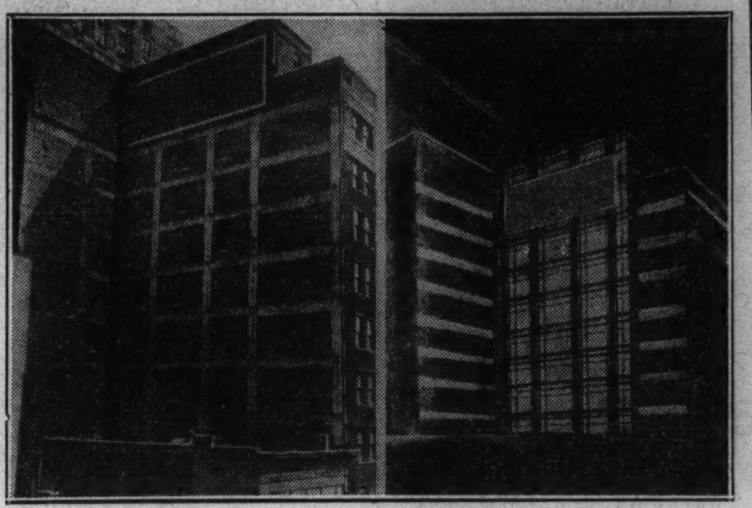
Steel Frame Erected in One Day

This six room residence is reported to be the first of its kind to be erected on the principles of "Lurie construction" of light steel, metal lath, and concrete, according to the Metal Lath Manufacturers' association The owner is Earl J. McMahon, secretary-treasurer of the Chicago Building Trades council. It is being built three miles northeast of Michigan City, Ind., on Oakenwald drive, near Castleton drive, in Garden subdivision. The estimated cost is $15,000. The steel frame bears all the weight, as in a skyscraper; the walls and partitions are non-load bearing. Outer walls are of steel channels and metal lath covered with concrete stucco, finished white. Steel sections for frame were cut to size in the steel shop and electrically welded on the job. The frame was erected in one day.

Making Rear Walls Attractive



The above sketches show the rear walls of the Hartman building, now known as the 30 East Adams building, as they look at present and as they will look when the new decorative scheme of Nathaniel A. Owings has been carried out. All windows are to be bricked up and the two walls painted with vertical and horizontal bands of black and different shades of blue, giving the suggestion of a textile pattern. The fact that these walls are more visible to State street shoppers than the Adams street facade led to this innovation of dressing up a part usually forgotten by architects and owners and left an unsightly architectural blight on the neighborhood.

Twelve Story Hartman Bldg to Be Rebuilt and Renamed

Remodeling of the twelve story building at the northwest corner of Wabash and Adams, formerly occupied entirely by the Hartman Furniture and Carpet company but vacant for several years, was announced yesterday by Aldis & Co., representatives of the owners, the Chicago Real Estate Trustees. It will be converted from a one purpose building into a diversified occupancy structure, and will be renamed the 30 East Adams building.

The first floor will be divided into seven stores with a new and modern lobby, and entrance on Adams street at the west end of the building. The store adjoining the lobby, at 32 East Adams, already has been leased to Mosley & Co., linens, infants' wear, and lingerie, for five years on a minimum guarantee and percentage basis.

Will Decorate Rear Walls.

The new shop will be air conditioned. The lessees already operate three other Chicago shops. W. H. Ames, of Aldis & Co., represented the lessor, and James Liebman of Hooker & Slosson the lessee.

A feature of the rejuvenation of the building will be the treatment of the west and south walls overlooking the building to the west and more visible from State street than the Adams street elevation.

Nathaniel A. Owings, chief of construction at A Century of Progress, and a member of the architectural firm of Skidmore & Owings, has designed a decorative scheme whereby all windows will be bricked in and a design painted over the entire surface, in black and various shades of blue.

Chicago Lags Behind.

It was pointed out by Owings that Chicago is far behind New York and other eastern cities .. the treatment of side and rear walls. If generally adopted throughout the loop, a much more attractive prospect would result, he asserted.

Alfred A. Alschuler, Inc., who was architect of the Hartman building, erected in 1924, is in charge of the remodeling of the interior and the store fronts. Completion is set for Dec. 1. W. H. Ames, of Aldis & Co., is manager of the building and in charge of the renting program.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week of Aug. 20 to 26, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 15, with a combined cost of $982,000. For the corresponding week last year there were 37 contracts totaling $1,978,995. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $41,244,708, compared with $27,229,640 for the same period last year.

CHICAGO CLIMBS TO FIFTH PLACE IN CONSTRUCTION

Building Throughout the Country Gains.

Building construction of all types throughout the country for the first seven months of this year totaled $1,002,592,000. This is a gain of 19 per cent over the corresponding period last year, according to the United States department of labor. All classes of construction registered increases, with the gain in residential building amounting to 23 per cent.

According to Secretary of Labor Perkins, the value of permits issued for new residential construction throughout the country decreased during July. The value of permits was 12 per cent less than in June.

Alterations Increase.

The value of additions, alterations, and repairs also showed a decline of 7 per cent in July. There was a slight rise in the value of new nonresidential construction, the July total being 2 per cent greater than that of June.

Chicago advanced from sixth to fifth place in the list of American cities in its building activities for the first seven months of 1937 as compared with the same period last year.

New York Leads.

	1937 cost.	1936 cost.
New York	$159,401,000	$135,104,000
Los Angeles	43,307,000	33,026,000
Detroit	34,943,000	22,733,000
Washington	30,716,000	26,286,000
Chicago	23,976,000	18,059,000
Philadelphia	22,124,000	13,264,000
Boston	15,555,000	11,662,000
San Francisco	14,560,000	10,569,000
Houston	12,680,000	11,199,000
Baltimore	9,987,000	9,659,000
Cincinnati	9,585,000	18,623,000
Milwaukee	8,665,000	14,552,000

Chicago's increase in building was considerably less than that of Detroit and Los Angeles, which showed gains of $12,000,000 and $10,000,000, respectively.

NILES TOWNSHIP SCHOOL GETS U. S. GIFT OF $346,000

The Niles Township High school board has been advised from Washington that a $346,000 public works administration grant has been approved. According to Ralph E. Cotanche, superintendent of the school, the balance of the funds needed to erect an $855,000 structure already is in the bank, $510,000 having been raised by a bond issue.

The new high school, which will serve Morton Grove, Niles, Lincolnwood, and a large part of Niles Center, will be designed by Royer & Daneley, Urbana architects, ultimately to accommodate 2,500 pupils. The first unit will care for 500. Work is expected to start in November, with completion set for February, 1939.

Ivan Paroubek, chairman of the building arrangement committee, said that the PWA grant of $346,000 was an outright gift to the community and not a combination loan and gift. The new building, he said, would be of modern design. It will be built in the area bounded by Mulford and Dobson streets, Lincoln, Cicero [Skokie highway], and Niles avenues.

Miss Mildred Tess of Niles Center is president of the Niles Township High school board. Frank Ambler of Lincolnwood is secretary. The other members are: Peter J. Kluesing of Niles, Mack D. Falknor of Morton Grove, and Ivan Paroubek of Niles Center.

A Smart Miss Goes to College in a New Wardrobe

By RHEA SEEGER

CLUTCHING your new independence close to your chest—a fine new independence to function without aid or squelching from a too doting family—is the fun of going to college! Next the clothes! For the first time in your life you're going to dress to suit yourself, or the appreciative contemporaries of your own age. Next to collecting a trousseau, getting together a good college wardrobe that will make the necessary impression to last the next four years is, without argument, the biggest thrill of a lifetime. The family are just a couple of degrees more soft hearted about financial aid with this college collection than they will be when you buy bridal finery, so make the most of the occasion.

Because we've heard about sweaters and skirts till our heads as well as yours are foggy, we'll start out with a shocker . . . buy them and wear them if you will, and must follow the crowd, but we vote for jackets and skirts with a few sweaters packed along with these two-somes to appease the diehards. With the jackets and skirts you can contrive stunning get-togethers of color and mixtures of fabrics such as checks, stripes, and what you will. You'll look smart, casual and just enough different from the sweater enthusiasts to make a commotion for the first few days anyway.

Next, we heartily and enviously recommend slim, thin wool dresses! The gay Scotch wools are better and smarter than ever. The tops are fitted, slim and well pocketed, have prim little collars, long sleeves, can be finished with white extra cuffs and collars for special occasions or worn de-nuded o: such extras in time of speed. Zippers trim and hold the brightest and gayest of such dresses on the most active co-ed and nothing better was ever invented than that lightning smooth performer, the zipper.

The third favorite . . . swanky two piece suits of trick and fancy wools in every color imaginable. Deep sapphire blue wools with silver buttons, forest green numbers for red haired co-eds gleaming with brass or gold metal buttons. Stunning, casual, fleecy tweeds and wools with lether thongs and wooden buttons, narrow belts, flared skirts, high necklines to the fitted and very young jackets, slick pockets of unusual shape and a fitted streamline smooth enough to stop the masculine appraisers at first sight.

Some of these suits are really suits, with a slippery silk or satin blouse under the jacket; others are just the two piece uniform idea of skirt with short jacket, worn as sold, or with a rib hugging soft sweater if you like, or with a muffled ascot of either wool, silk or mixture at the neckline. Sometimes they come in a three piece get-together and then you do have something! The long outside coat can be worn with anything you own, and of course the two piece suit can go out with short fur coats, with extra glories like a polo coat for a football game and with last year's long fur coat, if you wish!

One all-around, all-purpose coat of good warm fabric, with either a fur collar or fur trim, is absolutely necessary. These are usually skirt length, or a bit shorter, have deep pockets, wide, loose sleeves and if the collar is of either the fabric or of fur it is comfortably high and warm. Very young looking boxy type coats of light colors as well as vivid tones of green, gold, and red are new this year . . . made of a super-soft wool similar to camel's hair. These are liberally stitched for the only trimming, and have huge buttons and plenty of pockets. The streamlines are considerably straighter than the more dress-parade coats.

Date dresses, the kind you wear for teatime, for any afternoon party and sometimes for dinner are exciting affairs. Whether you select velvet or silk you'll find the sleeves short (elbow length), the skirts flared and full, restrained shirrings making the molded bodice tops and deep vee necklines and a wrap-around sash. Colored sashes with fringed ends can be used for alternates.

Omitting any sweater and skirt combines, we've sketched a few of the available finds. The extras, the dozens of handkerchiefs, the fancy mittens, belts, pins, gloves, lingerie, robes and other paraphernalia we've excluded in favor of the important dresses, suits, and coats.

Women Can Personalize Their Dress

By Bettina Bedwell.

FRENCH mothers begin to train their daughters in the ways of chic early. Clothes, made the most of, are a tremendous force in the life of any girl or woman; if there's an ugly duckling in the family of a French matron, dress is the magic that she uses to make a swan of her. Higher education in making the most of your clothes begins rightly no later than fourteen, according to these women with daughters to marry off, or place to advantage in life.

Stocktaking is the first lesson. Good and bad points of anatomy, complexion, hair, eyes, walk, and temperament are made into an invisible chart. An ugly, witty girl gets an altogether different dose of dress from the easy eyeful with little above the eyebrows, and so forth. This tabulating of the girl by her elders is a pretty ruthless business. The French are realists, and they are dead sure that you can't make roses grow on dandelion stalks, but they are confident that a dandelion can be delightful and not just a mess of greens for the kitchen.

THE biggest handicap to learning how, for the girl from fourteen to twenty or so, is that in the teens they all want to look alike, do the same things, talk the same way. And individuality of looks and manners is the only way for a girl to become effective. She is never too young to give her personality a chance to bloom, and clothes are a wonderful stimulant for budding personalities.

Fear of that terrible ridicule of young compatriots keeps many girls from being as effective as they might be if they dared to be different in dress. And right here is where a wise mother can do some effective spade work, because a girl who goes to school may be dressed with personality without any great big difference in the clothes she wears. She needn't risk becoming a walking joke because her clothes are personal to her.

The girl should be a careful student of the styles, for one thing. Her dress character should be tuned to the fashions of the season just as carefully as are the clothes of any woman of the world who is famous for her chic. But she should choose amongst the styles the coat, dress, and hat that are just enough different from the mass to give her an arresting appearance because they seem to be made expressly for her—to pay compliments to all her good points and to conceal or make nothing of her bad.

ONE chief reason why the French girl is so devastatingly effective in her way of dressing is that she doesn't try to look pretty in the current pattern unless she happens to be born looking that way. She makes up for lack of prettiness in grooming, knowing that that soigné air in a woman of any age is far more effective to the male species than any amount of prettiness. Hair à la Garbo is okay for the girl with natural beauty, but the trim, perfectly tended head, hair dressed to bring out every good line is far more potent.

The tall, slender girl looks enchanting the kind of loose, sporty topcoat that so many co-eds wear, but the tubby lass and the little girl had better pick something else, if they'd care to look effective around the campus. This fall the straight tweed topcoat that's about knee length and has broad shoulders and little or no collar is the co-ed's meat, but it's going to look pretty awful on the girl who hasn't a small, neat head, and who is short and on the dumpy side.

THE pyjamas that college girls usually wear around their rooms for study are dangerous medicine for many girlish figures to take. The girl with fleshy waistline and hips, and who hasn't enough energy to reduce it, would be a lot easier to look at in Jean Patou's new peasant pyjamas which are made of vivid dark blue jersey with a trim white sports blouse under the smock.

Mainbocher's youthful fall suit has personality that a girl can cultivate. The jacket and skirt are made of bordeau red wool cut on very slim lines, the jacket buttoning up the center front to a collarless neckline and pockets set under the side bands.

A young dress that Mainbocher has just made for Annabella, the French film star, is of cornflower blue taffeta, with a swing skirt hung from a fitted hip yoke.

Mainbocher's dance dress with a sky blue tulle bodice and new high-low swing skirt shows feet and ankles at the front.

5203

No. 5203—The Paris pattern for this street dress is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Here is a Paris pattern, No. 5203, for that smart dress you'll be wanting to wear on the street during the first days of September, when everythin gyou have seems so stale and uninteresting.

The original Paris model from which this is taken was made of vivid blue and green, narrow striped sheer woolen, the stripes worked vertically. It is extremely chic in stripes, but may be made just as well of a monotone material. The three bows that fasten the front of the blouse and the belt are made of the striped material worked horizontally. If you use one-color material the bows may be in a contrasting shade. Wine red bows would be smart and autumnal on a dark blue dress.

You may make the sleeves short or long. The pattern will make a delightful dress of cotton material to wear at once, and the garment may be worn also as a house dress.

Etiquet of the Maid Includes Special Rules

What information should be given in an invitation to a bridal shower? Helpful suggestions are given in the booklet, "The Bridal Shower," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. Get a copy at either of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

THE column today is being devoted to questions and answers, but the queries are to be confined to one subject, that of the etiquet to be observed by the maid servant. Girls and women who take up the duties of the domestic servant as a profession will find that there is a great deal to learn if they want to do the job efficiently. By knowing the proper and correct procedures for this and that situation they can make themselves indispensable to their employers and so increase their value and their earning capacity.

It is true that no two houheholds operate under the same routine, and, naturally, every employer of domestic help is responsible for acquainting her servants with the manner in which she wishes to have things done. But the more a maid knows before she is hired the less she will have to be told, the more to be appreciated for her intelligence and interest in her work. Employers who do not take the trouble to indicate their wishes have only themselves to blame for any lack of understanding. And maids who do not take the trouble to learn what is expected and do as they're told have only themselves to blame when they frequently find themselves out of a job.

Besides the way things are to be done there should be a clear understanding about wages, working hours, time off, whether the work is to include cooking, laundering, care of children, etc., living accommodations, telephone restrictions, and whether the maid is to be allowed to entertain her own friends. Employers should not be unreasonable in their demands, however.

1. What is the correct way for a maid to answer the telephone? The conventional "Hello" is a common way of responding. Or she might repeat her telephone number by saying, "This is State 0000." Or she might say, "This is Mrs. B's residence." If the individual being called is not at home the servant should say, "I'm sorry, Mrs. B. is not at home just now. Who is calling, please?" All messages should be carefully recorded and delivered. Maids should not accept collect long distance calls without being authorized to do so. The same applies to collect telegrams.

2. How should a maid announce dinner? She should come to the door of the living room where her mistress is entertaining her guests and, after she has gained her attention by speaking her name, simply nod or say, "Dinner is served." The hostess will then invite her guests to the dining room.

3. Should a maid be allowed to wear jewelry? None, or at least very little. Certainly none of the spangly bracelets or dangling earrings.

4. When serving the dinner, how should the servant replenish the water and wine glasses? Both water and wine glasses are refilled by the maid, allowing the glasses to remain where they are on the table. Under no circumstances does she pick up the glass in order to refill it.

5. Is the table set with bread and butter plates for a formal dinner? No. Bread and butter plates never are used at a formal dinner and seldom used at an informal dinner, the reason being that butter is not served at a formal dinner. Butter is not necessary because cold hard breads are served that do not require butter. And also the food always is supposed to be properly seasoned before being brought to the table.

Woman Works for 14 Months on Large Quilt

FOURTEEN months of work in "piecing" a huge quilt of 19,200 separate parts is "no job at all" for Mrs. Lillian Edwards Stead, 83.

Mrs. Stead in 1908 went alone to the bleak Montana plains and homesteaded 160 acres of land.

"It's a sin and a shame the way so many people refuse to work," said Mrs. Stead, who during the world war worked in a garment factory on a power machine, despite her then advanced age.

Born in Ohio, a school teacher at the age of 13, Mrs. Stead has crossed the continent "times without number," she says, and has been in Japan, Persia, India, and other out-of-the-way places.

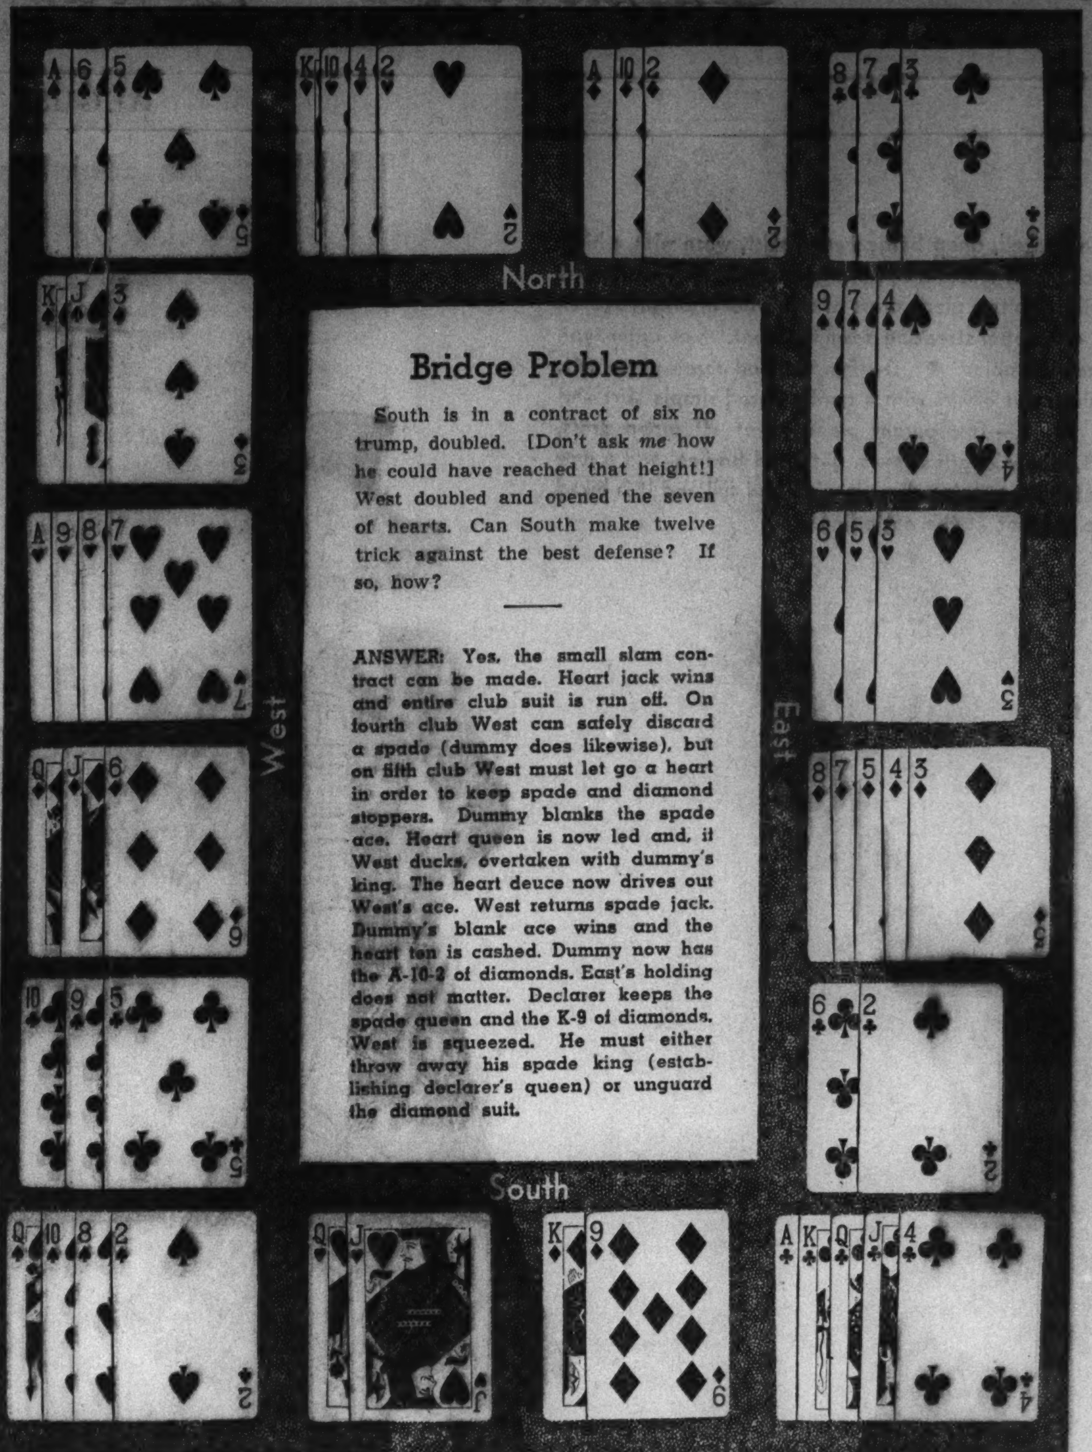
Contract and Jo-Jotte by Culbertson



Bridge Problem

South is in a contract of six no trump, doubled. [Don't ask me how he could have reached that height!] West doubled and opened the seven of hearts. Can South make twelve trick against the best defense? If so, how?

ANSWER: Yes, the small slam contract can be made. Heart jack wins and entire club suit is run off. On fourth club West can safely discard a spade (dummy does likewise), but on fifth club West must let go a heart in order to keep spade and diamond stoppers. Dummy blanks the spade ace. Heart queen is now led and, if West ducks, overtaken with dummy's king. The heart deuce now drives out West's ace. West returns spade jack. Dummy's blank ace wins and the heart ten is cashed. Dummy now has the A-10-2 of diamonds. East's holding does not matter. Declarer keeps the spade queen and the K-9 of diamonds. West is squeezed. He must either throw away his spade king (establishing declarer's queen) or unguard the diamond suit.

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.)

EVERY ONE understands, I think, that contract bridge is composed of many closely integrated departments [in the bidding, opening bids, overcalls, sacrifice bids, penalty doubles are a few of these departments; in the play, opening leads, trump management, end plays of many types, etc., etc.] Also, every one senses that the tremendous fascination of the game springs from the variety of these departments.

Many of the departments referred to must be further subdivided for intimate understanding. Take the department of penalty doubles. Superficially it might be said that we should double the opponents for penalties whenever we feel reasonably sure we can defeat them at their contract, always provided, of course, that this defeat will return us more points than we could gain by continued bidding. As a formula this is all very well, but the application of it is quite another matter.

A great many different factors should enter into our cogitations when we think about a penalty double. First, of course, there is the matter of respective vulnerability. We all know that if we are vulnerable and the opponents are not we must not be sidetracked from a game by the lure of a few hundred points. But this is an oft-told tale. Let us proceed to a more advanced discussion.

Penalty doubles have another function besides that of punishing the opponents. They can and should be used as red lanterns, to warn partner that he should proceed warily with his bidding. Let us assume that, with both sides vulnerable, our partner has dealt and bid one spade. Second hand overcalls with two diamonds and we hold one of the following hands:

♥	Q 7 5 2	♥	3
♦	Q 10 6 4	♦	Q 10 6 4
♣	K 9 7 5	♣	K 9 7 5

Holding hand No. 1 we should jump at the chance to double two diamonds. Not only do we feel that there is an excellent chance to defeat the contract, but [and this is even more important], we must flash a warning to partner that if he proceeds with his spade bidding he does so at his own peril. Failure to double the diamond overcall may lead to dire consequences for us. The next hand may pass and our partner, lured by the apparent fact that the opponents are not "loaded" [one player merely overcalled, he did not double, and his partner neither raised nor took out to no trump or another suit], is extremely apt to rebid his spades if only to prevent a part score. Our double of two diamonds has the additional merit of being able to stand a rescue by the other defender. If the latter bids two hearts and our own partner doubles we will be delighted.

Incidentally, I had better take this occasion to say that those players who would neither double two diamonds nor pass, but who would barge into two no trump, would be taking the worst action of all possible. The double stopper in opponents' suit would not begin to compensate for the dearth of general strength and the misfit with partner's spade suit. I cannot say too often that no trump is not, except in rarest circumstances, a haven for misfitting hands.

One further observation concerning the soundness of the two diamond double with hand No. 1. If the doubled contract is fulfilled we have not lost very much; the opponents' score will be only 80 and hence game is not involved. The 40 points resulting from the double are the cheapest insurance possible against our own partner's becoming embroiled in a bad spade contract.

Now let us consider hand No. 2 in the same situation. It will be noted that the high cards are precisely the same, that our diamond and club holdings remain identical. Instead of a low singleton in partner's suit, however, we now have four to the queen. This change is a tremendous one—so tremendous that we must not even consider doubling two diamonds. Not only is there a good chance that game is within our grasp in spades, but a double of two diamonds would almost certainly be a futile gesture. The overcaller's partner will probably rescue in hearts—a suit against which we have little or no defense. Consequently, with hand No. 2, the obviously correct action is to raise our partner's spade bid.

Not so long ago most players felt that the only good double of a low contract was with hands that contained at least four, and preferably, five, of the opponents' trumps. North having opened the proceedings with one heart and East having overcalled with two diamonds, South, holding such a hand as:

♦ Q J 10 5 4 2

would bellow "Double" as though he had found a gold mine. Then, when the next opponent rescued with two spades and partner promptly "whacked," he would find himself on the well known "spot." Naturally he could not possibly stand a double of two spades and, therefore, would run out to three hearts. Unless he was born under a lucky star this runout would find the opening bidder with a sketchy suit and the opponents with plenty of honor tricks that would warant a penalty double on their own account.

It has taken me a long time to convince the rank and file of players that the juiciest penalties accrue from situations where each defender holds three trumps instead of one defender holding six. [Of course I do not refer to those heaven-sent opportunities where a defender has trumps in sequence, something like K Q J 10 9, and can lead them out.] The following hand, taken from my Red Book on Play, is an outstanding example of what can happen to a defender's trumps.

	♥ 5 3 2
	♦ A 7 4 3 2
	♣ A K 8 4
♠ J 10 8		♠ K Q 9 7 2
♥ K J 9 8 7		♥ 6
♦ K Q		♦ J 10 9
♣ Q J 10		♣ 9 7 6 5
	SOUTH

This celebrated hand, when originally dealt, was played by South at a contract of two no trump, which was set. Cursory analysis of the combined North-South hands makes it appear that diamonds is the best suit, with the maximum trick taking possibility nine tricks. Close analysis reveals the amazing fact that South can make a contract of four hearts against any defense, although on the surface of things he has six losers!

West opens the club queen; dummy's king wins and a spade is led to the ace and a second spade ruffed. The club ace and a club ruff with South's heart four are followed by another spade ruff in dummy. Now the diamond ace and a low diamond are led; West must win and lead a heart to South's A-Q-10. South next leads another of his losers; West must trump and lead another heart to South's A-Q, giving him ten tricks in all. No other opening lead by West, not even a trump, could affect this result.

[More about penalty doubles next Sunday.]

Jo-Jotte Pointer

YOUR play of a suit must be regulated by the number of cards your opponent probably holds in that suit. If you hold, in some side suit, A-10-J-7 you do not want to lead out the ace and then the ten if there is great danger that your opponent can ruff one or both of them and take their ten point scoring value for himself. If you have some reason for thinking he is very short in that suit, you will win the first trick with the ace and then lead the seven so that when he trumps it he will not get a pay card from you. If you may reasonably assume that he has at least two cards of that suit you will hasten to take in both the ace and the ten to score the points for yourself. Your assumption regarding the probable number of cards held by your opponent in any suit will be based on probabilities; the information card and turned trump, and what honor meld, if any, your opponent has shown. As to the information card and turned trump, you simply add them in when determining your length in any given suit.

Advertising Is to Be Subject at Conference

By Betty Browning.

WHAT the buying public thinks about advertising and what the advertising man thinks will be aired at a conference sponsored by women's advertising clubs of the middle west the week-end of Sept. 18 and 19 at the Hotel La Salle.

Consumer relations will be the theme of this fourth annual intercity conference at which the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago will be host to members of women's advertising clubs from Toledo, Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee, and St. Louis. Also invited is the public at large—manufacturers, distributors, housewives, business men and women, and members of clubs and parent-teacher associations.

THE consumer's viewpoint and the advertiser's will be stated at the opening luncheon Saturday, Sept. 19, when H. G. Weaver and Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson will speak for the advertisers and Mrs. Marie Stuart Edwards of Peru, Ind., and Mrs. Frank B. Staely for the consumers.

Mr. Weaver is head of customers' research for General Motors corporation and Mrs. Richardson a pioneer advertising woman and associate editor of the Woman's Home Companion. Mrs. Edwards is a former national vice president of the League of Women Voters and Mrs. Staely a former American home chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mr. Walker recently addressed the convention of the Advertising Federation of America in New York. Following his talk the National Broadcasting company will broadcast a program of entertainment from 9 to 10 o'clock from the banquet room.

Miss Mercedes Hurst.

Winding up the conference will be an informal discussion for members of women's advertising clubs at a breakfast Sunday morning at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Miss Mercedes Hurst, advertising manager of the Commonwealth Edison company and former president of the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago, is chairman of the conference. Miss Edna Fitch heads the hostess organization.

A series of meetings have been announced for Monday through Friday in connection with the 1937 institute of human relations to be held this week at Williamstown.

Principal speakers will be Mrs. Mary Swain Routzahn, director of the department of social work interpretation of the Russell Sage Foundation; Mrs. Marion M. THE Martha Washington club, which sponsors the event, is arranging a program of entertainment through Mrs. George Low, house chairman, and Mrs. Perry J. Gartley, garden chairman.

Mrs. George Low. [Moffett Photo.]

In 1926 the club founded the home after maintaining a number of crippled children in individual homes for several years. Since 1907 the club had provided hospital treatment, wheel chairs, braces, and other assistance for crippled children, and the home was a natural outgrowth of the need of the crippled child for care after the hospital treatment was completed.

The home is equipped to care for thirty-nine children, and here they remain three months or ten years, depending upon how long care is needed. Self-reliance is the keynote of the children's training. Before a child is accepted at the home the case committee, headed by Mrs. Low, investigates his need for care.

Members of the executive board of the club reëlected to a third term are Mrs. William B. Bowers, president; Mrs. Frank O'Brien, Mrs. Frank H. Hinrichs, and Mrs. Low, vice presidents; Mrs. Luella R. Davis, recording secretary; Mrs. Rollo K. Packard, treasurer. Mrs. A. H. Green is the new corresponding secretary.

Chairmen besides Mrs. Gartley and Mrs. Low are Mrs. O'Brien, program; Mrs. Harry Mohlman, art; Mrs. Lydia Thomas Raley, literature; Mrs. Luella R. Davis, music; Mrs. Edward J. Marum, public health and child hygiene; Mrs. Henry O. Heitman, public welfare; Mrs. F. H. Hendrichs, clubwoman; Mrs. A. J. Gillet, membership; Mrs. J. A. Cousins, social; Mrs. F. B. Reynolds, visiting; Mrs. Henry Mundt, revisions; Mrs. Percy Gerhart, printing; Miss Lena Zoe Hall, social service worker.

CORSETED lines are the pet of the current fashion season. Frocks incorporating this styling are figure flatterers, and you really must have at least one such dress in your autumn collection. All the soft, supple fabrics were born for this mode, and the fashion is so simple in its design that you can't possibly tire of it. A dress styled along corseted lines will serve your chic well during the long autumn and winter season.

The model presented today has a plain V neck against a soft background of gathered fullness. This latter feature originates in the bodice shirring which begins just above the fitted waistline panel. A seam all the way down the front from neckline to hem gives an effect of slenderness and height. A few little buttons grace this seam at the waist sector.

You will like the sleeves, too. They are draped, if short, and fitted, if long, but both types have graceful puffiness at the shoulders, conducive to breadth. The skirt is full and flattering without the use of plaits. There is a belt, too, of self fabric to lend further smartness to the waistline.

Style No. 2946 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material for the short-sleeved model.

Latest Stoves Bring Magic Into Kitchen

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"ABRACADABRA" and other magical words were mumbled by fabulous genii when about to perform miracles. Today's genii omit the magic formulas, producing one miracle after another in such rapid succession that sometimes we forget to marvel.

The new gas and electric ranges are miracles, and they themselves perform miracles of cookery. A woman with an electric stove may be gone from home all day and return in the evening to find that her time clock regulated stove has cooked the evening meal for her. She may spend the afternoon shopping or at bridge, trusting her oven to proof her yeast bread for half an hour, bake it for an hour and a half, and then cool off, leaving the bread baked to a golden brown and waiting to be removed from the oven. She and her family may awaken late on Sunday morning, remove hot muffins and baked eggs from the oven and proceed to eat breakfast. She may pop baking powder biscuits into a cold oven at ten to six and take them out at six, fluffy and golden.

THIS last miracle of cooking never ceases to bring a gasp from cooking school audiences watching a commercial demonstration of a range. Into a cold oven go the biscuits, a switch is turned, and they are forgotten for ten minutes, after which they are taken out, ready to eat. Gas stoves will do the same thing in twelve to fourteen minutes, and when the first batch of biscuits has been removed the demonstrator will pop another pan into the oven, turn off the gas, and bake the biscuits on retained heat.

The new streamlined ranges are designed for economy of operation and economy of design. Both gas and electric stoves will cook on retained heat after the gas or the current has been shut off. Both are fast-heating, clean, and well insulated to prevent heat loss and heat transference to the surface of the stove. Both have temperature controls for accurate ovenwork, both can boast of even heat, an assurance that the cake will not scorch around the edges.

The new ranges are constructed so as to utilize space ordinarily wasted for warming ovens, utensil cupboards and drawers. They have table-top surfaces, so that it is possible to make and bake cookies, for instance, in the same place.

ELECTRIC stoves, many of them, are equipped with five or six quart cookers which either fit down into the surface of the range or are attached to a compartment door. These utensils are economical devices for cooking an entire dinner at one operation and with the use of very little current. They may be used as steamers and sterilizers, too. The cooker which fits into the surface of the range looks something like a burner, and does not occupy any space above the top of the stove.

Speed units, the efficient timing clocks which can be trusted to watch a meal during the cooking process, appliance outlets on the stove itself which may be used with the timing device, and scientifically designed smokeless and spatterless broilers are among the miracles of electric cookery.

Gas range miracles include heat control which will maintain a temperature as low as 225 degrees for any length of time, easy to clean burners, high speed ovens, and a perfected broiler which operates separately from the oven, thus making it possible to use broiler and oven at different temperatures at the same time.

The old complaint against electric stoves was that of slow operation. The complaint against gas stoves was that of being "dirty." Both faults have been remedied. Electric ranges now are speedy; gas ranges are clean. Both are designed for the greatest ease of cleaning. Both are made of beautiful and durable materials, and either is capable of being a kitchen robot which soon becomes indispensable to its owner.

Eastern Co-eds Favor Reversible Swagger Coats

THE college girls from eastern schools agree that a reversible swagger coat, tweed on one side and water-repellant gabardine on the other, is the best all-around coat for the college wardrobe. It is fall and spring topcoat and raincoat all in one bundle and, in addition, is very smart.

Astrakhan and ocelot furs appear as trimming for evening dresses. Some ocelot trimmings are embroidered with multi-colored paillettes.

New Flower Bowls Made with Holders for Stems

ARTISTIC new flower bowls, wide and shallow, are now made with a perforated china holder for the stems as an integral part of the whole. This makes for an artistic floral arrangement. The price of the bowl is most reasonable.

Bake cheese biscuit dough in a ring mold. Unmold and spread it, while warm, with butter. Fill the center with a crisp salad. Pass additional salad dressing in a bowl.

Camay THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Is It Likely Men Will Be Housekeepers?

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

WE ARE asked what we think of the recently broadcast declaration that man's place, not woman's, is in the home, as proposed at the meeting of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

This type of argument does not do the feminine cause any particular good. The thing for women to bear in mind is that men are not keeping women tied to the dishpan, to the washtub, or to the range in the kitchen these days. If they want to go out and make a place for themselves in business, professional or political life, they're given a fairly free trial at it. Not by the foolish suggestion that men be removed from their public path entirely are they going to accomplish the career successes for which they cry.

THE fact is as plain as the nose on a face that women, with rare exceptions, in search of public distinction, or business or professional success, have not the one track mind and concentration that earns said distinction. They do not go at said success as does a man who gives it everything he has, making it his whole existence. The old daughter of Eve still has her heart set on her home and her family, whether she has them in the palm of her hand or hopes some day to have them there.

But, to go back to the kitchen and other household duties to which one sometimes is supposed to believe our women are tied to the exclusion of all else, how many women do you know who are virtual slaves to their home jobs? How many more do you know who have hours upon hours in the course of a week for pursuit of study, amusement, or whatever lies in their course of interest?

How many women, which is more to the point, could bear to have a man puttering around home doing the jobs they've been trained in for ages? How many women do you know who wouldn't develop a sublime contempt for the masculine fuss-budget who got in her way at every turn around the house? The fact that he isn't the big provider, the mate a woman can look up to as the source from which the major blessings flow, at least, is to put it mildly, the sourest of trials the average woman must bear. Look up divorce statistics and verify the influence on them of the wife whose contempt for her mate was, and is, based on just this particular form of disappointment. It's natural in women, an urge that not all modernism has been able to subdue.

WHAT happens invariably, when the woman does succeed in taking over the great outside rôle as bigger and better provider, is that she still wants and expects her man to be a bigger and better provider. The last thing she wants to see is her mate done up in a kitchen apron, performing the duties a maid might easily be engaged to perform. It is the inconsistency of women that is to be deplored in this great scheme of theirs of taking over the outside world. Woman wants not only the proverbial cake after she has consumed it, but she wants masculine devotion and she wants said devotion from a man whose own distinguished success appoints her an envious place among her own sex.

In support of my contention, a group of women drawn from ranks similar to those from whence came the recent suggestion that man's place is in the home, early this spring put on an exhibition of their own confessed inadequacy in the pursuit of the business and professional success they speak so loudly about. It was an occasion on which there was material in their own ranks for exploitation. But the dinner, the meeting and the occasion were given over to presenting diplomas to men in various ranks of business and professional work who had been good to women. No diplomas to women, understand, who'd raised themselves to places in the business and professional sun.

Long and wordy eulogies were offered to this and that man organization head who had permitted women to advance in their particular fields. Not a word volunteered for those women who'd probably worked their heads off getting to a coveted spot in the organization. Perhaps the Greeks had a word for the motive back of this particular exhibition, but to us it was no more, no less than a public acknowledgment of woman's native pleasure in feeling she could look up to some man for her success.

As long as she is built that way, and woman obviously is built that way, any talk of her abandoning her home to the ministrations of a man untrained and definitely unqualified for the rôle, is just talking with tongue in cheek and uttering the most banal follies.

Woman's place is not in the home every minute. There are all kinds of outlets for her energies. There are political plums [of a kind] and business and professional ones open to her if she is willing to give everything she has to getting them. It's the half-hearted yapping for them that is deplored and the onus they would attach to the other sex as barriers when the real barrier is a dishonesty in women themselves about what they actually want most from life.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

IF your last season on campus was socially successful, you can bet your pet cigaret case that at least one beau will be on hand to greet you when your train rolls into the college town. The old adage about first impressions really holds water, so you had better wear the correct frock that day to recapture the old conquests and, hopefully, kindle a few new heart flames! Your pal Carolyn, being an old hand at this wardrobe-as-a-beau-catcher business, is offering you a grand model with which to slay the waiting crowd at the station. [Business girls take notice: This frock will help you win or keep a job if nothing else will!]

There's nothing arbitrary about the styling of this dress, by the way. You have a choice of pocket treatment, buttons or zipper, and "up" or "down" collar. But you can't get away from the beautifully fitted bodice lines, the smart flare of the skirt, and the trig air of the sleeves. These are the dress. What you do with the relatively trivial matters of pockets and collars is up to you.

Woolens, naturally, are prime favorites for this model. Dark and bright shades are equally suitable, and novelty weaves are ideal. Don't forget about contrast. The collar, cuffs, pocket kerchief and belt, as well as buttons and zipper, give you plenty of leeway in this regard.

Style No. T-8529 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19 years.

LADIES, here's something a certain man who is recognized as a beauty connoisseur calls attention to. Decide yourself whether you think his charge is just or unjust:

"Why, in the name of blazes," sez he [only what he said was worse'n that]. "Why" sez he, "do women spend so many millions on paint and powder and such stuff? What good does it do 'em when every other woman you meet in a day's run looks as if she were sore at the world?

"Better to save their cosmetic money and get themselves whatever it is their yenning for. They must be wanting something they can't have or they wouldn't go around looking so darned sour!"

In other words, ladies, he thinks we would better buy a smile than buy paint for our lips and faces! Well, anyway, a more pleased look!

Being male, of course, he doesn't know that a lady today would rather be found dead than without makeup. What's more, he doesn't know what creams and lotions do for the skin, nor for the morale. We couldn't any more live without our cosmetics than we could live without food. But what, sez we, is to prevent us from checking in on both counts—the well groomed face and the pleasing one worn at one and the same time. There's no rule against so doubly insuring the face with charm, is there?

IT seems to me that lately I have been hearing a lot about this type of thing. Perhaps it is all that's left about the femme faces to complain about, since women have gone a long way toward turning a flawless skin to the sun.

But take a walk some day and I'll take one, too, with nothing on our minds but the search for a really pleasing face; a face that looks as if it were expressing enjoyment of life; a face that looks untroubled, calm, lovely. Keep count of how many such you meet and see if our other sex complainant is correct in saying that every other face will be a slightly soured one. Then, when we are through counting, let's check up on ourselves and see what we have been giving out in facial expression to passers-by.

I do think we women have neglected this vital feature of beauty development. Not consciously. Not intentionally. We just have developed habits that are none too kind to our faces. We probably are concerned with so many, many things that have to do with money and work that we get to thinking in terms of worry anent these dominating factors in life. Then, we get notions about people. We've been hurt by a remark, or we have thoughtlessly dispensed one. We are worrying about the youngsters' schooling, their clothes, their dancing, and music lessons. All of which is natural enough—but does not need to be indulged in all of the time.

The face ought to have a little leisure time to enjoy things and spread enjoyment. There is nothing truer on earth than what you are thinking is reflected in this open chart of ours, the center of which sprouts a nose. And it is true that we do spend an enormous amount of money fixing up the face for ourselves, for our beaux, for our company, and then go and spoil everything by putting on an expression the last minute that is ruinous to our fame as appealing individuals. It's a million times worse in unflatteringness than a hat of the vintage of ten years ago—and not one-half so funny.

BEAUTY, you see, ladies, is no longer a thing of just local care, as clearing skin and slimming down the figure and presenting rose petal nail tips. It is far more. It is being engaging, charming. It is attracting people with a warmth of expression, with hope, with cheer. Margaret Culkin Banning once used an expression in a story of hers about "a handsome individual with an air of carefully stored and refrigerated youth!" Have not you seen carefully stored and refrigerated expressions? Haven't you seen faces that are perfectly groomed masks, but masks only. Not a grain of anything from behind the scene flashing through in an expression of life, of interest, of kindliness. Just nothing written thereon but what has been locally written by a master cosmetician hand!

Talking with an internationally famous dressmaker recently she spoke of the way French women think of themselves [rather think of their duty] as women of alluring charms. She was referring at the moment to the color this lent to Frenchwoman's charm of dress. But couldn't the idea be just as well incorporated into the facial expression?

The most of us go around looking as if we were Atlases carrying the burdens of the world on our shoulders. If a friend steps up, we may manage a lift of the mouth corners and a brightening of the eye. The friend departs on his or her way and back we slide into the old grim habit of jaw setting, mouth clamping and eye-hardening. Now, if we thought of ourselves as alluring femmes, the first thing we would do would be to look fairly pleased with ourselves, wouldn't we? That's the way we aim to look when we get our pictures taken for posterity to remember us by? It must be the way we wish to look.

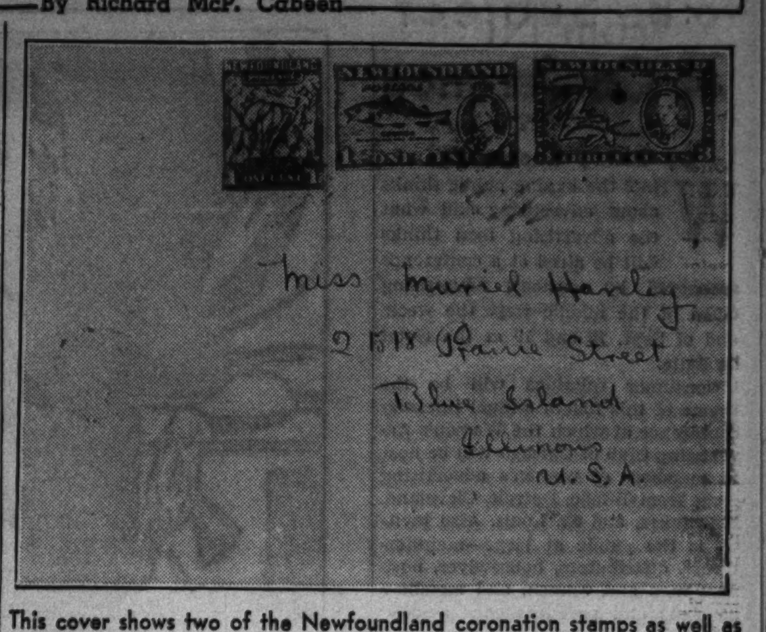
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen



This cover shows two of the Newfoundland coronation stamps as well as an earlier codfish stamp. The three cent value is an example of the fine line variety explained in an adjoining column. The cover is shown through the kindness of Miss Muriel Hanley of Blue Island, Ill.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

IN the four months which have elapsed since the coronation stamps were placed on sale, collectors and dealers have been busy with magnifying glasses, checking over full sheets of stamps on the lookout for varieties.

Several items of interest have been located in the Newfoundland special issue, one of which is a very fine double transfer on the 14 cent Newfoundland dog stamp. Stamp No. 40 in the sheet, that is, the fourth stamp from the top in the right hand vertical row, shows distinct doubling of the letters of the inscription "Newfoundland Dog." Similar doubling, but much less apparent, will be found in the two stamps directly above and in the stamp just below stamp No. 40.

The stamps of the 20 cent value were poorly transferred to the plate, and it was necessary to redraw the top line of each one. The result is that each stamp differs slightly from all of the others, but these differences are hardly worth the investment which would be necessary to obtain all of the varieties.

Stamp No. 55 of this value has a minor defect near the upper left, making it appear that a tiny feather of smoke arises from the last complete building on that side.

The most important discovery regarding the Newfoundland issue is that the 3 cent stamps have been printed from two distinct plates. One of these shows the portrait of George VI. to be composed of coarse lines while the other uses the same fine lines found in other values of the set.

It appears that the stamps delivered in England and distributed to dealers and collectors from that point were of the coarse line variety while supplies shipped to the colony were from the other plate. A first day cover and quite recent shipments from Newfoundland show only the fine line variety.

In addition, it will be found that the Newfoundland issue comes in two varieties of perforations. Some values are of one, some of the other and a few come with both types of perforations.

The coronation issues for the crown colonies were supplied by two printers, Bradbury Wilkinson, and De La Rue. The former furnished the stamps for Antigua, British Solomon Islands, Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus, Dominica, Falkland Islands, Fiji, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Grenada, Hongkong, Newfoundland, Nigeria, Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Swaziland, and Virgin Islands, while the latter furnished the stamps for the remaining 22 colonies.

Figures released by the postoffice department reveal that there are only 5,748 possible complete sets of covers available from the first flight of the China Clipper to the Asiatic mainland. The dates of postmarks and number of covers carried from point to point, follow:

April 21, San Francisco to Macao, 12,488; do, to Hong Kong, 31,377; April 23, Honolulu to Macao, 5,853; do, to Hongkong, 8,049; April 27, Guam to Macao, 7,023; do, to Hongkong, 7,645; April 28, Manila to Macao, 12,303; do, to Hongkong, 15,576 Macao to Hongkong, 9,547; do, to Manila, 9,100; do, to San Francisco, 10,988; April 29, Hongkong to Manila, 8,200; do, to Guam, 5,748; do, to Honolulu, 5,810, and do, to San Francisco, 20,287.

Collectors who anticipated covers from Hong Kong addressed to Macao, were unaware that the far eastern flight was in a loop from Manila to Macao, thence to Hongkong and back to Manila. Macao and Hongkong are so closely located that there would have been no point in stopping at the former on both the westbound and eastbound legs of the round trip.

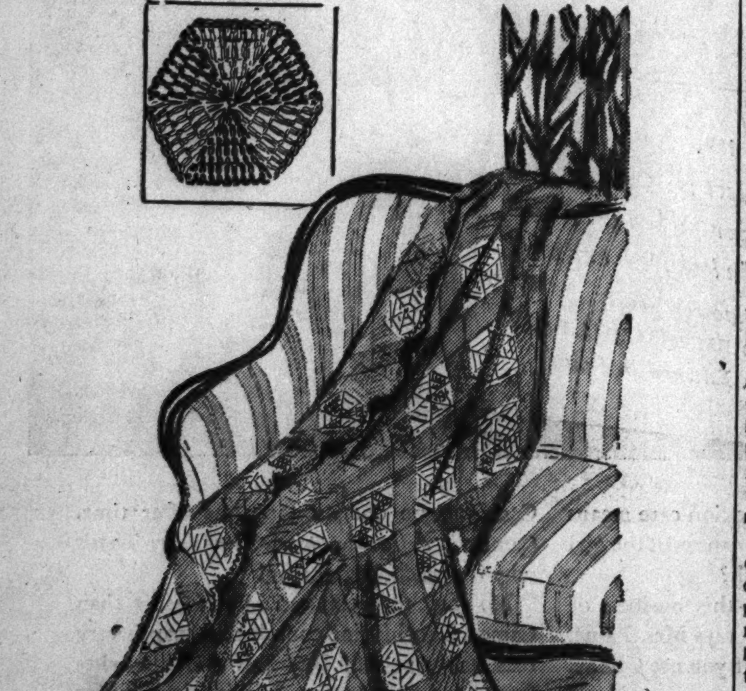
This Afghan Has Taken Prizes at County Fairs



By Ellen Bruce.

VISITING the various state and county fairs at this time of the year one sees all the best examples of crochet work on exhibition. The Afghan group produces more beauty in color and design in one spot than can be imagined. Some of the good old squares that we were taught to make as a child are there, and an enormous number of those not so common and considerably more difficult are outstanding. The crochet hexagon block for an Afghan illustrated today is one of the old favorites which has earned prizes in practically every fair where it was shown. It may be made in two or more colors or in a monotone. The single pieces do not take any time to crochet and they may be set together by crochet or weaving. To utilize partially used balls of yarn one can make an Afghan with no two shades alike and easily achieve a brilliant rainbow hued coverlet for that quick afternoon catnap.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the Afghan of hexagonal blocks illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

A THOUGHT

Vacation days are nearly gone,
I wonder how they went so fast?
They're not a bit like winter days
That last, and last, and last, and last!

If I were Time and made the months
I'd make them just the other way—
From fall to summer, how they'd flash!
But how they'd dawdle, after May!

First Child Often Suffers from Neglect

We have two leaflets which may be interesting in this connection. They are: "Wholesome Neglect Is Often Cure For Undesirable Behavior" and "Is Quarreling Necessary?" Each leaflet requires a large, 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address Mrs. Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

EXTRACTS from mothers' conversations:

"I take Barbara so much more easily than I took her brother. Billy was so high strung I was always upset if he was supposed to take a nap but lay awake. I was so worried whenever he was out of my sight—and he used to wake up at night with nightmares—and a dozen thinks like that which are entirely different with Barbara."

"I certainly am more carefree with my second baby than I was with my first, and in some ways I really enjoy her more than I did her older sister. I was always so tense about June—about her food and sleep and all her ways, but I'm not that way with the baby and she seems to get along just as well."

"My first boy was so much more difficult than my second, so much more sensitive and uneven. My second baby is the sunniest, happiest, most easy going little thing you ever saw. And everybody adores him."

I COULD go on and on with quotations from conversations I have had with mothers and from letters, but if I did I would just be repeating the substance of these comments over and over again.

While there is, of course, such a thing as an inherent difference in children, in their whole physical makeup, in their temperament, in their mental equipment, it is also true that there is another reason for the uniformity of these statements that mothers make. It is undoubtedly the environment, the whole treatment of a child, the attitude of his parents which accounts for a first child being rather highly keyed, perhaps a little difficult, perhaps a little uneven, and the second born being so sunny and easy going.

To most mothers a first baby is a strange and breathtaking adventure. They approach it with trepidation and, being unfamiliar with the care and understanding of one, they take with difficulty every little variation in body and behavior. They may experience the sharpest delight and the greatest happiness in having this little child, but their anxiety and tenseness are reflected in him and create some of the very situations which fret them so. They make much of things which should be overlooked, and they think each undesirable little act is a permanent thing which is going to last forever unless they do something drastic about it.

OF course, I don't say that this is true with all women; some take to motherhood like ducks to water with equal ease. But many do not—they take their first baby hard. But when that second baby comes along everything goes smoothly. And he [or she] is such a sunny, laughing, happy-go-lucky little thing, and everybody responds to all this sunniness, and talks about it, and even fall down and worship the second one.

This is all very nice for the baby and mother, and is as it should be.

But it is sometimes very hard on that first born, upon whom the father and mother did all their experimenting and tried out all their theories.

The motto? Well, first relax a little more with your first born, and second, watch your step very carefully when you are getting such fun out of your second born and see that he doesn't make your first little boy or girl feel quite completely in the shade.

It may seem to you that I am making a mountain out of a mole hill, but I am not. To those who have a perspective on the subject of children and to those who see a great deal of the particular situations we have talked about today in clinics, where really acute behavior is brought for solution, the problem of the first child who has been made unhappy by the advent of the second child is a very common one. And in my correspondence I have letter after letter telling how "my little boy of 6 is getting to be so disagreeable—and his little sister is so sunny that everybody just worships her."

"My little girl of 8 is getting to be a real problem. Her younger sister is so brilliant and so pretty and so well behaved that I cannot understand the difference between them."

THERE are two things then to do besides relaxing, as I advised you a few minutes ago.

First. Be sure that your first born feels unshaken in your affections, and in your interest, and in his importance in the family circle when his little brother or sister arrives.

Second. If several years pass and you see things are going badly with your little older boy or girl, just go on a campaign of praise and encouragement and interest to make him feel restored to his "place in the sun."

And it will probably be necessary not only to do this yourself but to enlist the coöperation of the rest of your immediate family, and, in fact, both relatives and friends who have been "listing heavily to starboard"—that is, who have been showing an excess of affection and attention toward the popular newcomer.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Here's a clever feminine little trick, using sachet in your handbag. Tuck the little pillow in the pocket that holds your mirror. If the fragrance is one like this, a delightful, fresh carnation, bag and contents always will be sweet smelling.

NOT long ago a smart woman of our acquaintance told us that from one end of summer to the other her clothes always were divinely fragrant. And do you know how she does it without actually applying perfume to the fabric? It's all done with the aid of her favorite bath oil, a fine, highly concentrated one with a beautiful, haunting perfume.

She hangs her clothes, not on a "hickory stick," but on the shower rod while she draws her tub! The scent of her bath oil perfumes her dresses as well as the water.

It's a marvelous idea, this. And we know how well it works because the woman we speak of always is beautifully scented, delicately, of course, as every well bred woman wants to be. It won't work with all bath oils, only with the very good, highly concentrated ones. There are a couple on the market you can use if this trick appeals to you.

If you really set your mind to it, you can evolve a number of little scenting tricks that work like a charm. Try a bit of cologne in the shampoo rinsing water if you want your crowning glory to be sweetly scented. A misty, fresh carnation in a cologne of good quality seems to us the perfect scent for this.

Then there is the little whim of using sachet in your handbag, a nice, clean carnation again. It's a most pleasant scent to meet the sense when you open your bag.

Then there are tricks of perfuming that can be used around the house. Your bath oil, again, for example, a few drops of it on the lamp bulbs. It absorbs tobacco smoke and scents the room as well.

You simply must be a perfumed lady these feminine days. It's fashionable, and surefire when it comes to allure.

Knitted Sweater Ideal for Casual Occasions

By Jean Macdonald.

IN the excitement of selecting college wardrobes, dresses for first formals and fraternity teas are foremost. The good looking three piece tweed ensembles with luxurious fur collars are important, but for day in and day out chic and smartness in the carelessly casual manner, hand knitted sweaters with matching skirts and either contrasting or matching jackets furnish the foundation on which smart wardrobes are built. The hand knitted brown and yellow sweater illustrated today is the first example of early fall creations for the campus. Worn with a brown belted jersey skirt and under a matching jersey box jacket, there isn't one belle of the campus who wouldn't enjoy modeling the ensemble before an international throng. The ribbing at the waist and collar carries out the theme of the sleeves. The ribbed patch pockets are done in brown and tipped with yellow. All in all, it is not an expensive sweater to knit and especially in this new, fine, inexpensive angora just making its bow to the fall market.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the two tone sweater with ribbed raglan sleeves illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

It is necessary that the following measurements be included:

Bust ....

Waist ....

Underarm to waist..................

Length of sleeve from underarm to wrist ....

This Week in the Garden

Mo day, Aug. 30.

Make a new lawn or repair the old if necessary. Dig the ground thoroughly and spade in organic manures if they are available. Under city conditions commercial plant foods are largely used and they give excellent results. Never sow grass seed on a hard, packed surface, but turn over the soil, breaking up all lumps; rake off hard lumps that cannot be crushed. Leave the surface smooth and even or slightly sloping toward the front walk for drainage. Roll when the surface is slightly moist, but never when wet or the soil will stick to the roller. Use plenty of high grade seed. This is an excellent time to make a last feeding of plant food. Apply 4 pounds to each 100 square feet of area of a 4-12-4 mixture.

Tuesday, Aug. 31.

Make over the perennial border at this time so the plants will have time to become established before severe weather. Many plants can be easily divided, but old, exhausted soil should be replaced with good, or plant food dug into it before planting. Some peat moss or muck may be used with commercial fertilizer, if desired. However, late blooming plants should not be planted in fall. Ferns may be transplanted. Fall is a good time to lay pipes, make the rock garden, and do other outdoor jobs of a similar nature. It is wise to water evergreens if the soil is dry.

Wednesday, Sept. 1.

Disbud dahlias if the largest flowers are wanted. Keep chrysanthemums securely tied to prevent them from falling to the ground. Transplant phlox. Divide the large clumps and give rich soil, as they will respond more quickly. Order bulbs for fall planting. Try a few of the newer varieties. Transplant pansies that were sown in August.

Keep the garden in the best trim possible. Keep flower beds and walks edged. Order shrubs, for many are best planted in fall. But material for mulching them should be laid in so that it will be ready for use after the ground freezes. Lay in plenty of the mulching material for all perennials, bulbs, and newly planted trees. The plants in the rock garden can be protected with an inch or two of peat moss.

Thursday, Sept. 2.

Peonies planted early will have time to become established before cold weather, although they may be planted up to the middle of October. Do not use too many of these fine plants in the small garden or they will dominate. Give the final trimming to the hedge. Bleeding heart should be transplanted in fall. It may be separated into several parts and new plants obtained. It is a fine perennial and a long row along the garden is a beautiful sight. The hardy amaryllis may be planted in fall. Cover about four inches.

Friday, Sept. 3.

Try sowing a few rows of lettuce in a cold frame. The plant likes cool weather and will give choice material for the table until late in the season. By potting up a few plants of the smaller pot marigold, petunias, lantanas, geraniums, and begonias fine plants can be obtained for the living room. The plants will make a good start during warm weather. Radishes sown in the frame will grow rapidly and furnish many choice bits for the table. Separate the lily of the valley clumps at this time for they soon become crowded; separate about every three years for best results.

Saturday, Sept. 4.

Plant autumn crocus and daylilies. Some of the new varieties are very desirable and look well in the borders. Make over the terrarium, if it needs rebuilding, to give it a good start. These small gardens are easily made, and if taken care of properly will endure for a long time. Use moist peat with a basis of sand for planting material. Many kinds of plants are available, such as small ferns, club mosses, the Chinese evergreen, watermelon begonia [peperomia], dracæna, woodsy plants, and many others. Keep in a partially shaded place and never allow an excess of moisture to accumulate on the inside or fungus may set in. Give sufficient air to eliminate excessive moisture.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

VACATION is about over, youngsters are ruefully informing their mothers these days, but this is a minor problem in the eyes of mater, who has the weightier matter of school wardrobes to consider. We think we have a grand solution to the problem today. It is a pretty princess frock which is kind to the budget and also takes little of mother's valuable time in sewing. Princess frocks have, for many seasons, been favorites with little girls and are acknowledged flatterers of growing girls' rather awkward figures.

The stamp of "Autumn—1937" is upon this frock illustrated. It has a tailored collar which is detachable for laundering. The same applies to the cuffs on the short puffed sleeves. From shoulder line to hem the paneling cleverly achieves a gradual and graceful flare. Down the front one may put buttons or that ultimate in modern touches, the zipper. Long sleeves for cold weather are provided, too.

Sturdy ginghams and other cottons always have been prime favorites for school clothes, but we think this pattern is worth the use of sheer and colorful woolens. Never have woolens been as pretty as they are this year, and the frock requires so little material that the expenditure involved will not be great. Plaids are especially effective and jewel tones and bright colors are perfect in woolen.

Style No. 2883 is designed for sizes 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅜ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Spices Provide Unusual Flavor in Plain Waffle

ADD one teaspoonful of cinnamon and a quarter of a teaspoonful of cloves to your regular waffle recipe. When the waffles are baked spread them with butter mixed with honey.

Overcooking jelly will cause it to have a strong acid flavor and is likely to prevent proper congealing.

ELDERLY people find much pleasure in hearing music that was popular at the time when they were young and gay, songs from operettas, old ballads and the stirring marches which once were so much in favor. Perhaps some of our readers who have saved stacks of old music since the day when folks gathered around the piano, before the radio provided most of our music for us, will be interested in the following letter.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am in a home for the aged, one of one hundred and fifty residents. Among us is an accomplished pianist willing and anxious to play for us, but she has no music. If some of your readers have discarded sheet music, we would be so happy to have it. We could probably pay postage on it, if not too expensive. Mrs. M. B."

This address is a home for elderly people located on the south side of the city.

Mrs. M. is an elderly woman, living on a tiny pension. She is ill and alone much of the time. In spite of much pain and sorrow, she manages to be amazingly cheerful most of the time. She recently wrote:

"Dear Miss Brown: This is Mrs. M. coming to you again. I wonder if you will forgive me for troubling you so often, but I can't help writing to you. My little radio is done for, completely worn out and I miss it so much! I have inquired about it and they tell me it is not worth fixing. It would cost a good deal and they are not sure it could be repaired. Do you think you might be able to get one for me? You do not know how much I would appreciate the favor, for my radio is the only pleasure I have had for months and now I have missed my favorite programs for weeks, the lovely music and the concerts. I love music dearly, and I no longer am able to go even to church. My back and leg are troubling me again, and I must wear wool stockings during this warm weather. The pain was so bad I could hardly sit up in a chair even with two pillows. Then, to cap it all, I broke my glasses and have to wear an old pair I had seventeen years ago, so I cannot read or sew much.

"I do hope you will forgive me writing as I do, but I do get discouraged at times when I think of how little I have to show for long, long years of hard work. I do appreciate your great kindness to me. I have benefited much by the wonderful work you are doing."

Could any one blame poor Mrs. M. for getting discouraged, old and ill and confined to one room? The radio she mentions was supplied some years ago through the kindness of a reader, and I do hope that we can find another, equally generous, who can make her happy by supplying a second. The address is on the north side of the city.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Music Hollywood

AUGUST 29, 1937.

Left: A style of yesteryear lends a bit of old-fashioned glamor to Madeleine Carroll, now playing in "It's All Yours" at the Oriental. The coat is flame color and the gown dusty blue chiffon.

The chaste kiss upon the brow is from William Gargan to Jean Rogers—with love. The two are featured in "Reported Missing." State-Lake.

Intriguing view of Claire Trevor, isn't it? She's in "Dead End," which will soon reach the United Artists' screen.

The Theater Is a Welder of Strong Attachments

Mantle Talks of McIntyre, Heath Team

Casualness Marked the Relationship of the Two Famous Men.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—It was fitting that when the old time amusement firm of McIntyre and Heath was finally dissolved Jim McIntyre should be the first to go. He was the younger of the two by four years, but he also was the leader. In the theater Jim was the lowly and protesting Alexander. Tom Heath was the opulent and domineering Hennery. But off stage it was Jim who made the contracts, fixed the dates, did the business, wrote much of the material, and otherwise ran the show.

Jim was 81 when he died a week ago in his home in Nyack, which is as near fashionable Southampton, Long Island, as Jim ever wanted to get. Tom, 84, was a few miles away in Setauket, held to his bed by a stroke he suffered last spring. The old pals had not seen each other for months, but they were not worried about that. They were expecting to meet in Florida again this coming winter.

The theater is a welder of strong attachments, both professional and sentimental. But there is a definite casualness associated with professional attachments that is interesting. When McIntyre and Heath met in San Antonio in 1874 they were both on the same vaudeville bill but working with different partners.

Neither was happy. McIntyre had had some trouble with his partner, a dancer named Butler, begun, one story had it, when Butler wore a silk hat to a San Antonio dance and some of the more mischievous town boys took pot shots at it. Jim, being modest, did not care for that sort of offstage advertising. Heath, working with a chap named Mullen, found Mullen ill and disinclined to go on. Meeting after the show McIntyre and Heath casually discussed the possibility of working together. Together they framed a line of patter following the familiar pattern of "You say to me," and "I say to you," and "then you hit me with the club."

DANCER IN WALNUT ROOM

Geraldine Ross appears as an acrobatic dancer in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. This is her fifth engagement there.
[Bloom Photo.]

A casual beginning of a partnership that endured for 60 years, entertained three generations of laughseekers and never boasted over a dozen original comic sayings in all that time.

Material Counted for Little in Sketches.

The material counted for little in the McIntyre and Heath skits. For little or nothing when you try to put it into cold type. But the shuffling Alexander and the pompous Hennery, in the picture and in their respective humorous persons, counted for a great deal.

It wasn't the doleful story that Alexander told of the job he had in a "levery" stable when Hennery lured him away into the minstrel business that was funny. It was entirely McIntyre's whining recital of that disaster that counted. No imitator ever since has been able to give the same affectionate turn to the picture of contentment possible in a "levery" stable.

And when Hennery used to press his defense by demanding to know if it weren't true that he [Hennery] took him [Alexander] out of the livery stable in which he was getting the measly sum of $2 a week for nursin' mules, and found him a glamorous job in the show business which paid a salary of $20 a week, it wasn't the matter but the manner of Alexander's excited rejoinder that sent audiences into spasms year after year. "Ah used to get the two dollars," Alexander was wont to protest.

So it was with the story of the overripe tomato that Hennery had hurled at Alexander on the occasion of a previous meeting. A simple, silly, infantile sequence of events, starting with Alexander's stopping Hennery when he met him walking with his [Alexander's] fiancée. With premeditated indignation and high defiance Alexander had shouted "Whoof!" at Hennery, and Hennery, in reply, had reached into a basket of tomatoes, selected the least healthy of the samples his hand contacted and let Alexander have it right in the middle of his shirt bosom.

No comedian on earth has ever rung as many changes with, or extracted as many laughs from, one little, loosely constructed tommatt-o in all the history of stage fooling as McIntyre earned with that particular love apple. No one has ever been able to give the pronunciation of the word itself the same completely contemptuous shadings that McIntyre gave it.

"Tommatt-o" Outrage Got Many Laughs.

It was so with all their dialog. You may recall the scene immediately following the recital of the tommatt-o outrage. Preceding his entrance the overbearing Hennery could be heard offstage ordering a bowl of tomato soup from an imaginary waiter. Then he would come impressively into view, shoulders squared, chest and stomach extended.

Hennery [with a scornful glance at Alexander]—Is that what I have to destroy? . . . Pascal de la Garde [calling to an imaginary attendant] give my pet lion two quarts of blood!

Alexander—Are you the nigger that was walkin' with my lady an' hit me with a tommatt-o that wasn't feelin' well?

Hennery—One that was almost catsup? Yes, I did it. Wasn't it a pretty shot?

Alexander—It scattered so.

Hennery—How does it feel to be overwhelmed by a tommatt-o in its dotage?

Alexander—No one ever hit me wid a over-loosclus tommatt-o and lived!

Hennery [to imaginary attendant] Decilius! O, Decilius! Don't hurry away wid that herse. I have anodder one for you.

Then there was that most famous of all McIntyre and Heath scenes, their original "Georgia Minstrels" sketch, which started with the "levery" stable experience. The plight of the disgusted Alexander became more and more desperate. Soon he recalled that he hadn't had anything to eat for days and days. Now he was ready to trade the bass drum he had taken in lieu of salary for a ham sandwich. Which started Hennery off on a description of a ham sandwich a man found in a wood. It had dropped from a ham tree.

"I never sawed a ham tree," Alexander would protest.

"It is possible you never studied bo-not-tany? The language of flowers?" Hennery would inquire, with deepest scorn.

"How you come mixin' up flowers wid hams?"

"Well, on the tree there is a bud. the bud becomes a flower and the flower becomes a ham. Thus the production of a juicy ham."

"How big does that thing grow?"

"O, three hundred feet at least."

"Don't get 'em too high," Alexander was quick to caution, "or we cain't climb up to that ham."

Hennery's continued description of the ham sandwich to his starving friend was also a vaudeville classic of the 1890's. Never was there such rich gravy a-oozin' from such a sandwich. By the time the scene was finished not only Alexander but a majority in the audience were all but prostrated.

It was natural that the story writers should make much of the fact that when Jim McIntyre died in Noyack Tom Heath was bedridden a few miles away in Setauket, and that neither was permitted to know of the other's desperate straits. But I have an idea that their parting was really as casual as their meeting.

I never did believe the story that they had quarreled in Chicago years ago and never, after that, exchanged a word offstage, occupying separate dressing rooms and occupying different hotels when they traveled. That, as they later confessed, seemed like a good press idea at the time.

Of late years they have lived quietly, suffering the aches and physical deteriorations flesh is heir to. They were, as the average runs, wealthy men. They had made money in Long Island real estate as well as in the show business. They had their homes on the island and their homes in Florida, though I've heard only Heath owned his Florida place. They kept in touch, up to a very little while ago, with many of their old pals. Frequently, they would show their venerable selves at banquets and such and often revive a gag or two of the old patter. But they were pretty tired of everything except the applause. Now Jim has taken a call and gone on. There isn't much left for Tom, but I doubt if he is worrying about that.

New York Still in Hands of Cinema.

The town is still in the hands of the cinemas, so far as drama is concerned. You can't get either showmen or actors interested in stage shows this kind of weather.

The picture sensations of the moment are Paul Muni in "Zola" and the Walter Wanger technicolor fashions in "Vogues of 1938." I'm not sure that Muni is not the finest actor on the screen today, though I am not really a proper judge, seeing that I barely keep up with the more important releases.

For that matter, Muni is unquestionably one of the finest character actors of either stage or screen. His performance as Zola tops his performance as Pasteur, I think.

Scholarships Now Too Easy, Say Educators

Real Achievement Only Fair Basis; Present 'Recruiting' Also Hit.

By the Rev. John Evans.

WITH the approach of another college year the liaison officer between the institution and the prospective student holds an important outpost in the educational field. In the opinion, however, of Milton C. Towner, assistant to the president of Lawrence college, and Herbert A. Toops, professor of psychology at Ohio State university, college "recruiting" must be professionalized before it can be placed on a sound footing.

Discussing this question of recruiting recently with other administrative officers of higher institutions, Mr. Towner urged that representatives should be more adequately trained and become more than a mere harvester of high school graduates. He pointed out that in the hands of a responsible educational officer rested to a large degree the reputation of the college, since an institution is characterized by the persons who are its leaders or advocates.

Mr. Towner recommended the elimination of those bad practices in granting scholarships and other forms of student aid to which all colleges have fallen heir, and that scholarship grants should be based on scholarly achievement. He placed the blame on secondary schools which publicize as honors all forms of student aid granted to high school seniors.

To avoid this form of public deceit he suggested that colleges should agree that no financial grants be made to any one without prior application by the student in writing to the college. This would do away with the "cloverseed" spreading of scholarships.

"This would take away from the portfolio of the representative authority to spread scholarships, loans, and employment grants," concluded Mr. Towner.

"One of the primary problems in raising the level of recruiting is to forego the word 'recruiting,'" Mr. Toops contended. "Would it not be wise to avoid the use of this word entirely and substitute terminology, which connotes the selection and admission of students? The word 'recruiting' is a common word signifying a practice characteristic of so many aspects of American life that it has become stale in meaning. Moreover, it smacks of regimentation, salesmanship, and of 'student getting rather than student selection.'"

Mr. Toops said that to professionalize the institution of obtaining students it would be necessary to develop a generalized purpose of the profession, and to adopt a code of ethics, establish a minimum set of qualifications for practitioners, and a uniform course of training for preparation in the practice of the profession. He also pointed to the need of standardizing college entrance regulations, eliminating red tape and minimizing admission requirements.

"The more nearly automatic we can make application to, and entrance to higher education, the more certainly will the ends of equality of educational opportunity be attained," Mr. Toops concluded. "Many a man beset with the alternative of buying tickets six weeks in advance for grand opera, or two minutes in advance for the movies, chooses the latter.

"The same principle obtains in the matter of going to college. Anything that will reduce the sheer red tape of college entrance, and decrease the emotional anxiety and turmoil connected therewith is all for the good.

"Briefly, high schools will be glad to have the whole matter of entrance blank form and transcript standardized, a whole host of forms thus being replaced with but one or three at the most."

On First Acquaintance New Music Apt to Seem Bad

Why? Violates Rules Called 'Laws of Art'

Composer Should Not Be Blamed as Content Determines Form.

By Edward Barry.

NEW art, on first acquaintance, nearly always seems like bad art. This is one of the two reasons suggested last Sunday for the reluctance of musicians and public alike to accept the work of their contemporaries. [The other reason, discussed at length in the earlier article, is an instinctive love for old, familiar things and a corresponding distrust of novelty.]

But why does new art seem like bad art? Because it violates a set of rules which are pompously called "The Eternal Laws of Art."

Although there are grave logical dangers in an attempt to oversimplify a complicated process, the following may be taken as a fairly accurate description of the manner in which art progresses.

Man Embodies His Feelings About Beauty in Art.

A man embodies in music, painting, architecture, sculpture or poetry his feelings about the hidden form of things, his conception of the beauty which underlies the world. The public is pleased and moved by this expression of the man's inner sight, accepts what he has to say as valid, and calls his product a work of art.

Philosophers and critics then seek the reason for the success of this work of art and begin to explain its beauty and its potency by calling attention to the artist's handling of melody, rhythm, harmony, line, form, masses, color or what have you. Soon the results of their observation and analysis are reduced to a set of Eternal Laws of Art.

A little later there comes along another man who has his own feelings about the hidden form of things, his own conception of beauty [it may be wider than No. 1's, narrower, or just different]. He expresses himself in a new way, but claims that the resulting product is just as truly a work of art as the other.

Now the critics set up a terrific howl. They bring out the Eternal Laws of Art, measure the new work against them, and find that it is bad. But, curiously, the new work stays right on. A tiny segment of the public and a few of the critics begin to cry its praises, to assert that it is at least as pleasing and moving as No. 1 and possibly a great deal more so. Soon nearly the whole public and all the critics come around to this view. It is up to the latter, then, to study the second man's use of melody or masses and change the laws to cover the case in mind.

These become the Eternal Laws of Art, Revised. But the fact of their revision is soon forgotten and the day comes soon when these very same laws are dragged into court to support a condemnation of an artist who has achieved a third form of expression.

There is something more significant in the foregoing than a demonstration of the fact that the radicals of one generation are the conservatives of the next. Note that the formulation of laws does not precede the work of art, but follows it.

The truth is that the form of such things as melody, line, mass, color, and texture [the aspects of art on which the "laws" are based] is simply th einevitable result cf what the artist has to say. Content determines form. An artist's inner vision imperiously demands one method of expression and no other. He must find it or be eternally lost.

Why Should New Art Conform to Old Laws?

In fastening upon a few externals, using them to explain the greatness of a work of art, and then demanding that succeeding works of art conform to the laws which have been deduced, philosophers and critics are simply mistaking the trees for the forest. It is almost as absurd as if some one were to attribute a man's joy at the words "You have won $10,000" to his recognition of the singular beauty of short, crisp sentences.

Getting away from such grotesque similes, an artist speaks a certain way because he must. He breaks the rules, breaks even the Eternal Laws of Art, because he must. He may be no radical by nature, but rather a peaceabe little man with a great reverence for the work of his predecessors.

Alas! This article which began with the implied promise of an exposition of the conservative spirit has turned into nothing more nor less than a plea for the open mind. So be it. Our forefathers have eaten their words so often that it seems only the simplest wisdom for us to keep quiet about our Eternal Laws of Art until we see what revisions the work of the next great artist will demand. Beauty has been revealed in some strange places [how many Londoners noticed her along their misty wharves until Whistler made them see? Perhaps it is wise to keep our eyes and ears open for the next revelation even though we may see and hear in the meantime a great many fraudulent prophets.

German Classic.

Players' Reunion

AN association of thirty years ago in "The Wolf," in Chicago, was resumed when William Roselle joined the "You Can't Take It with You" cast recently in the rôle of Mr. Kirby, with Charlotte Walker playing opposite him as Mrs. Kirby. Roselle, who was to have played Mr. Kirby in the Boston company, exchanged places with Reginald Mason, who has gone east to join the third company, now in rehersal.

Miss Walker and Mr. Roselle met professionally for the first time since "The Wolf" engagement. Then they played young sweethearts; now they act a middle aged married couple.

Notes of Music and Musicians

On the eve of his departure to undertake his new duties as conductor of the Louisville Symphony orchestra, Robert S. Whitney will make his last appearance as guest conductor of the Illinois Symphony orchestra in the regular weekly outdoor concert in the Wilmette bowl Wednesday evening at 8.

Today's free outdoor concerts in outlying parks, all of which begin at 3 o'clock, enlist the following personnel:

Wayne Morris Has a Gal, but Keeps It Dark

He Resolutely Refuses to Disclose the Name of His New Flame.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.] —A little group was sitting in the studio publicity office waiting to learn what, if anything, was happening besides the ninety degree weather, when Wayne Morris, new Warner star and Providence's gift to the manufacturers of size thirteen shoes, walked by the open door.

The big, yellowish-haired, good-natured, newly-starred film "hero" halted at the open door.

"Nothing," he admitted, "except that perhaps I have a new gir—— a new heart interest, the columnists would call it."

"That sounds interesting," said Carlisle Jones, who gets human interest out of such slight promptings as a king, queen, and jack in any set of five playing cards. "Tell us about it."

"Can't tell you about it now," said Morris, looking bashful [and can that big boy look bashful!] "tomorrow I'll tell you."

"Why not today?" demanded another of the reporters.

"Because I don't know yet. I haven't had my first date with her yet. But I think she's swell."

"When is your first date?"

"Tonight. We're going to the Troc—to dance."

"We'll give you until noon tomorrow to tell us. Is that a bargain?" one of the group said briskly.

"I suppose so. But I don't like to be rushed this way."

And this, a week later, is what Mr. Morris gets because he didn't come in before noon, as he promised.

Artificial Perspiration Supplied to Actors.

So intense was the August heat at Perris, Cal., where Warner's technicolor production "Gold Is Where You Find It," is on location, that artificial perspiration was supplied the actors through spray guns and water buckets.

With a government-tested thermometer registering 118 degrees, perspiration dried on the faces and arms of the fifty actors as rapidly as it appeared. Clothing also remained quite dry in spite of such exertions by the players as harvesting wheat for this story of the 1870s.

Before the start of each scene make-up men moved through the ranks of the actors, spraying water on faces and arms and splashing it on their clothing. This "perspiration treatment" lasts from one and one-half minutes to two minutes.

The company under Director Michael Curtiz, was supposed to be threshing, sacking and loading wheat in a wheat field near Perris, which is about twenty miles southeast of Riverside, Cal.

George Brent, Olivia De Haviland, Margaret Lindsay, Claude Rains, and John Litel are featured in the production, which deals with the bitter struggle between hydraulic miners and wheat ranchers in the Sacramento valley sixty years ago.

You'd never guess the technical problem that furrowed so many foreheads during filming of "Merry Go Round of 1938" at Universal studio. The question was: Where does a swami carry his matches? Mischa Auer and Jimmy Savo, comedians who play Hindu fakirs, with very abbreviated costumes and turbans, never did settle the problem satisfactorily.

They compromised by telling "here" to some one near by, and thrusting a pack of cigarets and a paper of matches into the bystander's hands, while they explained, "just hold these for us till we get done with this scene."

John Hergeshell Plays a Cinderella Act.

Some man named John Hergeshell sent a spun glass slipper to Eleanor Powell from New York, together with a note saying he was looking for a modern Cinderella, and if Eleanor's foot fitted the slipper he would fly west with the mate to it and propose. Eleanor tried it on, found it too big, and had her maid send a return note telling the gentleman to try his slippers on the local talent and save the shipping charges.

Seen on the set of "In Old Chicago" at Twentieth Century, Andy Devine broke down and told how he got his start in movies as a stunt man. "I used to double for Noah Beery in star scenes," he said. He also fell off horses. Andy said that work was so hard and strenuous that he has been eating and sleeping extra vehemently ever since, which accounts for his present growth to 245 pounds.

Ernest Truex, the five foot two inch companion of six foot two inch Gary Cooper in "Adventures of Marco Polo," says, "There is one distinction nobody in the movies can take away from me. I am the only actor who can use a twelve year old boy to be my stand-in."

Betty Jaynes of Chicago has an entire cottage for her music room at the family's new home in Beverly Hills here. The cottage is only one room, true, and it is located in the back yard, but it has room for her piano, a recording machine and a phonograph.

GOOD Morning!

The gods are good to a movie critic when they hand out a photoplay like "The Life of Emile Zola" to greet her eyes upon return from a vacation! Certainly one of life's larger irritations is a poor one after three movieless weeks.

This new Muni production is a masterpiece.

It is a skilful, intuitive, intensely sympathetic portrayal of a great and eccentric man, with action characterized by mounting suspense and moments of powerful drama. The film, however, is not so much concerned with the intimate biography of Zola as with his connection with the Dreyfus case—that great political scandal whose carefully powdered and rouged rottenness was finally bared to the world by Zola's scalpel pen in the series of newspaper articles labeled "I ACCUSE."

The picture's opening scenes show the young Zola, fired with crusading spirit, fearless and enthusiastic, living in his attic. . . . A tragic story told him by a girl of the streets inspires his first successful novel, "Nana." [Anna Sten starred in it several years ago, remember?]

From then on Zola's name is on the lips of the reading world. He becomes rich, famed—and feared. For he ruthlessly uncovers filth, social and political, wherever he finds it—and he's a man who gets around.

But the years bring desire for peace and quiet. Zola is about to settle down in contentment, purring over the prospect of his election to the French academy—when Mme. Dreyfus comes to him with irrefutable proof of the wrong done her husband expiating on Devil's Island a crime he never committed; a crime the entire general staf of the army which Capt. Dreyfus had served loyally for twenty years knows he was convicted of under trumped up evidence.

And Zola goes to the front! . . . The Dreyfus case is reopened finally by a new French government and the wan prisoner acquitted.

There are some tremendous scenes attendant on this phase of Zola's career, and the picture sweeps along to a forceful and moving finale.

[This is not an authentic film historically and was not intended to be, as a title informs you. For instance, Zola's death is not shown as it actually occurred. In the film he dies on the eve of Dreyfus' reinstatement in the army. Really he lived for three succeeding years.]

Mr. Muni gives an unforgettable performance. Better even, I thought, than his portrayal of Pasteur. For months he LIVED Zola. He read all biographical data he could lay his hands on; practiced mannerisms in front of a mirror; spoke his lines into a dictaphone and played them back for sound.

Do NOT miss "The Life of Emile Zola"! For if you do you will have cast to the winds two hours of sure fire satisfaction.

See you tomorrow.

Ina Claire Will Act Dramatization of Victorian Novel

'Actress Gets Play Based on Trollope Tale

Guthrie McClintic Will Manage Star in Version of 'Barchester Towers.'

By Charles Collins.

INA CLAIRE'S activities in the new dramatic season will be under the management of Guthrie McClintic [Katharine Cornell's producer husband] for the first time in her career, and will be in the form of a play based on Anthony Trollope's novel, "Barchester Towers." The stage version of this celebrated example of Victorian fiction was arranged by Thomas Job, a recent student at the Yale drama school, and was acted by a cast of college players in New Haven, Conn., last spring, where Miss Claire saw it and secured the rights. The story deals with a woman of the world who settles in an English cathedral town after many years of residence in Italy.

According to George Saintsbury, in his "Short History of English Literature," published in 1898, "'Barchester Towers' wants only a je ne sais quoi to be one of the greatest English novels." This eminent English critic and scholar [also an authority on vintage wines], goes on to speak of Anthony Trollope in this fashion:

"He was a novelist immensely prolific, popular for a time though not quite till his death, a good deal underrated since, never perhaps rated or likely to be rated by good critics among the first, but sure with such critics, sooner or later, of recognition as interesting and singularly typical. . . . He had a rather wide knowledge of different kinds of English middle class society and of some of the lower, was an enthusiastic fox-hunter, knew London society, literary and otherwise, well, and at the same time had a knowledge of the peculiar and characteristic life of cathedral towns which would not have disgraced Fielding or Jane Austen.

"He wrote far too much for his fame, but his truth to life, and not merely to external life, was extraordinary; his fertility in scene and character wonderful, and his positive power far greater than has recently been usual to admit. As the prince of a whole class of novelists who have flourished throughout the late nineteenth century he at least must occupy a representative position when the rest of the tribe is forgotten."

Trollope was born in 1815 and died in 1882. He published "Barchester Towers" in 1857. Its dramatization follows the trend established by the recent successes of stage versions of Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice" and Charlotte Brontë's "Jane Eyre."

"The Women," a satirical comedy which contains forty actresses and no actors, regarded as the most "sophisticated" tidbit of the last theatrical season on Broadway, will come to Chicago on Sept. 19 for an engagement in the Erlanger theater. This will be a new company, but almost every member of its cast has appeared with the New York organization, at one time or another during its run. The names of its members are of no particular importance, but here is a roll call for twenty-one of them:

The Federal Theater project [WPA] in Chicago terminated the run of "The Lonely Man" [fifteen weeks] in the Blackstone theater last night.

Next Tuesday night this work relief bureau will reopen the Princess theater with a bill of four one act plays, as follows: "The Long Voyage Home," by Eugene O'Neill; "Love and How to Cure It," by Thornton Wilder; "Blocks," by Molly Day Thatcher, and "The End of the Beginning," by Sean O'Casey. The piece by O'Neill is one of his early studies of sailor character. The scene is the London waterfront. It is new to the Chicago stage; so are the other three plays on the bill.

A WPA production of "Monesh," a drama based on Yiddish folklore and Jewish religious observances, will be staged in the Great Northern theater on Sept. 7.

"Amphitryon 38," by Jean Girardoux, adapted from the French by S. N. Behrman, with Alfred Lunt and Lynne Fontanne in the leading rôles. Opens in New York Nov. 2.

"The Ghost of Yankee Doodle," by Sidney Howard [his first original play since 1932], with Ethel Barrymore and Dudley Digges in the leading rôles. Opening date not decided.

"Wine of Choice," by S. N. Behrman. Cast not selected; opening date not decided.

The Gate Theater company of Dublin, as well as the Abbey company, will figure in the activities of the American stage this year. Eddie Dowling, New York impresario, wanted to import the Abbey organization, familiarly known to most Americans as "the Irish players," but the Shubert firm outbid him. Therefore he signed a contract with the Gate company, a newer repertory group which runs more to the "art theater" type than the Abbey. He expects to bring these players to New York for an opening in the Christmas holidays, and to arrange a tour if the omens are auspicious.

The two leading spirits and actors of the Gate company, Michael MacLiammoir and Hilton Edwards, came to this country in 1934 to appear with Orson Welles' summer drama project in Woodstock, Ill., to which the former contributed an interesting interpretation of Hamlet. MacLiammoir also appeared as "reader" in a pageant produced by Irish-Americans in Soldiers' field.

A recent statement in this column to the effect that some of the scenery and costumes of "Richard of Bordeaux" were used in the Maurice Evans' production of Shakespeare's "Richard II." is corrected by the management. None of the scenery was used. Some of the costumes and suits of mail were purchased and used. These will have disappeared when the drama goes on tour. The stage settings for "Richard II." were from the designs by David Ffolkes for the London production at the Old Vic theater in 1934.

The Billboard's index of the New York legitimate stage, to be published in September, will state that during the past season "the number of shows presented dropped disastrously, and so did almost every other category of production activity." The total was 125, a decrease of thirteen from the preceding year. The editors draw the conclusion that "all signs continue to point toward a smaller theater, but a better one."

Sailor's Daughter

FLORENCE SUNDSTROM, who appears as the heroine of "Brother Rat," was born near New York City of Swedish parents. Her father, Einar W. Sundstrom, is a sea captain, at present in command of the S. S. Dixie.

She studied for the stage under tutors in New York. Her first professional engagement was with "Tobacco Road." A part in "Parnell" followed.

She accompanied her father on many of his voyages. She has sailed around Cape Horn twice and mastered enough of seamanship to stand a trick at the wheel, shoot the sun, and other navigating accomplishments.

Play for Huston.

Walter Huston will star in a new play, "Miles of Heaven," this season. The play is based on the life of William Herschel, the astronomer.

New Players Join Program at Chez Paree

'Red' Skelton Prepares for Hollywood Debut; News of Floor Shows.

"RED" SKELTON ended his engagement on the current cabaret program at Chez Paree last night. He will appear on the variety bill at the Palace theater for two weeks before going to Hollywood for his first motion picture, which will be called "Having Wonderful Time." He will return to Chez Paree after completing this contract.

Paul Draper continues as headliner of "the Chez's" show in his tap dancing repertory. Skelton's place will be filled by Corinna Mura, Latin-American singer who appeared in the Blackstone last winter, and Paul Gerrits, a monologist. The Readinger Twins will be replaced, after a long run, by Billy and Beverly Bemis, young dancers who have appeared in the films. The Reyes, Spanish dancers, and Henry Busse's orchestra complete the bill.

● Antonio and Renee De Marco, ballroom dancers who are starred in the present revue at the Empire room of the Palmer house, will introduce two new numbers at this evening's performances. They are dances the couple learned in London and Paris during their recent engagement abroad, called "The Corona," and "The Concha." They are versions of the tango and rhumba with trick kicks.

Also in the revue are Alexander Gray, baritone star of stage, screen, and radio, and Dolly Thon, acrobatic dancing graduate of the Abbott studios. The Abbott ballet supplies the background for the revue. Dick Gasparre's band plays for the shows and public dancing.

● Joe Sanders, long-run band director at the Blackhawk, started his career singing cowboy ballads to the hired men on his father's farm in Kansas. He was a member of the glee club at William Jewell college, and became a professional as a singer on the Chautauqua circuits. His show at the Blackhawk still contains Jane Kaye, singer; Ronald and Roberta, ballroom dancers; June Glory, acrobatic and tap dancer, and Pete the Newsboy, harmonica player.

● Ted Weems brought his dance orchestra back to the Trianon ballroom last Friday night. Today's sessions will have special festivities in his honor. Little Jack Little's band, at the Aragon ballroom, will be followed by Freddy Martin's next Friday. The latter will return for a long fall engagement after three months of absence on tour.

● A trick roller skating act by Clare and the Sanna Sisters figures on the current program of entertainment at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The Robbins family of acrobats offer a circus turn. Enrica and Novello, ballroom dancers, remain for a second week. Other entertainers, with Roger Pryor's orchestra, are Lanie Truesdale and Tommye Birch, singers; Gloria Sutter, soubrette, and Harriet Smith's ballet.

● College Inn continues its summer revue to the music of Frankie Masters, who serves as master of ceremonies as well as band leader. On the bill are Lydia and Joresco, Jackie Heller, Donna Dae, the Frances Allis dancers, Coleman Clark and Bill Price, Myrus, and Carl Marx.

● Avis Kent will begin an engagement in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel on Sept. 2, offering a repertory of modern ballads. This is her first Chicago engagement. She has appeared at the Leland hotel in Detroit and the Golfmore hotel at Grand Beach, Mich.

● Riverview park's fall festival of amusements, called the "Carnival of Comics," started yesterday and will continue until Sunday, Sept. 19. Prizes will be awarded in a costume contest for juveniles.

● Paul Sabin's orchestra ended its stay in the Blue Fountain room of the La Salle hotel last night. The King's Jesters and Marjorie Whitney will return on Sept. 4.

● La Pearl's circus will continue its performance in the auditorium on Navy pier until Labor day, Sept. 6. New acts have been added to the bill.

● New contributors to the entertainment in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel are the Three Short Waves and Alice Kavan. The former are young men who specialize in impersonations. The latter is an attractive tap dancer who was recently at the Villa Venice. Carlos Molina's orchestra continues, and Violet Love, a blues singer, remains for a second week. Tonight's program will emphasize tango and rhumba music, and patrons may get instruction in these dances from Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Taylor.

Variety Bills

RED NORVO and his orchestra, with Mildred Bailey, singer, lead the current stage entertainment at the Palace theater. In their band revue are Stan Kavanagh, juggler-comedian, who was effective in the last "Ziegfeld Follies"; the dance team of Barr and Estes, the singing Radio Ramblers, and Dancer Vera Fern.

Two vaudeville acts of current Hollywood productions are the headliners at the State-Lake theater this week. They are the Condos brothers, tap dancers, and Lowe, Hite, and Stanley. Supporting acts include Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet, Fayne and Foster, a musical act, and Al Gordon's trained dogs.

Plays for Warner Bros.

The film firm of Warner Brothers will be associated in the production of at least two English plays on Broadway this season. They are "George and Margaret" and "Wise Tomorrow," the latter has already been done in London.

Horniman Dies

ANNIE HORNIMAN, theatrical producer, died on Aug. 6 in Shere, Surrey, England. During her 50 years' connection with the theater she successfully operated repertory theaters in Dublin and Manchester, produced over 300 plays and started off such dramatists as George Bernard Shaw, John Galsworthy, and St. John Ervine. Her production of Shaw's "Arms and the Man" in 1894 gave the playwright his first recognition.

Her finest achievement, however, was the founding of the Dublin Abbey theater, which made possible the Irish dramatic renaissance of the last 30 years, probably the most creative literary movement of our time. For three years she subsidized the Abbey out of her own pocket and only left it when it was on a solid basis.

Then she bought the Gaiety Theater in Manchester and opened it with a repertory company in 1908.

The Fortune of Bridget Malone

THE STORY TO DATE

● Bridget Malone, orphaned American heiress, arrives in Paris fresh from a convent. Mrs. O'Donnell, owner of a mortgaged Irish castle, is Bridget's appointed guardian. Mrs. O'Donnell is renewing a youthful romance with Col. Shane Desmond. Kevin, her nephew, nurses a broken heart. Mrs. O'Donnell has as paying guests two selfish English girls, Violet and Doris Bennett. Near by the Imperator hotel, where Mrs. O'Donnell resides, Mme. Bonnechance, the possessor of a fortune in jewels, has her marriage bureau. It is her custom to arrange a successful marriage for her young lovers when she is done with them. She plans to marry off her latest, the doubtful Prince Ivan Bolonsky, to Bridget Malone, and arranges to have the hotel recommend a Mrs. Thompson as chaperon for Bridget. Mrs. Thompson and her husband, a valet at the hotel, are unfortunate hirelings of Mme. Bonnechance. Mrs. Thompson unwillingly helps to further a secret romance between Bridget and the prince. She confides in her husband, who gets the police to order a search of the prince's room. Then Mrs. Thompson tips the prince off. In terror he flees to Mme. Bonnechance, robs her of her jewels, strangles her, and makes his get-away. Bridget wonders why she doesn't hear from the prince, not knowing the police have pinned the crime on him and that her notes to the prince are in their hands. Kevin is incensed because he believes Bridget applied to a marriage bureau.

Into a Tense Scene Between Bridget and Kevin in the Hotel, Mrs. Thompson Injects a Startling Declaration

"You did not know your dear friend Mrs. Thompson was to have had her share of what is vulgarly called the 'swag.'"

INSTALMENT XI.

(Copyright: 1937: By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes.)

FOR what seemed to Bridget Malone a long, long time, Kevin O'Donnell, who had thrown himself back in his chair and was staring before him with unseeing eyes, remained absolutely silent. He did not know how to begin the terrible story it had become his hard and repugnant duty to tell his aunt's ward.

Then suddenly turning to the girl who now sat by his side, in the dim light, looking like an exquisite wraith in her diaphanous white frock, he exclaimed in a harsh voice: "Cast your mind back to the first day you were in Paris. I mean the morning my aunt left you for two hours in the Louvre picture galleries. You had asked to be left there, while she went to see an old governess who lived on the outskirts of Paris, and she consented to do so."

"I remember that morning quite well, though I don't think I was in the Louvre as long as two hours."

"You weren't there the whole two hours, for after Aunt Kathleen had left you, you made your way to a street just behind this hotel and sought out the office of Mme. Bonnechance. She was what is called a marriage broker. It is no good your denying that you went to that woman's office, for I know you did."

"But I do deny it, absolutely!" she cried. "I did not leave the Louvre at all that morning. I stayed in the picture galleries till it was time to go downstairs to the place where Mrs. O'Donnell said she would meet me."

She was trembling now, partly with anger, and partly with surprise. How dare Kevin speak to her in that accusing, contemptuous tone? How dare he think that she would lie to him? What did it all mean?

"Then, if you did not go to the office of Mme. Bonnechance that first morning, when did you go there? Was it later on in the same day, or was it the next morning, while my aunt was interviewing Mrs. Thompson?"

"I never went there at all! I can't imagine what makes you think I did. I never heard of Madame"—and then she hesitated, for all at once she recalled having heard that curious name, but she couldn't think in what connection.

He said in a cutting tone: "Bonnechance was the woman's name. I shouldn't have thought you'd be likely to forget it, once you'd heard it."

Bridget said nothing to that. What was there to say? She felt as if she were living through a crazy nightmare, and must surely wake up soon and know it was a dream.

They faced one another—enmity and contempt in his face, wrath struggling with amazement in hers.

"I suppose you will tell me next that you have never heard of a man who calls himself Prince Bolonsky?"

She answered instantly: "Of course I know Prince Bolonsky quite well; he is a friend of Mrs. Thompson."

"Ay, I know Mrs. Thompson was in it, too. Mme. Bonnechance must have been a clever woman."

"What d'you mean, Kevin? What has that Mme. Bonnechance to do with me, or with Prince Bolonsky, or with Mrs. Thompson?"

"Everything, as you must know. But I admit I was deeply shocked to hear that Mrs. Thompson was in the conspiracy."

"Conspiracy?" faltered the girl.

THEN wildly she cried: "Tell me what you mean by saying all this to me! You're talking in riddles, Kevin O'Donnell!"

"I ought not to have called it a conspiracy," he said slowly, "for, after all, you were a consenting party."

"A consenting party to what?"

He looked at her fixedly, and he felt a stir of pity as he saw what he took to be an expression of agonized shame. Had he the right, he asked himself, to force this girl to confess that she had desired to make an arranged marriage with a foreign prince?

"I'm afraid I'm going to give you a serious shock," he observed in a hesitating and yet not unkind voice.

She stared at him fearfully as he went on: "I wonder if you know that Mme. Bonnechance is dead, and that she was murdered last night in circumstances of unusual brutality?"

"That's why I know her name!" she cried, and there flashed such a look of relief over her face that he felt sickened at what he took to be her callousness. "Something was said about that murder by the taxi driver who drove me back to the hotel."

"Did the taxi driver give you any idea of who had killed the unfortunate woman?"

She answered at once, "Yes, he did. He said it was probably her brother who had killed her because she had some wonderful jewels. Isn't that a horrible idea?"

"Most horrible," he said coldly. "But it doesn't happen to be true that her brother killed her. Now that you have remembered having heard of Mme. Bonnechance, I have something else to tell you, which I think will affect you more than that poor woman's death seems to have done."

Something else to tell her? What could he mean?

"The man who murdered Mme. Bonnechance for her jewels was Prince Bolonsky, to give him the false name by which he seems to have been generally known."

Bridget put out her right hand blindly, and clutched the back of a chair. "No! No! That's impossible——" she gasped, feeling as if the room was spinning round her.

And then Kevin asked what he believed to be a momentous question: "Were you engaged to Bolonsky?"

"Of course not—why I hardly knew him."

"That can't be true, for you seem to have met him almost every day, and that woman Bonnechance was convinced you were going to marry him. Her brother, who was her private secretary, believes that you refused him, and that as he was penniless he killed the marriage broker knowing she had this collection of valuable jewels."

"Come, Bridget!" continued Kevin sternly. "It is no good your pretending that you knew nothing of the scheme evolved by that woman Bonnechance. Her brother has made it plain—there is even a document confirming his story—that the day you became Princess Bolonsky she was to receive five per cent of your fortune. Still, I suppose it's true that you did not know your dear friend Mrs. Thompson was to have had her share of what is vulgarly called the 'swag.'"

SHE looked at him, her eyes dilated with horror; he thought them dilated with shame.

The door behind them opened quietly, but they were both too absorbed to hear the slight sound, and he exclaimed, "And now do you persist in saying still that you did not know Mme. Bonnechance?"

In answer to that challenge came, in Mrs. Thompson's ringing tones: "Answer, Bridget! Tell him the truth! Say that you had never even heard of that vile woman till today."

The girl ran across to where the Englishwoman was now standing just within the door, and sobbing convulsively she threw herself into the arms held out to her.

"I have told him that again and again. But I can't make him believe it."

"I shall make him believe it," and she led the weeping girl to an easy chair and made her sit down. Then she turned, hollow eyed and despairingly, toward the young man.

"I am very, very tired, and also ill. Not that that matters, one way or the other; but I want to make what took place clear to you. I will make my story as short as I can make it, but I must begin by telling you that for some four years I was on and off in the employment of Mme. Bonnechance. I did not like her, and what is more I feared her, but beggars cannot be choosers, and on the whole she conducted her business in a respectable manner."

She paused, moistened her pale lips, and then went on again. "Before I had even seen Mrs. O'Donnell concerning Bridget Malone, Mme. Bonnechance asked me to dinner to meet a Russian prince named Bolonsky, who I have only just learned had been her lover. She told me that he had become her client, with a view to marrying an American girl; and she explained that on that very day there had arrived in Paris a young lady from New York, on the Ile de France, who would suit him from every point of view."

"I believed, at first, that the girl in question was aware of this arrangement and that, like so many American young ladies, she desired to marry a European nobleman. But, of course, the moment I met Bridget I knew that this belief of mine had no foundation in fact. And then—I confess it, Mr. O'Donnell, with deep shame—I entered into what can only be called a conspiracy. I agreed, that is, to encourage and favor the meetings of this man and Bridget Malone."

Kevin cried fiercely, "My God! What an awful thing to do!"

"I agree—and God has meted out to me a cruel punishment."

She turned to the girl who was now staring before her into vacancy with an expression of anguish on her face.

"But I beg Bridget, at any rate, to believe me when I say that I believed the man to be a genuine prince of the émigré type. Though I have no wish to excuse myself, and though I know I played a despicable part, I also did come to believe that he was honestly attracted, and that, lonely and friendless as I knew Bridget felt herself to be, she might go further and fare much worse than become Princess Bolonsky."

With bitter sarcasm Kevin asked a question: "It never occurred to you, I suppose, that my aunt ought to be informed of this scheme for securing the future happiness of her ward?"

"I did once," she answered haltingly, "suggest that Bridget should tell Mrs. O'Donnell of our meetings with this man. But she said, and of course I agreed with her, that if she did that, her guardian would probably stop our meetings with the prince."

Bridget got up and faced the young man. "And now, Kevin, let me tell my part of the story. After I had arrived in Paris I felt desperately lonely. Your aunt, my so-called guardian, Mrs. O'Donnell, meant to be kind. But once she had engaged Mrs. Thompson, I could not help seeing she was glad I was out all day, and almost every evening, too. As for the Bennetts, they were actively unkind to me, whenever they dared to be."

"I know they were," said the young man in a low voice.

"But Mrs. Thompson was good to me always," her voice faltered, then it became firm, even defiant. "As for Prince Bolonsky, nothing will make me believe he was a murderer. Neither do I believe, in spite of what Mme. Bonnechance may have intended, that he wanted to marry me. He simply liked me as a friend, and he told me so, the only time we were alone together."

MRS. THOMPSON intervened. "He most certainly wished to marry you, Bridget. And I'm afraid—indeed, I have no doubt now—that he did murder Mme. Bonnechance."

Mrs. Thompson got up from the couch on which she had sunk down, and she came close up to Kevin O'Donnell. Then, in a very low voice, and addressing him only, she observed: "I really came here this evening to say good-by, forever, to Bridget Malone. I know that she is leaving Paris tomorrow, for my husband found that out from a friend of his who is a high official in the prefecture of police. They now believe they are on the track of Bolonsky, and that he will probably be caught and arrested within the next few days. He hired a plane and flew to Austria, and the police there are on the watch for him."

All this had not been overheard by Bridget, for she had been too overwhelmed by all she had just learned to take heed of what the Englishwoman had just whispered to Kevin O'Donnell. But now she, too, got up and, walking up to the other two, she exclaimed: "I have made up my mind what to do, Kevin, and I hope that you will do your best to make your aunt understand that it is from no lack of respect or liking for her that I have decided to stay in Paris. I am going to live from now on with Mrs. Thompson, if she will allow me to do so."

"My darling girl! My darling child!" cried the Englishwoman. "It's true I love you, and that I shall never, never forgive myself for the vile thing I did. But what you say you want to do is impossible. What you've got to do at once, in fact tomorrow, is to leave Paris and forget that you were ever here."

She pressed the girl to her heart, and then she almost ran out of the room.

Kevin O'Donnell took Bridget Malone's cold hand in his. "I don't suppose you'll ever forgive me, but I do most humbly ask your pardon for the way I behaved, and the things I said to you, tonight. I hope you realize that I had every reason to believe what I thought till just now was true."

"I do forgive you," she said, quietly withdrawing her hand from his. "And I see now that I acted very wrongly in not telling Mrs. O'Donnell at once about Prince Bolonsky."

Her lips quivered as she added, half to herself, "I did enjoy being with him, for he was always so kind to me, but the idea of marrying him never entered my mind."

"Of course I know that now!" he cried.

Then his voice changed. "I don't think it necessary—do you—that Aunt Kathleen should ever know anything at all of this affair?"

A deep sigh of relief burst from the unhappy girl's lips. And he went on, eagerly, "Let it be our secret—yours and mine. I've been in touch today with the prefect of police, and in spite of what Mrs. Thompson said, they are going to keep your name absolutely out of it."

She murmured, "That's good of you; thank you very, very much, Kevin," and she began walking toward the panel door.

"You're not going away without saying good night?"

She gave him her hand. "Good night, Kevin. And—and thank you for my good dinner."

Then she slipped through the door and, running upstairs, went into her now dark bedroom. For a long time she stood there, quite still, living over and over again the terrible and humiliating scene she had lived through before Mrs. Thompson had come into the room.

Forgive Kevin O'Donnell? The though of going to Ireland in his company and of living with happy, care-free Mrs. O'Donnell at Castle Mount Clare filled her with misery. Yet what else could she do?

Meanwhile Kevin O'Donnell was pacing about the room below, feeling as though he could never feel happy again. Like Bridget Malone, he was living through the scene in which he had accused the girl of being a liar.

His only consolation was that their paths were not likely to run together for long. But they would be thrown in contact during the next few weeks, for he did not feel he could leave his aunt to face what might happen any day were the murderer of Mme. Bonnechance to be arrested. That, he greatly feared, must bring about the imperative recall of Bridget Malone to Paris.

Kevin knew that there was a difficult task before him, that of persuading his aunt to leave Paris on the morrow. And then it was as if fate played into his hands, for Mrs. O'Donnell and Col. Desmond came in, both looking radiant.

"And what do you think the colonel has persuaded me to do?" exclaimed his aunt. "I'd asked him to come back with me and Bridget to renew acquaintance with Mount Clare, and he's in such a hurry to do that that he wants us all to leave Paris tomorrow by the 12 o'clock train. And you'd never guess the reason he has dared to give me?"

Shane Desmond looked at the young man, and then he smiled. "There is going to be a farmers' race next Saturday at Ardmore, and 'twas there, at just such a race as this will be, that I first met your aunt on an early June day, and I long to be there again and see the wild-riding on that splendid stretch of sand. To be there in time we've got to leave Paris tomorrow."

Kathleen O'Donnell put an affectionate hand on the young man's arm. "How I wish you could be there, too," she exclaimed. "But I suppose we'll have to leave you in London."

He answered slowly, "I'm taking an extension of my holiday."

"That's splendid!" she cried joyously. "And I know you won't be sorry to exchange Paris for Mount Clare."

His face softened, for he dearly loved his Irish home. And as for Paris? He hoped with all his heart that his aunt would never come to know how hateful were his associations with the city.

"I think you ought to go down now and tell the manager that we're leaving in the morning. He has been very nice to us, and may be wanting to let this apartment at once."

She waved her hand to Shane Desmond and went off to bed, feeling, maybe, the happiest woman in Paris that night.

THE two men went downstairs in silence, and when they were in the reading room, which served also as a smoking room and lounge, Col. Desmond said abruptly: "That girl has landed us all in a pretty kettle of fish, eh? Maybe you're surprised to hear, Kevin, that I know all there is to know about this sordid affair. I was actually with the prefect of police late this afternoon while you were starting that interview with his secretary. And I who thought that girl a really good, simple creature! It's enough to make a young chap like you lose his faith in womankind."

Kevin exclaimed, "You're wrong, colonel—or, rather, I should say the French police are wrong! Bridget Malone had never even heard of Mme. Bonnechance till today."

He saw a look of utter incredulity flash over the older man's face, and he went on quickly: "Let me go and give my aunt's message to the manager and then I'll come back and tell you the true story."

He lingered a moment. "Mind you, what I'm going to tell you doesn't come from Bridget herself. It comes from Mrs. Thompson, who was in the conspiracy up to the neck."

"Mrs. Thompson?" repeated Shane Desmond.

He felt not only astonished but also exceedingly sorry. He had liked the quiet Englishwoman and had believed his dear Mavourneen to have been fortunate in having got hold of such a person to chaperon her ward.

"It was a dastardly plot, engineered by the woman who was murdered last night," explained the young man, and then he hurried off and, having made all the necessary arrangements with regard to the morrow, he came back, a determined look on his face.

And then, making his story as short as was possible, though it took some time in the telling, he did at last manage to convince Col. Desmond of what had really happened.

There came a thrill of genuine horror in the other's voice as he observed: "If that girl had been different from what she is your aunt might have wakened up some morning and found her ward gone clean away with that villain. What horrifies me, too, is the part Mrs. Thompson played in the affair."

"I agree, and I was astonished Bridget was willing to forgive her."

"Look here, my boy"—there fell a heavy hand down on Kevin's shoulder. "My strong advice is that you don't mention the matter again to your aunt's ward. Everything must be done, and the best way of doing it is to keep silent, to make her forget all that happened."

The young man muttered a word of assent. But deep in his heart he knew that Bridget would never forget this tragic business, slight as had been her share in it. Also, he felt sure she was far too intelligent not to guess that their flight from Paris on the morrow was directly due to all that had happened today. How marvelous, to all thoughtful minds how terrifying, in a sense, is the power of money!

Everything was made most pleasantly smooth by those whom it concerned, to hasten the departure of the great American heiress and her party—for thus were the four people concerned regarded by the Paris police.

Small wonder that Mrs. O'Donnell was gratified to find help offered from all quarters. Two clever professional women packers came in early, and yet not too early. And Bridget, with a feeling of nausea, saw when she awoke that morning her jewel case standing as usual on the dressing table of her bedchamber. She felt glad that the floor maid who called her was a stranger and not the talkative woman who had brought her so often a note from Prince Bolonsky.

Mrs. O'Donnell felt anxious about her ward all that busy morning, for Bridget looked so ill and seemed so apathetic. But her guardian told herself that, of course, the girl must be feeling deeply leaving Mrs. Thompson. It had been a relief when, at last, it was time to start for the station in a big motor omnibus.

They called for Col. Desmond at his apartment on the way and then discovered that the manager of the Imperator had had placed with their hand luggage a large picnic basket with two bottles of champagne and a flaskful of burning hot coffee complete, so that the party should not have to use the restaurant car for lunch.

When walking through the great railway station, although very few travelers were bound for England, they were escorted by two gentlemanly young men Col. Desmond suspected were detectives.

Suspicion would have become cartainty had he known that from early morning reporters had begun to haunt the Imperator, though they had only the slenderest hints to go upon. So slender, indeed, that it had been an easy matter to head them off by the statement that any employé who said a word about Prince Bolonsky and his sojourn at the hotel would be not only dismissed but arrested.

An Open Letter to Walter Winchell

Dear Walter: Will the radio predictor please look ahead for himself a bit? A little tough going is to be among your vibrations during the summer of next year—for you personally. The closest to the same sort of thing that has ever before happened in your affairs, astrologically speaking, was in the latter eight months of 1909 and the early months of 1910, and might have been something related to your father at that time. With best wishes, WYNN.

Norway Holds Enchantments for Visitors

By Cousin Eve.

OSLO

It took a deal of energy plus ducats to get to Norway. But by and large it was worth it. The northernmost country in Europe, Norway is supremely beautiful. The land of winter sports unrolls itself from the train windows, a symphonic poem in mountains and lakes, platinum surfaces framed in fragrant pinery. It all looked so young, so fresh, so untrodden. The train was supposed to go by electricity, but pretty soon it broke down and a steady old iron horse hauled us. An Englishman aboard, on his way to salmon fishing twenty-four hours north of Oslo, said that one good air bomb could put the whole railroad system of Norway to sleep in case of war. The idea seemed to fascinate him. La guerre! Toujours la guerre!

A personage I met in Berlin had this to say of the Nordics after years of diplomatic life: The Danes are the bourgeois of the north, solid citizens, whose lives are lined with plenty. Their country has never known the ups and downs of ultra ambition and ruin, and they are gay and light hearted. The Swedes are the aristocrats of the north; their tall, straight men and fair women have pride of life and race, from hardy ancestors who bequeathed them victories on land and sea and great wealth. Stockholm is a brilliant capital.

The Norwegians are the sturdy peasants of Scandinavia, according to my German friend. In their land is a simplicity and spirituality quite lacking in the other two. In Norway one finds a charming outdoor life, quite primitive. Their art is direct and crude. Their years are divided unequally. The long dark winters with three hours of daylight when people suffer great depression, and short dazzling summers where night is not worth talking about. The days are the most fluid, shining, vivid days one ever expects to see. And the flaming youth of Norway, the most exuberant, the maddest, the happiest in Europe.

In February the whole world of Norway takes to its skis and the snowy woods are full of youngsters and oldsters, too, gliding expertly among fir trees. King Haakon from the royal box personally opens the skiing contests at Voksenkollen, a high leap on the mountain side, where all of society goes forth in its furs to see these marvelous events. Here men sail off into thin air on slim runners, landing five hundred feet below to skim off unconcerned.

So we came to Oslo and went like true Americans to the Grand hotel, where rooms and baths had been reserved for some days. But the Grand hotel was not so grand after all, for the black hole of Calcutta would have been more cheerful than the court rooms saved for us. However, some one on the train had said the Bristol was much nicer, and so it proved. Seems it is the top for tea and supper dancing in the whole of Oslo. And soon we were listening to the beat of Norwegian tomtoms while eating excellent food and watching square shouldered young Nordics writhe in ecstasies of tango.

The direction assigned me a room with the most fascinating view. Up very high, it commanded a sea of tiled roofs, red and yellow; a sweep out over the fjord, at the far end of which Oslo is splashed in a frame of everlasting hills, richly green. And over all the king's palace, a huge granite mass, set high between me and the sun, which was pretending that it was going to set. But I knew better. Once in Rome I had a heavenly vista from Quirinal hill, off over Prince Barbarini's garden, and this made me think o it, although one panorama was flooded with the gold of the tropics and the other with the silver of the arctic circle.

In Oslo either one was at the Yacht club, "Dronnigen," or in some one's lovely house on top of a mountain or at one's own window. But forever there was enchantment. I religiously did all the sightseeing there was to do in Oslo. There isn't much. One good rubberneck ride around of a morning will last a lifetime. For on this ride is one of the great sights of the world, the Oseberg and Gokstad Viking ships at Bygdo.

The traveler who has no thrill from the glorious prow of the Viking queen's ship is made of mush. Under cover, in a specially built gray hall, one finds it after nine hundred years, rearing proud lines which converge in a marvelously carved dragon's head. Of heavy black oak, it is such a stunning thing that one barely breathes on entering the presence. It stands in the class with the great sculpture of the world, the great music. For sheer supreme beauty of line the vikings hold the universe as ship builders. In these eighty foot craft early day Norsemen crossed the Atlantic, invaded England, Ireland, and in them buried their kings and queens deep in rocky soil.

The first ship was found up country in thirty feet of shale. It was the tomb of a queen, lying with a serving maid, and all the royal possessions in a sealed chamber. The other, the Gokstad ship, was the last resting place of a Viking ruler with his arms, his treasure disposed in about him. That is, what was left, for robbers had looted the sacred cache centuries before. What a divinely poetical conception for a royal catafalque. In all history there could be a no more dignified and glorious laying away for the kings and queens of this watery kingdom than in these gallant ships.

Nearby, also under cover, is another historic ship, the Fram, in which Amundsen made his polar journeys. Also near is the interesting Norsk Folkemuseum, a collection of old Norwegian peasant houses dating from the 12th century. I was a little fed up on peasant houses, having done my bit in Denmark, also in Sweden, where the same thing is called the Skanzen.

But I did look at the bath house where the peasants threw cold water on hot stones, then rolled in the snow. The humorous guide said they bathed here once a year, whether they needed to or not. Then there was a queer old 12th century church, whose eaves were low and rippling like petticoats. Very amusing architecture.

King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway have a summer house in this vicinity, Kongsgarden, an old fashioned white frame house, pleasantly set high over the broad farmlands, pastures and flower gardens. Trees and hedges screen it from the high road, but nary a sentinel or police guard is in sight. Visiting the royal family there at this time was a charming friend of ours from Copenhagen, Fru Julie Reinhard, a cousin of Ove Vett, popular bachelor of Chicago.

Fru Reinhard had given us a luncheon in Copenhagen, opening her beautiful house to do it. Some members of her family also were present, among them Baroness Wedel of Wedellsborg, Carl Vett and William Vett, noted yachtsmen and honored by close friendship with the Danish king. Also some younger members of the family. Carl Vett said that day at luncheon that he had a country house on the fjord and hoped that Mrs. Jacob Baur and I would come out for the day. We accepted the invitation and went.

It was a two hour drive to Mosse, on the east side of the fjord and toward its mouth, and we tore out in a taxi at top speed. It was the drive of a lifetime for magnificent mixtures of mountains and sea, of sunshine and shadow, of rapturous clear sky, and then suddenly of clouds adrift between earth and sun, sweeping grandly about their business, whatever that was. But they left long violet shadows, for which one blessed them.

The road was lined with gardens, with farmsteads with orchards, with swans and their understudies, geese, on willowed pools. Mosse was a sweet townlet which we traversed, for the Vett place was on an island, hidden away among orchards, woods, forests, flower gardens. Between it and the fjord was rich pasture land. The house was large, old fashioned, open, and reminded me of country houses I had known in Russia long ago.

Carl Vett is a wealthy and distinguished citizen of Denmark, with much charm of manner and many interests. He spends his ample fortune in research of varied kinds, as per example, he has been on several important digs in Arabia and Syria and brought back fine collections of relics. He is secretary of the International Society for Psychical Research, which carries on extensively in European countries. And at present he is making horticultural tests in the gardens of his Mosse estate to improve species scientifically.

Mr. Vett's handsome young daughter, Mrs. Wolvson, was his hostess this day, and luncheon was served on an open veranda on the second floor. We were all for eating out of doors and not losing a minute of the superb weather.

As to what one eats in Norway of a summer's day—the young salmon trout might just have leapt from the fjord to the table it was so fresh. I think the next course was squab chicken with peas from the garden. And later bowls of red raspberries and blueberries from the mountains were passed with clotted cream.

During luncheon Mr. Vett remarked that he had invited a much read novelist to dine with us the next night at Dronnigen, the Queen Yacht club at Oslo. Her pen name was Marika Norden. She had lived for years in Egypt at Cairo and her recent book was "The Soul Doctor."

Little did charming, kind Mr. Vett realize what a lioness he had hooked in Fru Vogt, which was the lady's real name, as he had never seen her. But he was soon to know.

In the meantime the American legation was a center of interest, for there Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of Washington had arrived as American minister and envoy plenipotentiary a month earlier. We had left cards and were promptly invited to a tea which the minister was giving for Mrs. Grenville Emmet, whose husband had just been appointed minister to Austria after a term in Holland.

The American legation at Oslo is a handsome house, with its own court and flower gardens walled completely from its neighbors and somewhat away from the city center. It had seen much society in the days of the Tony Biddles, recently transferred to Warsaw. In fact, Mrs. Harriman remarked that the pace set by the Biddles, who were giving parties every minute at Oslo, might make it hard sledding for her for awhile, as their popularity was proverbial among the Norwegians.

That day at tea she presided at her own tea table, which was set in the drawing room, with guests planted around a large circle, and the table was general. The house is furnished in American style, with the usual groupings of chairs and small tables, and piano and flowers, as in any private dwelling. The minister is perfectly natural, and regretted to me her inability to make our stay more colorful through contacts with other diplomatic people, as she herself had not been in Oslo long enough to have gone the rounds. And like Stockholm, Norwegian society was en villegiature.

Mrs. Harriman dresses well, with much style and originality, and she considers her job a double one—that of minister for the official end and that of minister's wife for the social end.

Jefferson Patterson of Dayton, O., is first secretary of this legation and a very charming host and representative of the United States. He has a lovely, rather small house hidden away among magnificent trees not far from the legation. Here his mother and his sister, Mrs. George Davison, wife of Col. Davison of our air forces at Washington, were visiting him.

Climbing a high hill one evening outside of Oslo in the country I found myself on the terrace of a queer old house, which turned out to be the Belgian legation.

At Mr. Patterson's luncheon were other first secretaries, and it was an amusing party. They had much to say of a novel written by a former French attaché of the legation on social irregularities in Norway, called "Latitude in Love." It seemed he had pretty jolly well taken his characters from real life, and the Norwegians were all heated up about it. I made a mental note to buy the book in Paris and learn more about things in Oslo.

Mr. Patterson, having a well lined purse, had done himself well in beautiful table porcelains, choice old silver, an old Bohemian glass, all of which desirable things are still to be found in Norway. There were envious squeals from various guests as these glorious antiques appeared before them.

In Oslo harbor are two yacht clubs, the King, "Kongen," and the Queen, "Cronnigen," which face each other across the water. The latter is where Carl Vett was to give his dinner at 9 o'clock. Some of us met at a bungalow on top of a mountain where there was a famous view out over the Oslo fjord and the pine covered mountains adjoining. The house itself was charming, with currant bushes heavily laden, ruching it round.

We sat in the soft evening solemnly looking at the vista, nobody saying a word, for Norwegians take their scenery seriously. The host was a celebrated Norwegian lawyer, Eivind Eckbo, one of the most fascinating men in court society of Oslo.

Finally we piled into motors and proceeded to the yacht club, only to find that the lady novelist had been there, waited awhile for us, then gone away in a towering rage. The poor darling had been on time, being an intellectual! So there was nothing for it but to send a good looking man after her. Quite soon they came back and Marika Norden was a really pretty woman with blonde hair, dark eyes, and an appealing, wistful face.

Before long, under the cheering influence of lobsters and famous wines, Mme. Norden began to tell what she really thought of the party. And then the fun began.

A word, though, of this yacht club, the Dronnigen. Built like a yacht, it had two floors out over the water, each with its dance orchestra, and every table had its gay party. Out of the wide windows one saw the gray waters of Oslo fjord, with its yachts, its lighted shores. Norwegian men dance superbly; it is a real event to dance with a Norwegian; the yacht club party moved along well. Only the lady novelist was morose; she asked me if I did not find human beings horribly indecent and disgusting—unbearable, in fact.

I tell her the truth, that the world is full of marvelous people, courageous and gay, kind hearted and charming. Mme. Norden snorts angrily. Then comes the dénouement; her last book, "The Soul Doctor," written in Cairo, was in effect a confession of broken vows, and her husband has just obtained a divorce in Norway after reading it. I make a mental note to buy "The Soul Doctor" in Paris.

Beverly Club Life Picks Up with Autumn

BEVERLY, MASS.

With the approach of September many of the summer activities which have made the North Shore so inviting are on the wane, although there is a new zest at the country clubs, particularly at the Myopia and the Essex clubs, where the golf courses are in the finest of condition and there is, as usual, much entertaining.

North Shore hotels, for the most part, will be open until well into September, and there will be the usual number of Chicagoans among the late comers to the shore.

One of the largest and most enjoyable social affairs of the season was the dinner-dance given Wednesday evening by Miss Nancy Leiter, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Leiter of Chicago, at her Edgewater house in the West Beach district at Beverly Farms. Miss Leiter is fleet captain of the Pleon Yacht club in Marblehead, and the party was one of the race week features of the club. Race week is of particular interest to the younger set. The Leiter home, one of the most attractive on the North Shore, was gay for the event. All of the North Shore colonies were represented and a band was brought from Boston to play.

One of the largest entry lists in the history of the North Shore was that today at the annual show of the Eastern Kennel Club, given at the Myopia Hunt club in Hamilton for the benefit of the Beverly hospital. There were 50 classes. Mrs. Robert B. Choate is president of the club, and most of the colonies were represented on the committee membership.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans Spalding of Lake Forest are to be with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew G. Breese at their West Manchester home next month. The Spaldings were in Wyoming for a month and motored on to Manchester. Their two children, Francis and Camilla, are to be with them for their North Shore stay.

Mrs. John Barr of Chicago was among those entertaining this week at the Bass Rocks Country club. The club has been a gay place all summer, with much entertaining done.

Announcement is made that the wedding of Miss Barbara Brewer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Brewer of Manchester, and well known in Chicago, to Charles R. L. Sturgis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sturgis of Milton, would take place Sept. 17 at St. John's Episcopal church in Beverly Farms. The wedding, which will be one of the largest of the season, will be followed by a reception at the Essex Country club in Manchester.

One of the most successful affairs of the season was the garden party given Tuesday afternoon at Winwood, the home of Mrs. Edward H. Winslow, on Neptune boulevard at Beverly Cove. All of the colonies contributed to the success of the affair, which benefited the Beverly hospital.

The annual junior tennis tournament at the Essex Country club opens next week. Myopia will hold its annual four ball invitation golf tournament over the Hamilton course during the coming week-end. The invitation tournaments, both in golf and tennis, have proved popular this season and have brought out large entry lists.

Mrs. Frederick French is giving the last of a series of talks on old gardens in history and literature on Monday morning at the home of Mrs. Charles G. Gilbert at Bass Rocks. Mrs. French will lecture on French Gardens.

Two Chicagoans Show Prowess in Fish Creek Golf

FISH CREEK, WIS.

Miss Elizabeth Hambleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Chalkley Hambleton of Chicago and Fish Creek, and her partner, James Weber Linn of Chicago, a guest at Thorp's each summer, were runners-up in the doubles competition of the annual tennis tournament sponsored by Ye Jollie Ball and Racquette club of Fish Creek. First honors were won by Mrs. Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, and her nephew, Crunden Cole of St. Paul, well known cottage row residents. First and second places in the singles also went to St. Louisans, Bill Pettus being the champion and Virginia Fischel runner-up.

Douglas Smith, son of Mrs. Gilbert M. Smith of Chicago, is a house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Baumgarten of St. Louis in their cottage row home.

The two young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. Benson Dushane Jr. are visiting their friend, Mary Jane Rogers, who is at Thorp's for the season with her mother, Mrs. James W. Rogers.

Social Pulse Quickens as Summer Wanes

By Judith Cass.

THE social pulse beats in a quickening tempo with the arrival of September and its round of gay parties for debutantes and brides. In many households there is a stir and bustle of young people preparing to return to schools or colleges, and at the country clubs a summer of activity is climaxed by the violent activity of a Labor day week-end.

The week is starting off well for tennis enthusiasts with the annual professional-amateur mixed doubles to be played at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Exmoor Country club in Highland Park. Mrs. A. Watson Armour III. and William J. Croker, professional at the Onwentsia club, will defend their championship title against Louis A. Volj Jr., tennis professional at the Exmoor, and his partner, Miss Barbara Tennant, and other teams from north shore clubs.

A tennis tournament that has been in progress all summer at the Onwentsia will be ended, it is hoped, by Labor day. A final guest day was held last week at the Indian Hill club, and the woman's golf tournament there is scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, this week. Mrs. Chester F. Sargent is chairman of the event.

The finals of the tennis tournament sponsored by the alumnæ of the Sacred Heart convent will be played at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the courts at the convent, 6250 Sheridan road. Miss Elizabeth Amberg, daughter of Mrs. John Ward Amberg, who represents the third generation of her family to be educated at the convent, and Miss Marian Brummel, a second generation student, will be among the young women assisting at a tea following the tournament.

A baseball game and a christening also are on today's program. Dudley Onderdonk and a team from Highland Park will play ball against the Onwentsia club, whose team includes, among others, Durand Smith, Daggett Harvey, John E. Baker Jr., and Thomas S. Tyler.

The christening of Thomas Hunter Knorr Jr. will take place this afternoon in the chapel of Christ church, Winnetka, with his mother's uncle, the Rev. Charles Street, headmaster of St. Alban's school, officiating.

Towards the end of the week a number of weddings will be in the social spotlight. The Dorr C. Prices' daughter, Rosemary, will be married to James Alfred Johnson Jr. in September's first wedding on Wednesday afternoon. A small reception at the Price home in Hill road will follow the ceremony at Christ church. The round of parties that Miss Price and her fiancé are attending these days is in the nature of a farewell for the pretty bride, since she and Mr. Johnson are to reside in Cincinnati.

In the beautiful gardens of her parents' home in Tower road, Hubbard Woods, at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, Miss Ruth Dickey White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. White, will become the bride of John S. Winbigler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winbigler of Monmouth, Ill.

Dr. J. W. S. Davies of Waukegan will read the ceremony, and a reception will follow at the Indian Hill club. The bride will be attended by her sister, Mrs. John H. Glenn of Fargo, N. D., as matron of honor, and by another sister, Miss Elizabeth Reid White, and Miss Anna Maxine Winbigler, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids.

Donald Winbigler of Iowa City, Ia., will be his brother's best man. Ushering will be Dean Farrar of Bloomington and Robert Dew of Monmouth. After a short wedding trip, Mr. Winbigler and his bride will be at home in Jackson, Miss.

ALSO on Friday will take place the wedding of Miss Mary Mavor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Mavor of Highland Park, to Richard H. Hedburg, son of Henry E. Hedburg of Glencoe. The wedding will be a small one, with the bride's sister, Mrs. Robert Mitchell of Milwaukee, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Lucy Jane Hedburg, as the bride's only attendants. Gilbert Younglove will be Mr. Hedburg's best man.

On Saturday Miss Camilla Folds will be married in Evanston to Arwed Boitel of Switzerland. The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at St. Mark's church, with a reception following at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Folds. Mr. Boitel will take his bride to live in St. Gall, near Zurich, where he is engaged in his family's textile business.

Miss Priscilla Guthrie will become the bride of Alfred B. Novak Saturday afternoon at Christ church, Winnetka, with a small reception following at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Guthrie, the bride's parents. Miss Guthrie's engagement to Mr. Novak was announced only a few days ago, and the news of her early fall wedding came as a surprise to family friends, for the bride-to-be was expected to accompany her parents to South America the middle of September.

THE Arthur C. Tobins and several family friends will be in Danville Saturday afternoon for the marriage of the Tobins' son, Arthur R., to Miss Sarah Elizabeth Fisher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Fisher of Danville. Mr. Tobin and his bride will reside on the south side.

Newcomers to the north side this fall will be Reverdy Wadsworth and his bride, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt of Skaneateles, N. Y. The Wadsworth-Roosevelt wedding will take place Saturday in Skaneateles, with Robert Hall McCormick III. and Garfield King among the bridegroom's ushers. Mr. Wadsworth has been working in Chicago for several months.

AT INDIAN HILL CLUB POOL

Crabs and stars adorn the decorative swim suit Mrs. Lawrence H. Rogers wears to the pool at the Indian Hill club. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers lived formerly in New York, but now they are Chicagoans, with an apartment at 39 East Division street, on the near north side.

Simons, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Simons of Wilmette. Miss McKay was educated at the University of North Carolina and Northwestern university, and Mr. Simons attended the Montana School of Mines. The wedding will take place in October at the Friends' Meeting house in Purchase, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Pike entertained with luncheon this week-end at the Kebo Valley club preceding the Tombstone tournament for members of the smart set entered in the contest.

Autumn Brings Great Activity to Lake Placid

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.

While for many years Labor day usually sounded the knell of the summer holiday, nowadays throngs of vacationists, at least in the Adirondack region, consider that with the coming of September the best recreation season of the year is getting under way.

At Lake Placid, for the sports minded members of the September colony, there is plenty to do. The first full week of the first month of autumn will be marked by the annual fall tournament of the Lake Placid Tennis Club. Golfers will make their headquarters at the Lake Placid Golf and Country club, scene of the recent $3,000 open tourney, over Labor day, where they will compete in a series of week-end matches.

Lake Placid club's 35th annual Indian council fire is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 3. This elaborate pageant celebrates, according to the ancient ritual of the red men, the end of the harvest season and the beginning of autumn.

The Governor's Ball Climax in Watch Hill

WATCH HILL, R. I.

The Governor's ball at the Misquamicut Golf club this evening will mark the high tide of Watch Hill's social life. At the dinner preceding the dance all the trophies won in the club's golf and tennis tournaments this season will be awarded.

Hubbard Phelps, son of Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps of Chicago, is giving a party for thirty of the younger set. Others who will entertain are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Cottrell Jr. of Westerly, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson E. Perin of Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Clement A. Griscom III. of Philadelphia.

THE Governor's ball tonight will mark the first time in its history that the swank Watch Hill club has elected women to its board of governors. Five women prominent in the life of the club were chosen, as follows:

Mrs. Harry Parsons Cross, Providence; Mrs. Alan M. Scaife, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Phelps, Chicago; Mrs. Griscom, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Elery Husted, New York. Others elected to the board by the charter members at their annual meeting last week were William S. Moorhead, Pittsburgh; Truman H. Newberry, Detroit; Allen T. West, St. Louis; Mr. Griscom, Ralph H. Knode, George Valentine Smith, James M. Snowden of Philadelphia, Walter E. Hope, Samuel G. Rea, Hunter S. Marston, Duer McLanahan, Thomas D. Thacher, New York; J. Edward Johnston, Baltimore, and James M. Pendleton and Charles E. Sherman, Westerly.

The men's championship golf tournament has been in progress all week and the finals will be played today. Edward A. Cudahy Jr. and Hubbard Phelps, club champion in 1935, both made scores of 84 in the qualifying round.

Miss Rosamond Grenfell, daughter of the famous missionary to Labrador, Sir Wilfred Grenfell, will come for an exhibit and sale of the Labrador handicrafts tomorrow, to be held in the new Dixon Square building in Westerly. Miss Grenfell will be the guest of Mrs. Walter S. Price, who heads the committee sponsoring the sale. Mrs. Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, honorary national president of the Needlework Guild of America, is assisting on the committee.

THE exhibition tennis matches by the Davis cup stars, Don Budge and Gene Mako, which were postponed from last Sunday on account of rain, will be held during the week. The experts came over from Newport, where they had been playing, and were entertained at luncheon at the Misquamicut Golf club by Edward Johnston, chairman of the tennis committee, after which they left for Boston to play at the Longwood club.

The young people of the Watch Hill Yacht club, for their weekly party Thursday night, met at the club at 8 o'clock and went together to the skating rink at the Atlantic Beach casino, where they enjoyed the sport until 10:30, returning to the club for refreshments. Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy has become an exceedingly popular chairman of the entertainment committee for the many pleasant parties she has arranged.

Bradford Shinkle Jr. and his brother, Jack Shinkle, have joined their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Shinkle of St. Louis, at Meadowcrest for the remainder of the summer, after an extended sojourn in Europe.

Peter Prindiville, son of Thomas J. Prindiville of New York, formerly of Chicago, will entertain with Robert O'Brien tonight at a dance to be held at the latter's estate, Sunnylands.

Mr. and Mrs. Truman H. Newberry, Mrs. Phelps Newberry, their daughter-in-law, who has been visiting them from Detroit, and Camman Newberry, left Wednesday on a special train to accompany the remains of John S. Newberry, whose sudden death occurred at his summer home, Ridge End, here, Monday. Mrs. John Newberry, who with her son, Camman, had landed in New York on Monday from a six weeks' stay in Germany, was confined at the Manhattan Eye and Ear hospital until Wednesday, and went on to Grosse Pointe, Mich., with Mr. Newberry's sister, Mrs. Henry B. Joy, for the funeral, which was held on Friday.

HARBOR SPRINGS, MICH.

Little Traverse Bay never before has been so teeming with life. Day and night sailboats and yachts of all sizes are anchoring and departing.

This lovely natural harbor, considered by many skippers to be the best and most sheltered on the Great Lakes is dotted with the cottages of Harbor Springs, Wequetonsing, Roaring Brook and Menonacqua. Wooden docks stand out forty and fifty feet in the water in front of many of these cottages, and one may see anything from a flat bottomed boat to the swiftest of crafts. Several dozen boats are tied to their moorings in the picturesque harbor.

AS "The Pointer," which is the water taxi, makes its half hourly trip from the village to the clubhouse, it threads its way through a constantly changing vista of boats. From this vantage point one saw last week the yawl Royona, which belongs to John B. Ford Jr. of Detroit; the Lovely Lady and the Who from Chicago. Also the Burlania, belonging to the Henry Burlinghams of Cincinnati, which has been in port most of the summer. Moored on one side of the Municipal dock where once the Manitou, Puritan, and the Missouri used to land passengers and freight, is the power boat Skeeter owned by Parker Levis of Alton, Ill.

The presence of four ships with black hulls lends an unusual and romantic air to the whole scene, almost reminding one of pirate days. James R. Offield's schooner Comorant, which has cruised these waters for many seasons; the schooner Silhouette, belonging to Duncan Meier of St. Louis; Fred Ford's yawl, Evening Star, from Detroit, and the Kenneth Smiths' yacht Kenkora compose this "black fleet."

THE advent of the Nakoda, owned by Fred Fisher of Detroit, caused much excitement, as she is one of the largest yachts on the great lakes. The Persian name she bears means "master of the vessel," and she is fitted with the same luxuriousness that always is associated with that oriental country. Jesse Jones, head of the RFC, and Mrs. Jones, were guests recently of the Fishers, as was Mrs. Walter Cummings of Chicago, who met the yacht at Duluth and cruised down to Harbor Point with them. She and Mrs. Cummings and their son Edward, who has been in California, are at the clubhouse until Labor day.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight C. Cowles of Lake Forest were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr. over the week-end. Mrs. J. Morse Ely, who so often comes by the waterway from Charlevoix to the Little Harbor club, chose the land route last Sunday to bring her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Magnuson. Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln S. Harris are at the clubhouse to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hyman.

Ephraim Home of Yaschenkos Nearly Ready

EPHRAIM, WIS.

The newest and one of the most attractive homes in Ephraim is being completed for Col. and Mme. Yaschenko of Chicago, who have been guests of Mrs. Alfred Wolfe and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, at nearby Stock Cliff, while supervising the construction of their house.

Their house warming was held in July, according to their original plans, with Mr. and Mrs. Hermann P. Wilms, Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray Washburn Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rogers, the junior William R Odells, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, all of Chicago, among those who helped celebrate the occasion.

To a well-nigh perfect hillside setting commanding a superb view of Little Sister bay below and the Sister Bay and Ellison Bay bluffs in the distance, has been added a low stone and log dwelling entirely in keeping with the surrounding countryside. Col. Yaschenko not only designed the buildings, but has done much of the wood carving and decorating that so well express his Russian background. This Russian motif is further carried out by the use of imported draperies, pewter, colorful vases, and hand carved lamps.

THE charm of this new home, with its broad flagstone terrace and natural rock gardens, along with the gracious hospitality of the host and hostess continues to attract many friends. Clarence Prentice of Chicago was a house guest of the Yaschenkos over the past week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky of Chicago are expected over Labor day.

Col. and Mme. Yaschenko, with their dinner hostess of the evening, Mrs. James W. Rogers, were among the many who attended the Mischakoff concert Wednesday night. Miss Katherine Sherstrom of Evanston, secretary of the Door County Artists' Concert association and Mrs. Wallis E. Wilson of Chicago, vice president of the same organization, were prominent members of the committee in charge of arrangements. They were assisted by Miss Martha Hachmeister of Ephraim, Miss Helen Worrall and Miss Marietta Muckerman of St. Louis, Miss Barbara McPherson of Green Bay, Wis., and Miss Agnes Watters of Bridgeport, Conn. The latter is visiting her sister, Mrs. John de Muth, who entertained Mr. Mischakoff while he was in Door county.

Mrs. Martin D. Hardin of Ithaca, N. Y., formerly of Chicago, has been one of the first to close her home this season in order to return to Burlington, Wis., with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Foote, who visited her last week-end. After spending a week in Burlington, Mrs. Hardin will leave for Rowayton, Conn., to be with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson Hardin. Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Bush of Evanston entertained Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Pritchard of Glencoe and Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Brannen of Evanston last week-end.

OTHER suburbanites who motored up for the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Chester D. Tripp of Evanston, who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Sanborn. They were accompanied by Mrs. Charles Ball of Winnetka, who remained as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jacobs of Shreveport, La., who are occupying the Eitel cottage this summer.

Influence of Art Is Being Seen in Industrial Fields

By Eleanor Jewett.

THERE have been numerous responses to the remarks which headed this column several weeks ago in connection with a letter written by Charles G. Blake, whose water colors have been exhibited in at least three galleries in Chicago this summer.

The remarks suggested that there was more to art than the creation of pictures or sculpture; that art was a practical adjunct to living, and that it influenced every one to a more or less degree, even when the person implicated failed to realize the influence as art.

If one were to name ten men in Chicago who today are definitly taking a lead in an understanding interest in the fine arts and who through personal efforts are enriching the art resources of Chicago, probably Charles H. Worcester would be among the first on the list. Mr. and Mrs. Worcester have given several notable paintings to the Art institute, have assembled a most interesting personal collection of paintings, and Mr. Worcester has been extremely active for some time in the affairs of the Art institute, of which he is a vice president and honorary trustee.

IT goes without saying that an opinion from Mr. Worcester is worth hearing. He writes: "I was greatly interested in your article in Sunday's TRIBUNE. This is the first time, I think, I have ever seen anything in the art columns which covered thoughts about art which have been something of a hobby with me. As a business man I am constantly in contact with men who, when you mention art to them, reply: 'O, yes, you mean pictures,' but when I point out to them that everything they use in their daily lives, the house they live in, even the clothes their wives and children wear, the wall paper in their house, their carpets, almost everything in their houses, at some time has passed through the hands of an artist designer who had to be trained to produce the patterns and designs for these articles, they commence to think and realize the truth of the statement. The conversations with a number of my friends have resulted in a real interest in art education."

SUCH letters by well informed and practical men of affairs must carry weight. The idea of art as a rather futile employment undertaken by feather brained exhibitionists to attract attention is going more and more out of fashion. The stern father who greets his son's ambition to be an artist with the words "I would rather see you dead" has become an anachronism. In more and more of the manufacturing trades the artist is being sought and encouraged. One has only to think of the competitions held each year, of the new designs advertised to the far ends of the earth, of the many art schools, some of them within the industrial plant itself, to be certain that this generation is taking a long stride forward in the intelligent development of a great force.

It is curious when one thinks of it that the significance of art applied to utility is quickly recognized—art is intelligently devised beauty. It is only when applied to paintings and sculpture that the man who would write a definition is at a loss. Think back over modernist art and you will say art is exaggeration of structure, or art is exaggeration of color and line, or art is the realization of the abnormal, or art is almost anything but beauty—art is the manufacturing of the hideous, the absurd, the trite, the vulgar, the crude; art is the expression of one's subconscious; art is the sublimating of the impossible—or what have you?

And still all the time in the background of one's thought about modernist art runs a thread of solid satisfaction as memory turns over a sheaf of great paintings and whispers the names of great artists. Also one can find pride in the fine art of this generation in a consideration of modern art, that modern art which is neither afraid nor ashamed to claim delicacy, intelligence, conscious strength, and beauty as attributes.

THE first hint of a new art season lies in the recently received announcement from the Art institute stating that the sixth international exhibition of lithography and wood engraving will be held at the institute from Nov. 5 to Jan. 10. The last day for the return of entry cards is Sept. 25. Artists wishing to submit prints should fill out the entry cards and send them to the print department, Art institute of Chicago, to which address also any inquiries may be sent. An artist is entitled to enter four prints.

THREE SWIFT CHILDREN

This charming portrait of three children by Jacques Emile Blanche is lent by Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Swift to the Charter Jubilee exhibition of portraits of Chicagoans and hangs in the first of the temporary galleries of the Art institute, where it has been greatly admired.

Aspect of Room Changes with Fittings

Miss Weigle will be glad to help readers with color problems in the decoration of the living room. Remember to enclose the necessary 3 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

By Edith Weigle.

EVERY woman who enjoys amateur decorating likes to push the furniture around and thus change the appearance of the living room. It's surprising to see how different everything looks when the couch is moved to a new place, or when a new grouping of chairs and tables is made.

The designer for one enterprising manufacturer has taken this idea and worked with it in order to help the retailer show merchandise to better advantage. He has used exactly the same room, which he calls "a basic room," but he has shown how its face may be altered simply by using different pieces of furniture and by varying the arrangement. The spirit of the whole remains the same, as he does not change the period.

In two "basic rooms," one done in traditional vein, the other in modern, he plays interesting changes on the same theme. In the traditional room he has had the walls painted a pale, "atmosphere blue." The wall to wall carpeting in a coppery toast tone furnishes a contrast to this hue.

DRAPERIES are of multi-colored printed linen having a peach and blue ground and a floral design in green, deeper peach, and beige, or natural. This background formed by walls, floor covering, and windows remains the same.

In this "basic room" No. 1 the designer has placed a Chippendale sofa covered in peach velvet against the long wall, with a handsome coffee table and end tables also in Chippendale design. Lamps are of silver with bisque toned shades.

In a small alcove at the head of the room is a simple knee-hole desk of mahogany which has been given an old English finish, and brasses of the period. Accompanying it is a little bench upholstered in a striped fabric. Nearby is a Chippendale armchair, also done in this material.

The grouping on the wall opposite the sofa is made up of a charming little two-tier table and two comfortable chairs, one a wing type upholstered in blue damask and the other a lounge chair with attached pillow back and loose seat cushion covered in the same peach-grounded linen as the draperies.

THE second arrangement was entirely different. Instead of the knee-hole desk a table desk was used. The bench, too, was different, as was the arrangement of the space above this grouping. In room No. 1 a pair of striking water colors was hung on the wall. In the second arrangement hanging shelves occupy this space. And on either side of the desk were Chippendale chairs.

Instead of a Chippendale couch a Charles of London type of davenport was used. The coffee table was slightly higher than the other, and on the opposite wall, instead of the two tier table a drop leaf of the Pembroke type was placed between the two chairs.

The lounge chairs are all slightly different in style and coverings. The lamps are Chinese porcelain.

E. D. Wormley, who designed all the furniture in the two setups, also worked out alternate color schemes, so that wall tones, floor coverings, and upholsteries may all be changed to create an entirely different effect.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, November 12, 1888.

DEAR JULIA: We have just come in from a pleasant evening in the Dearborn avenue home of Martha Jr. and Sandy. They had a few friends in for music and light refreshments and invited Will and me. We always appreciate being asked to meet the younger people, especially those interested in music. Miss Helen Buckley was the chief guest. Martha met her at the Amateur Musical club and finds her charming besides being possessed of a lovely voice.

Mr. Charles Knorr, our great tenor, was another guest, so you may imagine how delightfully we were entertained. Mr. Knorr loves to help younger musicians on and he has encouraged Miss Buckley, taking her to Frank Baird, who has a great reputation as a voice teacher. Mrs. Marshall Field told me the other day that her daughter Ethel was taking lessons from Mr. Baird. And George Hamlin, a promising young tenor, is another of his pupils.

I heard Miss Buckley sing at a reception at the home of Mrs. E. W. Blatchford on La Salle avenue recently and was again impressed by the quality of her voice. She is working hard, with a year in London as her goal. Such industry, coupled with real talent, can't fail I'm sure.

She is especially successful in her old English songs. Not every one has the right voice for this, but she pleases me perfectly.

Have you read Theodore Roosevelt's article in the November Century telling of his life out in Dakota territory, the cattle country? You will enjoy it, I know. I have been much interested in that young man ever since the election of 1884. I sat where I could see his face during the nomination in the Republican convention, and, because you had told me of knowing his family in New York, I studied his features.

The newspapers were characterizing him as a "dude," a "weakling," and picturing him as dressing foppishly and sucking the head of his walking stick. Nothing in his face suggests the fop. I suppose the fact that he is a Harvard graduate and says "eyether" instead of ee-ther," as most of us do out here, gives a handle for their disdainful remarks. Well, after reading his account of life on the range they won't be apt to call him a "dude."

Even Will, who didn't like his opposing Blaine, the party candidate, was interested in the article.

Mr. Roosevelt tells in his story of a deadly affray between two ranchers—a Scotchman and a man from Minnesota. The Scotchman rode to the ranch of the other, waiting outside to kill him, when the Minnesota man picked him off from behind a corner of his house.

"Later," says Mr. Roosevelt, "I once opened a cowboy ball with the wife of the victor in this contest, the husband himself dancing opposite. It was the lancers, and he knew all the steps far better than I did. The scene reminded one of the ball where Bret Harte's heroine 'danced down the middle with the man who shot Sandy Magee.' But though there were plenty of men present, each of whom had shot his luckless Sandy Magee, yet there was no 'Lily of Poverty Flat.'"

Then he goes on to say how hard frontier life is on women's looks, though he praises their fortitude and helpfulness.

"There are some striking exceptions," he says, "but as a rule the grinding toil and hardship of a life passed in the wilderness or on its outskirts drives the beauty and bloom from a woman's face long before her youth has left her. By the time she is a mother she is sinewy and angular, with thin, compressed lips and furrowed brow."

I used to notice that in women I met downstate on farms. They worked so hard and many of them had felt the blighting effect of malaria. Ah! The frontier is truly hard on women.

And now, good night, dear Julia.

Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Miss Helen Buckley [now Mrs. C. D. Lee, 5009 Blackstone avenue] was a favorite in Chicago, where she sang often with the Apollo Musical club. She had much success in London also, where she made her debut with the famous Joachim quartet at St. James's hall. Many readers of this column doubtless have heard Miss Buckley.

Theodore Roosevelt's western experience may be said to have made his fortune, politically, for he could no longer be caricatured as a dude, which would have been fatal to presidential aspirations. Dakota was still a territory in 1888.

Thanks to many readers who have written us about the brown stone house at Michigan avenue and Harrison street. Herman Hefter, faithful friend of this column, gives so full an account of it we shall let this represent all the answers:

"On the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Harrison street, about 1879, was located a beautiful three story and basement brown sandstone dwelling, with a large stone portico at the head of the front stoop. On this portico was inscribed 'Maison du Lac.' Here Mrs. Martha J. Boardman conducted an excellent family hotel. Among the permanent guests was J. Walter Spalding, brother of A. G. Spalding, who later became head of the sporting goods house of that name. Mrs. Boardman had a young daughter who married Walter Spalding. Their son, Albert Spalding, named for his uncle, is the world renowned violinist. Mrs. Marie Boardman Spalding died in Florence, Italy, on May 15, and was buried there."

Others who recall this fine old house are Mrs. H. S. Anderson of Sunbright, Tenn., whose father came to Chicago in 1837; Dr. Edward J. Barrett, Sheboygan, Wis.; William A. Magie, Mrs. George A. Kinney, Windsor Park, and Nelson T. Shepherd, who lived near the Maison du Lac.

Where was the Racquet club's court on Michigan avenue, where Capt. Anson and other baseball players worked out in the spring?

GOING SOMEWHERE?

FOLLOWING a four day cruise to Bermuda over the Labor day week-end, the Columbus of the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd will go on a series of three jaunts to the West Indies this fall. On the ten day cruise leaving Oct. 2 Port-au-Prince, Kingston, Havana, and Nassau will be visited, and on those sailing Oct. 13 and 23 the itinerary will be covered in nine days with Nassau omitted.

Flights twice daily between Chicago and Denver were announced last week by the United Air Lines. This is the longest nonstop overland operation in the United States, and the planes make it in 5 hours eastbound and 5¾ hours westbound. Federal officials recently ordered that Denver be made a division point on the coast-to-coast route, so that the service to that city is now direct.

Owing to the heavy volume of business in the Canadian Rockies, the season at the Banff Springs hotel has been extended to Sept. 19, says word received by Tom Wall, general agent of the Canadian Pacific railroad. Chateau Lake Louise, Emerald Lake chalet, and the nearby lodges will close Sept. 13, but several other hotels at both Banff and Lake Louise, as well as the motor tours there, will keep operating until the snow flies.

Through an arrangement with the Aguirre Travel bureau in Mexico City, conducted tours of that vicinity are available to travelers flying southward from Chicago over TWA. This was announced yesterday by John B. Walker, vice president in charge of trafic.

Cruises on the Great Lakes and railroad and bus excursions out of Chicago to the resort areas of the midwest over the Labor day week-end will bring to a climax the highly successful 1937 tourist season. Many of the resorts will close immediately after the holiday. Others will remain open for several weeks to accommodate the hay fever victims, along with those wishing to take in the early fall programs of sports and sightseeing.

Manager Jack Strathdee of the Chalet Bungalow camp at French River, Ont., writes that he intends to keep his resort open through September. The chalet is perched on a cliff overlooking the river. Pike, bass, and muskie fishing, together with golfing, are the major activities there.

To give easier access to the Great Smoky Mountains National park, the Greyhound Travel bureau has arranged a series of eight day, all-expense tours leaving Chicago each Sunday during the vacation season.

James McVittie, Chicago business man, is determined to keep his record of first flights. He was the first passenger to book for the maiden voyage of the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen to Pernambuco in 1931, the first to apply for reservations on the maiden westbound trip of the Hindenburg in May, 1935, and the first to book for the initial flight of the new LZ-130. The LZ-130, now being built in Germany, was to have left Frankfurt for Rio de Janeiro on Oct. 27, but the trip has been postponed until next spring. When the postponement was made known to Mr. McVittie, along with the offer of a refund for his ticket, he declined the offer. He still has his reservations, and will be on the airship when it starts for South America.

25 Buildings Going Up at Golden Gate

SAN FRANCISCO.—The $16,000,000 building boom on Treasure island, San Francisco bay site of the 1939 Golden Gate International exposition, is in full swing.

Forming the nucleus of the city being built as a backdrop for the fair, 25 buildings are under course of construction, with others to follow.

Temporary exhibit palaces are 30 per cent finished. Ferry slips, on both the east and west sides of the island, are 75 per cent completed. The International palace and the Palace of Fine and Liberal Arts, which will be used as hangars when the island reverts to an airport, are 95 per cent finished.

About 1,000 men are working on the island. In a few months this number will be increased many fold.

North Carolina 'Banks' Offer Real Adventure

By Cecil Bell.

KNOWN down there as "the banks," the narrow barrier reef extending for more than 200 miles off the mainland of North Carolina has come to be recognized by travel minded people as a rare adventure.

The national park yardstick has been applied to that area, with the result that a stretch of the banks from Cape Hatteras northward has been approved by the park service, and more recently by the passage of an act through the house of representatives. The area was found to have inspiring perspectives and delightful details; land and water sufficiently extensive and adaptable so that annually thousands of visitors might enjoy the benefits of outdoor life without the confusion of overcrowding; native flora and fauna of highly unusual character, and opportunities for establishing a natural museum to preserve animal, plant, and aquatic life.

Almost Pure Elizabethan Speech.

Only one of the national park requirements was not met, and that was the one regarding accessibility. A trip down the banks, past isolated fishing villages, white coast guard stations, hulks of great ships wrecked on the shoaling beaches, to the easternmost projection of the reef into the Atlantic is a thrilling affair, with ample reward for those who take it. Across Pamlico sound by boat, some thirty miles in width at this point, is the easy way—but not without its thrills.

Here one encounters decidedly novel experiences. Meeting the people is to hear, brought down to 1937, almost pure Elizabethan speech. Across the sand banks and dunes, nipping cautiously at clumps of grass, are wild ponies, whose progenitors were left scattered along this strand by the Spanish invaders more than 200 years ago. Highways are water packed beach sands, at low tide as smooth as concrete. Terns, gulls, loons, cormorants, and in the fall and winter vast hordes of ducks, geese, and other migratory waterfowl toboggan over the waters, race over the sand, and zoom and dip in the air.

Where a Whole Colony Disappeared.

With a feeling approaching awe the visitor stands upon the site of the "ancient citie of Raleigh" on Roanoke Island. Here and just across the sound are two national shrines. On Roanoke were founded the first English colonies in America, in 1584 and 1587. There was born Virginia Dare, first baby of English parentage to arrive in the new world. And from this site disappeared the "lost colony of the Roanoke," engulfed forever by some unknown fate twenty years before the founding of Jamestown and thirty-three years before the landing at Plymouth Rock.

At Kitty Hawk, N. C., and specifically from Kill Devil hills, man first successfully took to wings. Here Orville and Wilbur Wright, in December, 1903, made their pioneer airplane flight.

Arrived at Cape Hatteras, the visitor stands beneath the shadow of the most famous lighthouse on the Atlantic coast. Abandoned now, the Cape Hatteras lighthouse was the tallest and most picturesque in the coast guard service. It stood once several miles from the ocean, but the pounding, boiling surf that rolls in over treacherous Diamond shoals, the graveyard of the Atlantic, has eaten away the sands until they now wash within a few feet of this towering beacon.

One of Nature's

Jus tbelow Cape Hatteras are the village of Hatteras, North Carolina's Gloucester, and historic Ocracoke Island, where the pirate, Edward Teach, "Blackhead" to those he robbed, met his death at the hands of Capt. Maynard and his vengeful United States naval crew.

The angler who comes to this area has reached one of nature's most prolific aquariums. But there's nothing tame about these waters. With the right kind of bait and "fishing weather" prevailing, the sounds and ocean yield hefty specimens of all kinds of salt water fish. Oregon inlet is a noted channel bass hangout. Cape Hatteras runs the inlet a close second when it comes to results from surfcasting. Bluefish, mackerel, sheepshead, and other fighters are taken in large numbers, while out in the Gulf stream, which swings in close to the cape, topflight sport is had by deep sea fishermen who use heavy tackle and go after amberjack, dolphin, and tarpon.

Flotsam and Jetsam for the Collectors.

Situated on the flight line of great numbers of migratory waterfowl, the waters of coastal North Carolina provide excellent shooting. Currituck sound, Pamlico sound, and others are favorite wintering places for wild fowl.

Less thrilling, perhaps, but not less interesting to the devotees, is the collection of marine life found along these shores. On the point at Cape Hatteras flotsam and jetsam from many corners of the earth alight, to be picked up by collectors.

Chicago Dancers to Give Program in Model Hamlet

LITTLE NORWAY, Wis., Aug. 28.—Dance tunes of old Norway will echo from the hills surrounding this village Sunday, Sept. 5, when the Norwegian Folk Dance Ring society of Chicago presents a program of folk dances on the valley green. Twenty-two members of the society will dance in authentic costumes to the accompaniment of a Norse fiddler.

Little Norway is a typical Norwegian mountain hamlet nestling in the hill country of southern Wisconsin. It was the site of the first Norwegian farm in the state. Ten years ago the valley was purchased by Isak Dahle of Chicago, and the 80 year old buildings of hewn oak logs were completely restored and the valley landscaped. Into the old buildings Dahle has put his entire collection of Norwegian antiques and art objects.

The largest portion of the collection is housed in the Norway building, which was built in Norway and taken to France for the Paris exposition of 1889 and then to Chicago for the fair of 1893.

Sneezers Rush Toward Ontario

TORONTO, Ont.—Tourist trafic into the northern sections of Ontario is being swelled by the annual rush of hay-fever victims.

The sporting lands are embraced by more than 407,000 square miles, nearly half of which is wooded, and they contain almost 42,000 square miles of fresh water. The thousands of streams, rivers, and lakes provide fish for the visiting sportsmen.

Custom of Lei Giving Has Its Business Side

HONOLULU.—[U. P.]—The custom of selling garlands to arriving and departing tourists is in turmoil here. Sales people are complaining that travelers don't like leis thrust in their faces, that too many children are in the business, and that police throw penniless lei sellers in the patrol wagon.

There is an organization of lei sellers, but it doesn't work. There are the trafic problem, the child labor problem, the business ethics problem, the working-wives-of-working-husbands problem. And all of it is in the collective lap of the board of supervisors' finance committee, which sagely took the problem under advisement.

To get the background straight: 500 persons in Honolulu make a living wholly or partly by selling leis—those fragrant garlands of pikake, ginger blossoms, gardenias, tube roses, carnations and a score of other flowers—which are dangled about the neck upon any excuse from a sailing to a dinner date.

Water Front Is Most Profitable.

The big revenue, of course, comes from the water front area on sailing days, although locations near the tourist hotels are lucrative. So naturally it is at the water front the trouble is brewing—or has brewed.

Some sellers favor the slappety-bang, rough-house method of doing business—virtually looping the lei around a customer's neck if he seems a bit reluctant—and dashing hither and yon for prospects. Others hold out for a more orderly system, with each person remaining at any allotted spot.

One hundred-odd lei women and a couple of husbands, the women wearing the characteristic Hawaiian holoku—a nightgownlike dress with which the missionaries draped the natives' nakedness and to which they have clung ever since—lauhala hats and pretty grim expressions, gathered in the supervisors' office to straighten out the controversy.

Wants Regulation, But Not by Police.

"One haole wahine [white woman] the shoes fly off and the purse fall down and writing fly outside," said Agnes Makaiwi in explaining the sad state of things which prevails when the lei women rush the tourists.

Margaret Clincheck, past president of the Hawaii Lei Sellers' association, arose to explain in a lengthy speech, mixing English and Hawaiian freely, that she wanted regulation, but not by the police.

"Some of them would choke their own grandmother," she said, blandly ignoring Chief of Police William Gabrielson, who sat not more than 15 feet distant.

They argued the child labor question back and forth, but got nowhere, because it developed some could not exist if the children didn't help, and others complained that youngsters belonging to some one else got all the business while the old women, not so spry, got nothing.

A Question of Idle Children.

"What does children going do home? Idle?" asked one woman who depended upon her children not only to keep the business rolling but to keep them out of mischief.

She was answered promptly by a childless seller who felt she and others like her were getting a raw deal.

"The mother sells in different line. The children sells in different line," she explained in a torrent of speech, with gestures such as only a Hawaiian can make. "The children runs to meet the tourist. Father, mother, brother, uncle selling at the door [to the pier]. You check up you find that true."

A standing vote was taken as to whether they favored some kind of regulation, or whether they wanted to regulate themselves, but the results were inconclusive.

"They up and they down," sighed Mrs. Clincheck. "They undecided."

Which is just where the whole matter stands.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

ROAMING WITH RAMONA.

LUCERNE, Italy, July 28.—To the Travel Editor: I promised you a letter on Italy, and if I am a little late in catching up with my correspondence, I know that you will not mind. We have been traveling so much, and doing so many things, that I haven't had much time.

I shall begin with Vintimille, the Italian frontier. Vintimille is on the coast—an old town. What were my impressions? High houses of a chalkish color, wash hanging out the back windows, smiling children bathing in the sea, and handsome young men everywhere. I don't know where the women were, but you see many more men in Italy than women.

Genoa is an important port. We drove around the city to admire the wide streets and the buildings. Genoa is full of banks and shipping offices and various other office buildings. Our hotel was an old palace with a magnificent circular staircase. The floors were of inlaid wood, and what a bathroom we had! About the size of one of our Chicago kitchenette apartments.

We left for Rome. The trains in Italy are heavily policed. Lots of soldiers, militia, and conductors everywhere. A soldier accompanies the conductor to collect the tickets, and he looks rather serious. Italian trains are interesting, because they are always so crowded. We traveled second class. The people in that class are all well dressed. Their clothes fit them well, and many of them know English.

Kings and dictators pass on, but Rome goes on forever. The weather was cool, and a pleasant room in a hotel near the Borghese gardens with a good dinner put us in a good mood to explore. Night life in Italy begins late. The concert in the gardens did not take place until ten. There were a number of vaudeville acts of different degrees of interest. Admission was free, the sole requirement being the purchase of a drink. That's one nice thing about Europe—you can sit all evening on one drink.

Sightseeing in Rome is rather strenuous. Be sure to include a good pair of walking shoes when you start to do Italy. Our program included the Coloseum, the Forum, the churches, and the catacombs. We covered the Vatican museum with the Sistine chapel and the picture gallery, and St. Mary Major's and St. John Lateran's. We drove out to Castel Gondolfo for our audience with the pope.

In Florence we went to the Pitti and Uffizi galleries and spent a lot of time shopping on the Ponte Vecchio. It's hard not to spend all your money in Florence—there is so much to buy. Our evenings were devoted to riding in open carriages. What a superb view of the city we obtained from the Piazza Michel Angelo! The River Arno lay at our feet, and in the distance we saw the dome of the cathedral and the tower of the Piazza Signoria.

On to Venice, and so much has been written of gondolas and romance that it seems impossible to say anything more. But all your dreams will come true there. All the beauty you have hungered for you will find 'neath the "pale Venetian moon." Drift down the Grand canal in a gondola and listen to the Serenata, and life will have a new meaning. The Doge's palace and St. Mark's church look so different at night. There is a softness of outline, and a beauty that takes your breath away. I have seen Venice now fourteen times in fourteen years, and I love it more each time.

Bathing at the Lido on the golden sands. Italian language all around you. Thence to tea at the great hotel on the Lido and thrilled with the knowledge that within a week Wally and Edward would dine on the same terrace.

We left Venice with a sigh, but our route lay north to the town of Padua, where we visited the great church of St. Anthony. There are three great court yards around the edifice. The altars of the church, about twenty in number, were given by as many different nations. We dined for half a dollar in a good restaurant near the station, and once more we were on our way.

It's funny how much a good meal adds to your enjoyment of a city. The most interesting event we attended in Milan was the opera, "Carmen." About five thousand Italians paid from ten cents to sixty cents to witness the spectacle. We climbed up to the last row, and sat on a bench and heard singing equal to that of our own Chicago Opera house. The setting was an outdoor stage in the municipal park. No wonder the Italians are our musicians, when opera is within the reach of all.

The cathedral in Milan is my favorite church in Europe, and each time I enter it I feel at peace with the world. Great, stained glass windows, tall columns, and a feeling of magnificence not found elsewhere. You leave the hot sunshine and enter a darkened church in which you feel that God must be present in the midst of so much beauty.

We left Milan after visiting the painting of "The Last Supper" and the cemetery, famous for its monuments. Our route lay by bus to Lake Como and the sunshine made the lake bluer than ever. We drank to Italy and said goodby at Chiasso, the frontier. My next letter will take you with me from Chiasso through Switzerland into Germany and Belgium.

RAMONA GIBBONS HAYES.

THIS SIDE OF PARADISE.

Antioch, Ill., Aug. 19.—To the Travel Editor: We see by THE TRIBUNE that Gov. Winship of Porto Rico wants to make that island a tourist "paradise." These are just a few lines from a couple who spent from November, 1928, to April, 1929, in San Juan and studied conditions there and elsewhere on the island.

The climate, scenery, and fruit are simply grand, but there is nothing else to be recommended there. There is not an apartment building as we know them in this country. At San Christobal apartamentos we paid $60 a month for two rooms, a kitchenette too small to turn around in, and the use of a bathroom, shared with others. Not a dish was furnished, nor an ice box, but we demanded some dishes and were allowed a very few. Sheets, pillow slips, and a spread were the only bedding.

There is no ocean bathing on account of the sharks and barracuda, which are numerous. There is an enclosed pool at the Condado-Vanderbilt hotel, but you pay plenty to go bathing there.

Unless you want to eat your proverbial "peck of dirt" in a hurry, you will never eat anything but your own cooking there, for, while the natives are clean about their persons, the less said about their housekeeping the better. Cold water is used to wash dishes in and, as they use olive oil, you could write your name in the grease left on the dishes.

Unless you watch sharply you will be short changed and short weighted in the stores. Food is very high, everything [except fruit and sugar] being brought from the mainland. The few vegetables they raise are not fit to eat.

The majority of the natives have no use for the Americans and will not talk English, although many can do so. They are highly immoral as a rule, and syphilis is widespread.

Cockroaches as big as mice are common, ants and mosquitoes are plentiful, and there are no screens.

After finding that our rooms were entered during our absence we put a padlock on one door and barred the other from the inside. Thieving is common.

MR. AND MRS. L. B. CONGDON.

PAGING MR. WARNER.

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 23.—To the Travel Editor: I always read with special interest the travel section of THE TRIBUNE, and of late I have missed the fine articles by Mason Warner, telling of the many pleasant experiences in his trips to the South Sea islands.

Next to traveling yourself to these places is to read about them and thus enjoy some one else's experience. Mr. Warner writes his word pictures just as if he were sitting beside you and relating it all in person.

I am sure many other readers of THE TRIBUNE join with me wishing Mr. Warner's speedy return and hoping the travel editor will do all in his power to assure us of this pleasure.

H. B. MAGEE.

HE'LL BE WITH US AGAIN SOON.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—To the Travel Editor: What has become of Mason Warner's series of articles? I have enjoyed reading them for a long while—except that they were all too brief. Please have him write some more.

VICTOR ROBERTSON.

THOSE SCENIC POSTCARDS.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—To the Travel Editor: The Lena Barr Morse Travel Club for Shut-ins is preparing scrapbooks for those unable to travel, and we would appreciate it greatly if travelers among your readers would send us scenic postcards and folders for that purpose. They may be sent to me at 3980 Archer avenue.

The club will hold a luncheon and meeting at 1 p. m. Saturday, Sept. 4, at the Graymont hotel, 1032 East 46th street. The affair will be open to the public, but reservations should be made not later than Sept. 2.

MRS. J. A. SCHAEFFNER, Secretary.

GREETINGS TO A SHUT-IN.

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 23.—To the Travel Editor: I wonder if some of the travelers among your readers would be kind enough to send a birthday greeting to Mrs. Robert Strauch of 724 Hickory street, Waukegan? Mrs. Strauch has been a helpless arthritic for some years and has very few pleasant hours. Her birthday is on Sept. 4.

[MRS.] MARY PETERSON.

ADVANCE INFORMATION.

Berwyn, Ill., Aug. 15.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank you for publishing my recent request for information on what to do and see on the way to California and after my arrival there. I also wish to thank all those who responded to my request. I received many letters, giving information about the various cities out west, as well as the prices of such things as cabins and meals. I hope that some day I can return the favor by telling them about the places I have visited.

Mont Saint Michel to Be Island Again

MONT SAINT MICHEL, France. [U. P.]—The famous fortress monastery of Mont Saint Michel, which has been joined to the mainland by a dike, will become an island again, says an announcement by the ministry of public works.

The work of cutting the dike for a distance of 1,700 feet will begin early in 1938. Those in charge believe it will be completed in time for the festival of Mont Saint Michel in September of next year.

At present tourists may visit the historic monuments by motor car.

Correspondent Writes Thrills of Catalina

By Ruth Billheimer.

CATALINA ISLAND, CAL.

Could Cabrillo return "incog" to Santa Catalina Island today he'd find, instead of native Indians roaming its hills and populating the townsite which now is Avalon, a phalanx of Spanish-hatted stevedores, "caballero" bus drivers to take him to the tile roofed hotel around the point, and strolling Spanish musicians to add atmosphere to this little town "gone Spanish," the dream of Chicago's late William Wrigley Jr., who lies sleeping in a gleaming white mausoleum at the head of the canyon behind Avalon.

His imposing home, which is occupied several months each year by his widow, is located on Mount Ada [named for her], 100 feet above Avalon bay and from across the town on the opposite hillside looks the home of their son, P. K. Wrigley, who is carrying on his father's hobby of developing the island into an unusual resort.

IN truth, it is an empire in itself [as the elder Mr. Wrigley proudly called it], with its own utilities, its schools, its thousands of acres of brush covered mountains, its island rancho, to which the P. K. Wrigley family retires for seclusion and country life, its cattle, deer, mountain goats, and even buffalo, its countless coveys of quail, and its coves that invite Pacific yachtsmen.

"I left my love in Avalon" is true enough, you think, as the Spanish orcehstra on the pier plays "La Golondrina" in farewell to the steamer leaving for the mainland and shipboard musicians echo its last strains. Indeed, from the moment of arrival you are transported into a little world of color and music. Chimes which Mr. Wrigley installed on a promontory are the first to welcome incoming steamers with a serenade of Spanish melodies. And on the shore the townspeople and vacationers crowd about the pier to cheer the newcomers, in keeping with an island tradition. This year they sing and you hear everything from "Sweet Sue" to "The Sidewalks of New York" with words especially adapted to Catalina.

ON the property adjoining the P. K. Wrigley place is that of D. M. Renton, where he has brought his bride, the former Isabel B. Cline of Kenilworth, to reside. They received 150 islanders at an "at home" last week in the colorful patio of their house. Mrs. Renton's mother, Mrs. J. S. Cline, arrived a few days ago to make her home with them.

At the St. Catherine Mrs. A. T. Atwater [Dorothy Lee] was a recent guest and Mrs. A. Johnston Jr. and her son, James A. Johnston of River Forest, are registered there, as well as George Ogle and two sons, George Alden and William, of Pasadena and Chicago.

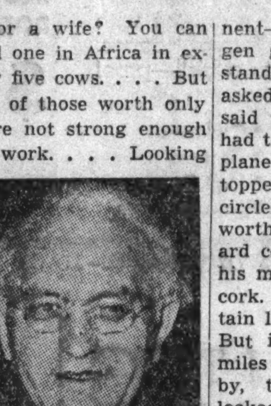
TOURING ALONG THE GRAND CANAL IN ANCIENT VENICE

Venetian taxis are still the best—and in many cases the only—way for the tourist to go places in the city of the Doges.

D E T O U R

- - - - - By FREDERIC BABCOCK

LOOKING for a wife? You can get a good one in Africa in exchange for five cows. . . . But steer clear of those worth only one cow; they're not strong enough to do all your work. . . . Looking for a rainbow? You can fly right through one, and at the same time see half a dozen others lying against an African mountain. . . . But beware of forced landings; you're liable to light in some place where, if you don't take off all your clothes, you'll be regarded as immodest. . . . And be careful about flying over the equator; your blood may turn to ice.



Rabbi Goldman.

● One of Chicago's busiest citizens took time off last week to sit down for half an hour or so and tell this department about his round trip by air from London to Cape Town. . . . He is Dr. Solomon Goldman, spiritual leader of Temple Anshe Emet, and he has been hopping around so much in the last three months that perhaps he should be called a sky pilot. . . . His speaking tour of South Africa was in the interests of Zionism, but en route, and while there, he saw and experienced enough to fill a whole volume of travel. . . . Some men might go 26,500 miles—15,000 of it by plane—and not bring back vivid impressions of far horizons. . . . But not Rabbi Goldman. . . . His mind doesn't work that way.

● Most of the flight over Africa was made at a height of from 6,000 to 7,000 feet, but as the plane approached Mount Kilimanjaro—19,325 feet, and the highest on that continent—it began to soar and the oxygen grew scarce. . . . Could they stand the discomfort? the commander asked. . . . The three passengers said they could. . . . Never before had travelers on an Imperial Airways plane had a clear view of the snowtopped peak; always a mist had encircled it. . . . So the sight was worth the trouble. . . . But the steward couldn't take it; he had to keep his mouth open by means of a huge cork. . . . At 18,800 feet the mountain lay sparkling beside them. . . . But it was awfully cold there—500 miles from the equator. . . . Close by, the 14,500 foot Mount Meru looked like a molehill. . . . With no other land to be seen, it was like being in another world.

● It was while speeding over the hills of Kenya that the travelers shot through a rainbow, with the colors splashing all around them. . . . Traversing the Blue Nile and the White Nile for hundreds of miles, they saw those great streams lose themselves in the sand, with only tricklets of water visible, and then come back as glorious as ever. . . . It was at Galu, an obscure village in Uganda, that they made an emergency landing. . . . The town was equipped with nothing more than a hand pump with which to refill the huge tank. . . . Within five minutes after their arrival the newcomers were surrounded by hundreds of natives, friendly, but cynical, and not backward about remarking that the white men had too much clothing on. . . . As primitive a people as are to be found anywhere on earth—except, perhaps, the Belgian Congo—the women wore a bit of loin cloth; the men were stark naked.

● "But you can find almost the same thing in Durban," said Dr. Goldman. . . . "One minute you think you're in Nice or Cannes, with their elegant shops and hotels, their fashion displays, and their Rolls-Royces. . . . The next minute, and on the same street, you see Zulu maidens with nothing on but a loin cloth. . . . The native men, however, wear shirts and trousers. . . . That's because they work in town. . . . The women come in from the country to walk home with them." . . . The girls are good to look upon—when they're young. . . . In Durban there are herds and herds of monkeys, and their faces bear a striking resemblance to those of the bipeds who walk upright.

● Over a jungle near Nairobi the plane dipped low enough to permit the tourists to see hippopotami, elephants, and leopards, along with ostriches by the hundreds, and lions stalking the zebras. . . . It was a much more impressive sight than that of the pyramids. . . . Viewed from the air, the pyramids lost their effectiveness; they were not towering over the sightseer. . . . But a lion was still a lion.

● At 4 o'clock one morning in his hotel room in Johannesburg Rabbi Goldman was awakened by a tapping, tapping on the other side of the wall. . . . The following morning, and the one after that, it was the same thing. . . . Finally he investigated. . . . The natives were reporting for work at the hotel, and the noise came from their footsteps on the stairs. . . . They were forced to climb all the way to the tenth floor. . . . The elevators were reserved for white people. . . . "It made me doubt the effectiveness of what we preachers have been trying to teach. I wondered what we have accomplished toward the brotherhood of man."

● "If we had such attractions as the Cango caves in the United States," observed the rabbi, "we would call them the Cango palaces, and they would be world famous. . . . I saw, worked out by nature among the formations, the Madonna and Child, the apostles, Solomon's bridal chamber, and caverns of exquisite beauty. . . . Michelangelo himself couldn't have improved upon them. . . . They raised, once more, the old question of whether the creation of the world was an accidental piece of work or the design of a Master Mind."

● The strangest interview obtained by Dr. Goldman was reserved for Johannesburg. . . . He tried to get a native to talk, but the black man had had so many centuries of servility ground into him that he would offer nothing except: "Yes, doctor." . . . All other efforts failing, at last he was induced to have the final say on the value of matrimony. . . . This was his pronouncement: "A good, strong wife is worth five cows. If she's not so strong, she's worth only three cows. If you get a wife for one cow, she's no good for anything."

Monterrey Opens Another Bull Ring

MONTERREY, Mexico, Aug. 28.—The second bull ring to be built here this year will be inaugurated tomorrow with performances by Mexico's ace fighters, Lorenzo Garza and Armillita. They will send six bulls to their death in the concrete "plaza de toros," modeled after the ring in Seville.

With this ring, making a total of three here, Monterrey will vie with Mexico City in attracting American tourists and Mexican "aficionados."

New Road to Take Tourists to Land of Pictured Rocks

In the epic of the north country, the Ojibway Indian elf Pau-Puk-Keewis danced at Hiawatha's wedding feast, where he

Stamped upon the sand and tossed it
Wildly in the air about him;
Till the wind became a whirlwind,
Till the sand was blown and sifted,
Like great snowdrifts o'er the landscape,
Heaping all the shores with stand dunes,
Sand hills of the Nagow Wudjoo!

Thus were formed the ever changing dunes of Grand Marais, and later, when the wiles of the elf enraged Hiawatha, the latter pursued Pau-Puk-Keewis down the shore of Gitche Gumee, or Lake Superior, and the sprite took shelter in a cavern on the coast.

Then Waywassimo, the lightning,
Smote the doorways of the cavern,
Smote the jutting crags of sandstone,
And the crags fell, and beneath them,
Dead among the rocky ruins,
Lay the cunning Pau-Puk-Keewis,

Thus the new road, somewhat shorter than the present route from Munising, will follow precisely the path of the flight. The scene is visited by throngs of summer tourists who view the spot where Pau-Puk-Keewis lies.

The Pictured Rocks extend for twenty miles along the shore of Big-Sea-Water, or Lake Superior, and boat trips of a few hours' duration are made to them daily in summer from this city.

Please give me a vest pocket description of Denmark. W. S.

Denmark is the oldest kingdom in Europe. It has about as many people as Chicago, is about one-third the size of Illinois, and yet a coast line of 5,000 miles, with more than 500 islands.

I have heard of a place where golf is played late at night in the summer months, with the midnight sun furnishing the light. Can you tell me where that is? F. C.

On the courses outside of Helinski, capital of Finland.

What can you tell us about the Seminole villages in Florida? P. N.

The Indians there live in small and scattered family groups. Their homes are rectangular in shape, with smooth log floors laid about 2 feet above the ground. The houses have no side walls, and the women do the cooking before open fires. In the more permanent settlements the Seminoles have built palmetto thatched roofs over the fireplaces, to serve as protection when it rains.

Can you tell me how Mackinac Island got its name? R. G.

It was originally called Michilimackinac or Missilimaquina. From the Chippewa and Ottawa dialects of the Algonquins, the French, and later the English, got the name Michilimackinac. Later this was contracted to Mackinac, pronounced "mackinaw."

IN WISCONSIN

Onawipimek keso, the Indians call it—"turning leaves moon." So do the primitive forest children pay their tribute to the colorful glory of September in Wisconsin.

Each year Nature stages this spectacular finale to the summer season. The vast greeneries of forest, meadow and marsh don new costumes of gold, red, brown, orange, bronze. Placid lakes and quiet streams reflect the thrilling symphony. Migrating birds flash their colors and sing their songs as they assemble for their southward flight.

If you've never seen Wisconsin in September, come up this year! The tonic air, the mellow sun, the eager fish, the forest trails in autumn setting will give you thrills and memories to last for years.

We'd like to tell you more, in words and pictures, about this great vacation land.

Atlantic's Conquest by Air

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE two giant flying boats reproduced here sectionally to scale and in colors are engaged this summer in shuttling back and forth across the North Atlantic ocean in a series of experimental flights.

Their departures and arrivals to schedule after crossing what has been the most dreaded stretch of salt water for flyers indicate that predictions of regular air services for passengers and mail by 1938 are not unduly optimistic.

At the top of the page and eastbound—if you consider the page like a flying or nautical chart—is the Pan American Clipper III., the Pan American Airways system boat in which all the American flight, radio, meteorological, and navigational problems will be worked out.

Beneath it and westbound is the Caledonia, one of the two British Imperial Airways boats in which crews are being trained by actual flights. The other Imperial experimental craft is the Cambria, a sister ship.

Their comings and goings, their midocean passings, long since have ceased to be news. There has been little space in daily news columns, however, to tell what the crews discovered in their flights or to relate the various tests which are being conducted while the flights are in progress. These subjects will be covered here.

First of all let it be recalled that the double crossings as made to date have been completed under the most favorable conditions from the technical standpoint of any Atlantic flights.

The big flying boats have four engines apiece. The crews have been large, with each member a specialist in some one phase of flying, such as navigation, engineering, communications. And certainly the ships have had an ample fuel supply which allows for head winds, errors in navigation, and unfavorable weather conditions at destination.

In other words, the ships and men are perfectly equipped for the job. There was no element of chance involved even in the first of the experimental trips.

Now let us consider the flight problem as do the Pan American and Imperial Airways experts.

As it now is known, the Atlantic ocean represents a nonstop flight assignment of roughly 2,000 miles. So far as distance is concerned it is substantially the same transport problem as the crossing from San Francisco to Hawaii, except that the Pacific ocean flight is 20 per cent longer.

Strictly speaking, there is no "ocean airway" on either the Atlantic or the Pacific. This means that there is no distinct "route" to be followed on every crossing.

Ocean flying differs from land flying in that airliners over land follow definite airways, along which they receive radio directional signals. But ocean flights are plotted according to weather maps. There is, of course, a great-circle course which is the shortest possible distance between points. On the Atlantic this is about 2,000 miles, and on the Pacific, between Hawaii and California, it is 2,410 miles.

But the track of the ship is determined by the kind of weather it will encounter. The crews are willing to travel a course many miles longer than the great-circle course if by so doing they find favoring winds, smooth air, and a speedy voyage.

An example of this may

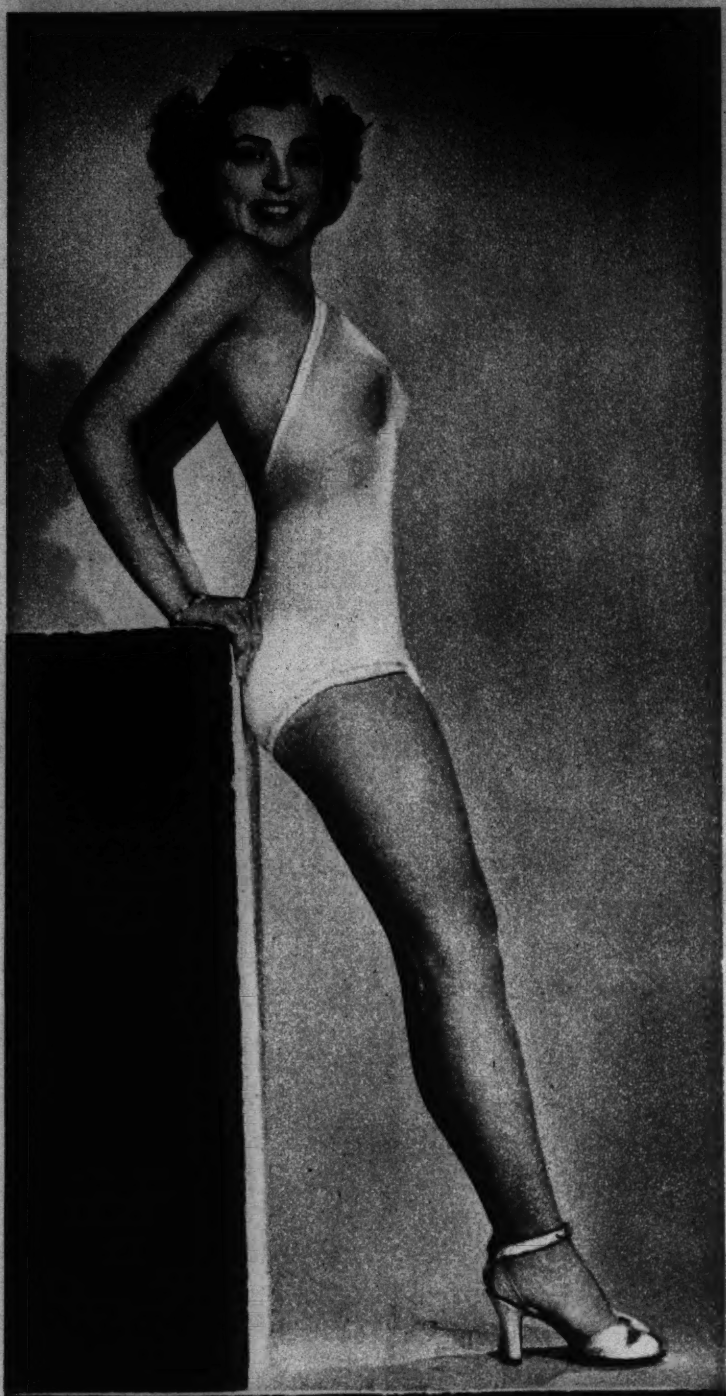
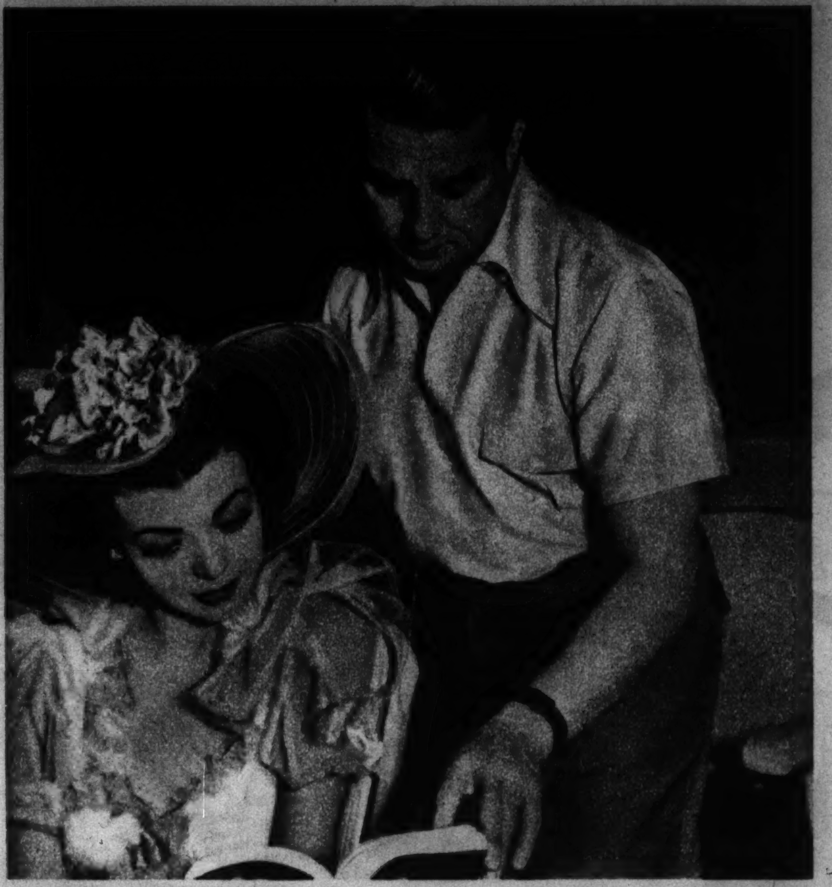
Dumb-belling Her Way to Fame



Miss Ridgway's figure was her passport into the movies. She got a job when a dance director saw her in a bathing suit.



She couldn't make any sense out of a dictionary because it wasn't written in complete sentences.

The sayings of Suzanne, merry, ingenuous and abounding in whimsical error, have become the talk of the studio. Experts in movie behaviorism and worldly wisdom haven't been able to determine whether her malapropisms are genuine or feigned. She has "a line," but whether it is native cleverness or congenital "dumbness" is an unsolved problem.

Hollywood, Cal.

THE stage character named Dulcy, whose charm was the unconscious humor of her stupidity and ignorance, invented by Franklin P. Adams, New York columnist, and acted by Lynn Fontanne in 1921, has come to life in the Paramount studios and is the latest laugh of the Hollywood merry-go-round. Her name is Suzanne Ridgway; she is a neophyte dancing girl, little better than an "extra"; and the motion picture producers and press agents are talking about her as if she were a star. She has dumb-belled her way into a seven year contract with an option clause providing for extension or cancellation every six months, on a salary of $50, or maybe $65, a week.

She has been rehersing in the dancing choruses of productions to be called "Artists and Models" and "This Way, Please," under the handicap of not being able to remember which is her left foot. Her artless prattle, in the meantime, has achieved celebrity.

Visitors are taken to see and converse with Suzanne. She is a character at whom tourists marvel. She never fails to send them away in stitches. Experts in movie behaviorism and worldly wisdom have studied her in an effort to discover whether her malapropisms are genuine or feigned, and have been unable to diagnose the case. Suzanne has "a line" without doubt, but whether it is native cleverness or congenital "dumbness" is an unsolved problem.

Miss Ridgway is a black haired, happy-go-lucky young person, exceedingly shapely. Her figure was her passport into the Paramount organization; she applied for a job, a dance director told her to put on a bathing suit, and she was immediately engaged as a recruit for a ballet. This, of course, was routine stuff; many thousands of girls have been through the same experience. Presently, however, the dance director, Leroy Prinz, began to wonder if Suzanne Ridgway was just an other girl who pretended that she could dance, or Gracie Allen doing an endless skit of radio program nonsense.

When she filled out the usual biography card for the studio's files, Miss Ridgeway jotted down this explanation of her nationality: "French and Irish on mother and father's side, and English on my stepfather's side."

She gave her birthplace as Paris, France, and when questioned on this point she said:

"I was born there when my parents went over for their honeymoon."

At the first rehersal, Miss Ridgway was frequently out of step. She said blithely to the director:

"We start this number on the left foot, and every now and then I forget which is my left foot."

He suggested ironically that she might tie a handkerchief around her left wrist as a reminder, and she asked with an ingenuous smile:

"Will a white handkerchief do?"

This incident started a series of experiments on Miss Ridgway's mental capacity. For example, she was handed a dictionary and asked if she knew how to use it. She said:

"The book I've got at home makes sense, but this one isn't even written in complete sentences."

She informed Director Prinz that she wanted to be an actress instead of a dancer "because actresses get to sit down oftener."

Suzanne lives with her mother and two brothers at 7965 West Fourth street, Los Angeles. "It's a studio duplex," she explained to an interviewer. "Do you know what a duplex is? It has an upstairs and a downstairs and you live in both of them, but there is a next-door."

She was graduated from Santa Monica High school in 1934 and is 19 years old. As a minor, she has to go before a Superior court justice in Los Angeles for the legalization of her contract with Paramount.

"I think it is silly," said Suzanne, "that a girl has to go to court when she really hasn't done anything."

The publicity that has been given to her faculty for making people laugh pleases but puzzles her. "It is fun getting things written about me," she says, "although I can't see where the writers get such an impression of me.

"But I don't puzzle myself trying to figure things out. I just smile and try to be agreeable, and it's less trouble saying what I really think than it is for me to try to be clever like some of the girls at the studio."

Movie Veteran at 19 Years of Age

Miss Bovard (born Beich) began her movie career when she was 16. While a sophomore in high school she called up Hollywood on the telephone to ask for a part in "Anne of Green Gables" and her audacity won her a role. She has been in many pictures since.

By GEORGE SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

ALTHOUGH but 19, Mary Beich, former Bloomington, Ill., girl, is already a Hollywood "trouper." Her screen career began on a daring chance when, three years ago, the high school sophomore long distanced Bob Palmer, RKO-Radio studios' casting director, asking him for a film rôle.

It was the report that the studio was about to make "Anne of Green Gables" that prompted her to call Palmer, for the book was one of Mary's favorites and she had a youngster's desire to play the part of Alice Wainright, the saucy little heavy of Lucy Maud Montgomery's immortal book. She got the rôle, acting in the picture with Anne Shirley and Tom Brown.

In three years she has appeared in about twenty pictures, including "Grand Old Girl," "Show Boat," "Fighting Youth," and "Old Laddie." Although Beich is a well known name in downstate Illinois, and Mary Beich is a granddaughter of the founder of the Paul F. Beich Candy company at Bloomington, the actress found her name being mangled by those unfamiliar with its pronunciation. It should be pronounced like "bike," but it was a hard job to educate movie folk; so Mary Beich a short time ago became Mary Bovard, using the maiden name of her mother, who was a member of one branch of the Bovard family, founders of the University of Southern California here.

The Bloomington girl recently signed a new contract with RKO. She gets $75 per week to start, with option brackets ranging up to $750 a week. Her new contract received court approval the other day. It might seem peculiar that an experienced film actress would have to obtain court approval of her contract, but she's still a minor in the eyes of the law. She's blonde, blue-eyed, 5 feet 2 inches in height, and weighs 102 pounds. She is currently playing a noisy blonde in "Stage Door" with Ginger Rogers and Katharine Hepburn and says she's crazy about the rôle.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae: This may not reach the Graphic, but I hope it does, for I want the whole Tribune reading public to know how swell I think you and your columns are! You are the best critic in the business and have yet to grow stale or go wrong. Each review is amusing, unbiased and interesting and is very revealing when it comes to the flaws or virtues of the plays, and say what you will, no other columnist is so.

MYRNA LOY
Lauded by fan for her swell acting.

Please also, let me hand an orchid or two to my favorite stars.

[3]. Myrna Loy for her swell acting, comedy and delightful sophistication.

[4]. Loretta Young—just because. Kay Francis, Barbara Read and Rochelle Hudson—favorable mention, and the juvenile stars.

[1.] A dozen orchids to Deanna Durbin three times a day. The only singer who can really act.

[3]. Jane Withers—why not?

And as for the men:

[2]. Lionel Barrymore—always the same and always perfect.

[3]. Charles Winninger—the real thing in comedy.

[4]. Tyrone Power—any lover is better than Taylor.

So few stars act for the sake of acting and are willing to forget themselves while on the set, that those who do, or who are as clever off the set as on, should be lauded to the skies—I hope you agree.

The only thing I wonder is how La Temple can always be so sickeningly sweet and never, never is off the beaten path. Most kids at her age are in hot water once in a while and are trying to duck papa's slipper, but not her. She should change places with Bonita Granville and do a rôle such as Mary Tilford in "These Three." The change would be most refreshing—what say?

This is my first attempt at gaining the Tribune columns and hope I may come again.

Best wishes and loads of luck.

Your 17 year old fan,
JACK MILLER.

Editor's Note: Thank you—say we all! Here's printing your pleasant praise as foil for some of our "knocks." Do come again.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why don't they ever have any picture of Gene Autry outside of those on the screen?

GENE AUTRY
A smiling photograph to please admirer.

One day while at the movies I saw a picture of Gene in a yard chasing a turkey. The announcer said he was getting as much fan mail as Clark Gable. As I figure it out Clark Gable is second in box office attraction. If he is second he surely must get a lot of fan mail.

If Gene Autry is getting as much as Mr. Gable why aren't there more pictures printed of him?

Please do not think I'm rude, I'm just another

FAN FOR GENE AUTRY.

Editor's Note: Here's a nice smiling photograph of Mr. Autry. I hope you like it.

Dear Miss Tinée: Innumerable bravos for Robert Montgomery's "Danny" in "Night Must Fall." My surprise was surpassed by real, thorough enjoyment of what I thought the most unusual rôle of Montgomery's career. The rôle of "Danny" gave him the much awaited opportunity to show his many admirers that he could be as convincing a murderer as he is a playboy.

A generous bouquet for Rosalind Russell—the kind of girl every one would like to know. And last but not least, Dame May Whitty for her priceless hysterics; she's a natural.

All in all, "Night Must Fall" was a grand surprise.

Thanks, Mae.
GEORGE J. WISSING.

Editor's Note: Here's printing all your nice "bouquets" for the stars of "Night Must Fall." I hope they see them. Thanks.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please answer this in your "Voice of the Movie Fan" column? Who played the part of Maria in "The Last Train from Madrid"?

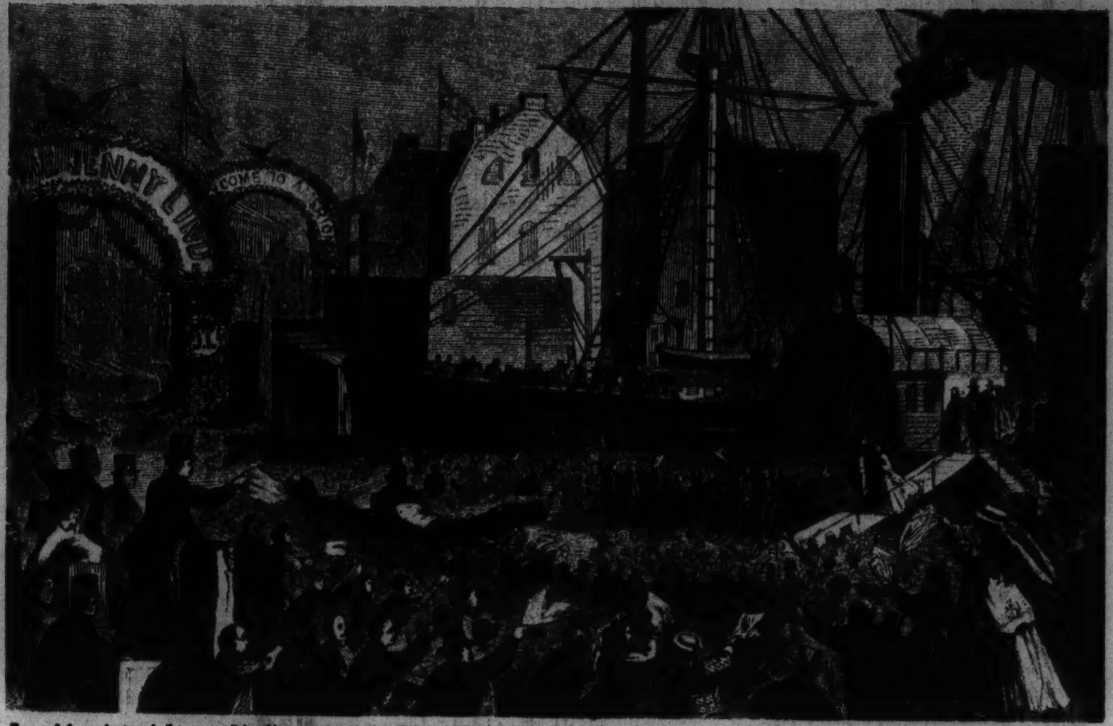
Dear Miss Tinée: How many pictures did Anna Sten act in? Was Fredric March in any with her? Who was her male lead in "Nana"?

Thank you. HARRY SLUTHIN.

Editor's Note: Before going to Hollywood Anna Sten made three pictures in Moscow and four in Berlin. In the United States she has appeared in "Nana," "We Live Again," and "The Wedding Night." Fredric March appeared opposite Miss Sten in "We Live Again," and her leading man in "Nana" was Philip Holmes. You're welcome!

The Jenny Lind Fever—It Raged in America

Portrait of Jenny Lind painted by E. Magnus in Berlin in 1848, four years before she came to America for her triumphant series of concerts which took her up and down the Atlantic coast and as far inland as the Mississippi during her two year stay. (Culver Service photo.)



An old print of Jenny Lind's arrival in New York aboard the steamer Atlantic after an eleven day voyage from England. As the steamer proceeded up the Hudson, dignitaries climbed aboard and the harbor was strident with the welcoming voices of sirens and whistles while great masses of humanity stood packed on the tip of Manhattan Island. WHO is the greatest soprano of all time? The greatest tenor?

Unanswerable questions. Even if it were possible to compare the singers of the remote past with one another or with those of the present day, the results would still be as various as the tastes, standards, and prejudices of the searchers.

We can, however, choose a few of history's most famous singers and unearth enough material to gain a fairly adequate idea of what their own generations thought of them. If we consult the general public of those times as well as the writings of professional musicians and other articulate men and women, it is possible to present a well rounded picture of the artist and to leave to the reader the duty of making actual comparisons.

The mummy of a mermaid is a fine thing. So is a small scale model of Niagara Falls or a troupe of trained fleas. Hordes of the curious come on the run to see such wonders and the man smart enough to advertise them properly and exhibit them effectively can soon sit back at his ease and listen to the pleasant tinkle of silver quarters.

But money is not everything. How much actual prestige does an exhibitor gain from all these mermaids and cataracts and fleas? How many people speak his name with deep respect?

Very few, thought Phineas Taylor Barnum. So, with his fortune already made but his ambition still unsatisfied, the great showman started casting about for something a little more dignified, something of genuine artistic or educational value that might bring the salvos of the whole nation thundering around him.

The result of all this was Barnum's now historic decision to bring Jenny Lind to America. Once arrangements had been made, he set out in his own masterly manner to infect this country with the Jenny Lind fever which was then raging in England and, with lesser virulence, on the continent.

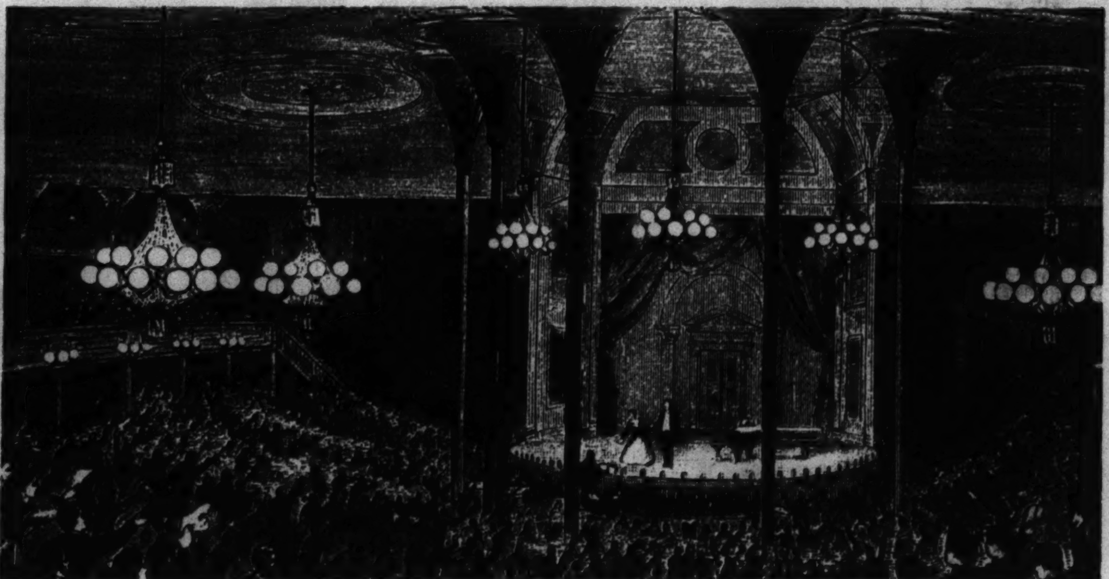
The steamship Atlantic, eleven days out of Liverpool, raised the North American coast on Sunday, Sept. 1, 1850. Weary of the sea, her passengers crowded the rail to watch the Jersey and Long Island shores come closer and to sniff the intoxicating land wind from the late summer meadows.

Among these passengers was Jenny Lind, the great Swedish soprano. She was then just under thirty years of age, attractive in a plain, wholesome way. Despite her youth, this singer already had enjoyed many years of dizzying triumphs in opera and concert. Europe, especially England, regarded her as one of the world's first citizens. With Jenny Lind on this American venture were Giovanni Battista Belleti, Italian baritone, and Jules Benedict, English pianist.

As the Atlantic entered New York bay and steamed northward toward the city the famous visitor found plenty of evidence that the Jenny Lind fever had crossed the ocean before her. Dignitaries climbed aboard the ship with flowers and felicitations, the harbor was strident with the welcoming voices of sirens and whistles. Great masses of humanity stood packed on the tip of Manhattan Island.

Jenny Lind, despite all her simplicity, knew how to act and what to say. Blowing a kiss to an American flag she intoned the following wondrous phrases:



Jenny Lind's first appearance in America. The scene was New York's Castle Garden and the date, Sept. 11, 1850. Castle Garden, built as a fort in 1807, became a place of entertainment in 1823. It now houses New York's Aquarium. (Culver Service photo.)

"There is the beautiful standard of freedom. The oppressed of all lands worship it."

Without any recorded nudge from his principal, Signor Belleti remarked:

"Here is the new world at last, the grand new world first seen by my fellow-countryman, Columbus." This with gestures.

Personality Plus Fine Talent

Not until moorings had been made fast and the moment of debarkation arrived did Jenny Lind begin to realize the actual magnitude of the passion which Barnum had succeeded in working up in America. West street was black with hoarsely shouting men and women. There were triumphal arches, more flowers, and a waving German flag. (No Swedish emblem could be found. The German, for some obscure reason, was regarded as the proper substitute.)

Amid the throng's wild cheering, the astonished Jenny Lind was settled in Barnum's carriage to begin a triumphal progress to the Irving house. The screaming continued all the way. Even after the hotel's portals had swallowed up their celebrity, hysterical people seethed about and could not be persuaded to go away, until the singer appeared on the balcony and waved a handkerchief. She must have been surprised at this host of unsuspected friends.

So well had Barnum's work been done (through the press, by person-to-person advertising, and by devious other means) that the country went completely mad over Jenny Lind. Under the enthusiastic drive of demented newspaper writers the English language bent and all but broke. One of them described her voice as something "spun out from her throat like the attenuated fiber of the silkworm, dying away so sweetly and gradually, till it seems melting into the song of the seraphim and is lost in eternity."

This actually ran in a New York paper. So did the statement that Jenny Lind's coming was "as significant an event as the appearance of Dante, Tasso, Raphael, Shakespeare, Goethe, Thorwaldsen, or Michelangelo." The conclusion the writer drew from this fact was that "the wand of civilization has fallen from the hands of the southern nations and passed to the hardy northern races."

This hysteria lasted through the entire time—nearly two years—that the singer was in America. She went up and down the Atlantic coast, inland to New Orleans, Natchez, Memphis, Cincinnati, and dozens of other cities. Nearly everywhere the enthusiasm was the same. Frantic shouts of acclaim drowned the last phrases of her songs, bouquets came skimming from far corners of theaters to fall on the stage at her feet, the newspapers became a tangle of mixed metaphors in their impassioned efforts to do the distinguished visitor justice.

Here was no mere artist making an arduous tour and getting good money for her trouble. The country's attitude toward Jenny Lind became almost mystical. One paper declared that her name should scarcely be mentioned save in a blessing or a prayer. A preacher who had been extolling the singer's qualities was asked by one of his hearers whether a person who died at a Jenny Lind concert would go to heaven. If the question was ironic in intent, its irony was completely lost in the general chorus of adulation.

Bonnets, shawls, pianos—even saloons and cigars—were named after Jenny Lind. The chambermaid of a hotel at which the singer happened to be stopping did a thriving business selling locks of her own hair and representing to her customers that they had been salvaged from the Lind brush. The owner of a livery stable near the Boston concert hall where she was to sing rented seats in his malodorous establishment at fifty cents apiece on the theory that some of the music would drift over if the wind happened to be favorable.

A Massachusetts enthusiast wrote in the name of Jenny Lind on his ballot and gave her a vote for lieutenant governor. She received several votes for mayor of New York City.

If we grant, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that few or none of these manifestations were the work of cynical individualists who were determined to do their best to make the Lind craze ridiculous, then the whole affair seems to be unique in the annals of recent history. Jenny Lind was no war hero, no political leader, no trans-Atlantic flyer. She was a singer!

(Parenthetical consolation to all Americans who squirm under some of the horrors listed above and who apologetically ascribe them to national bad taste. A noble gentleman of proper little England, where the Lind fever raged almost as uncontrolably as it did here, expressed his enthusiasm for the singer by a gift of a gold cup filled with ants' eggs. Ants' eggs are the food of nightingales and Jenny Lind was called the Swedish Nightingale. See? . . .)

So much for the Jenny Lind fever and the outward forms it took. What could have caused it?

Three things apparently—ability, personality, character. These are arranged in an ascending order of importance.

As to Jenny Lind's ability, it is fascinating to grope around in the mists of the middle eighteen hundreds hoping to run upon some clew as to what sort of singer she actually was. There can be no doubt that she was a very great one. M. R. Werner and Edward Wagenknecht, both of whom have done extensive and extremely valuable research on the subject, quote enough opinions by weighty contemporaries to prove this point.

Mendelssohn, Chopin, Berlioz, and Meyerbeer praised her generously. So did such distinguished nonmusicians as Washington Irving and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Wagner was not greatly impressed by Jenny Lind, although his objection was based on her acting rather than her singing. Among nonmusicians, the most noted detractors were Carlyle, Thackeray, Whitman, and Hawthorne.

Piecing together all of these contradictory opinions, one comes to the conclusion that Jenny Lind possessed a voice of admirably pure texture which lacked consistent warmth and richness of tone. We gather that her execution was almost flawless, her ability and accuracy extraordinary. We gather, too, that she put undue emphasis on these last qualities and that her singing, or perhaps the music she chose, often lacked emotional depth. Lacked, therefore, the power to stir the less hysterical members of an audience.

But if we substitute the word "sensitive" for "hysterical" the statement could be made about any singer who ever lived. Thackeray, deprived of his cigar while the music was in progress and longing for the embrace of Lady Nicotine, is hardly the person to make a fair and representative report on Jenny Lind's singing. Certainly Mendelssohn's statement that she was the greatest artist he had known weighs heavily in the opposite balance.

But even Mendelssohn admits that she sang bad music the best. This, combined with the evidence of her programs, seems to justify the belief that Jenny Lind often showed lamentably poor taste. She probably had little sympathy for genuinly great art and lacked the spiritual profundity which would have made her an outstanding interpreter of such music.

In connection with the singer's esthetic tastes (which have a bearing on her ability as a musician, though not, it must be confessed, on the Jenny Lind fever which is the real subject of this paper), it is impossible to resist the temptation to describe an opus called "Greeting to America." This was sung at

World Still Lets Babies Die of Syphilis

Sacrifice of Lives Due to Ignorance

AMONG the most pitiful of diseases are venereal infections in infants and children. And they are also among the most easily preventable.

And yet thousands of youngsters fall prey to syphilis and gonorrhea in the United States every year. In Chicago alone about 500 cases have been reported annually in the last decade. And many times that number are never reported by doctors — especially the stillbirths—after which some physicians do not bother to examine the mother's blood.

These stillbirths are probably the least tragic results of congenital syphilis or of gonorrhea transmitted from mother to child. Consider this true story of a rather well-to-do Chicago family:

The father was a successful lawyer. His attractive wife was active in social work. The pride of their home was their bright, 12-year-old daughter.

The girl always was at the head of her class. Her father was thrilled at her intention to become a lawyer. Then—half way through high school—something seemed to go wrong. She no longer was studious. She became so indifferent that she failed in her semester examinations. She became nervous, too. There were lapses of memory. She began to have difficulty in reading. Sometimes she mouthed words that were not on the printed page at all.

The doctor made a blood test at once. Afraid to tell her parents of the result, he made another. Both Wassermanns were strongly positive! It was a case of congenital syphilis and general paresis!

Tests were made on the parents. The father's was negative. The mother's was slightly positive. On questioning, she admitted that before marriage she had received a few "shots" from a doctor for "a run-down condition." The father took to drink. The mother obtained a divorce. The child was taken to an institution for the insane.

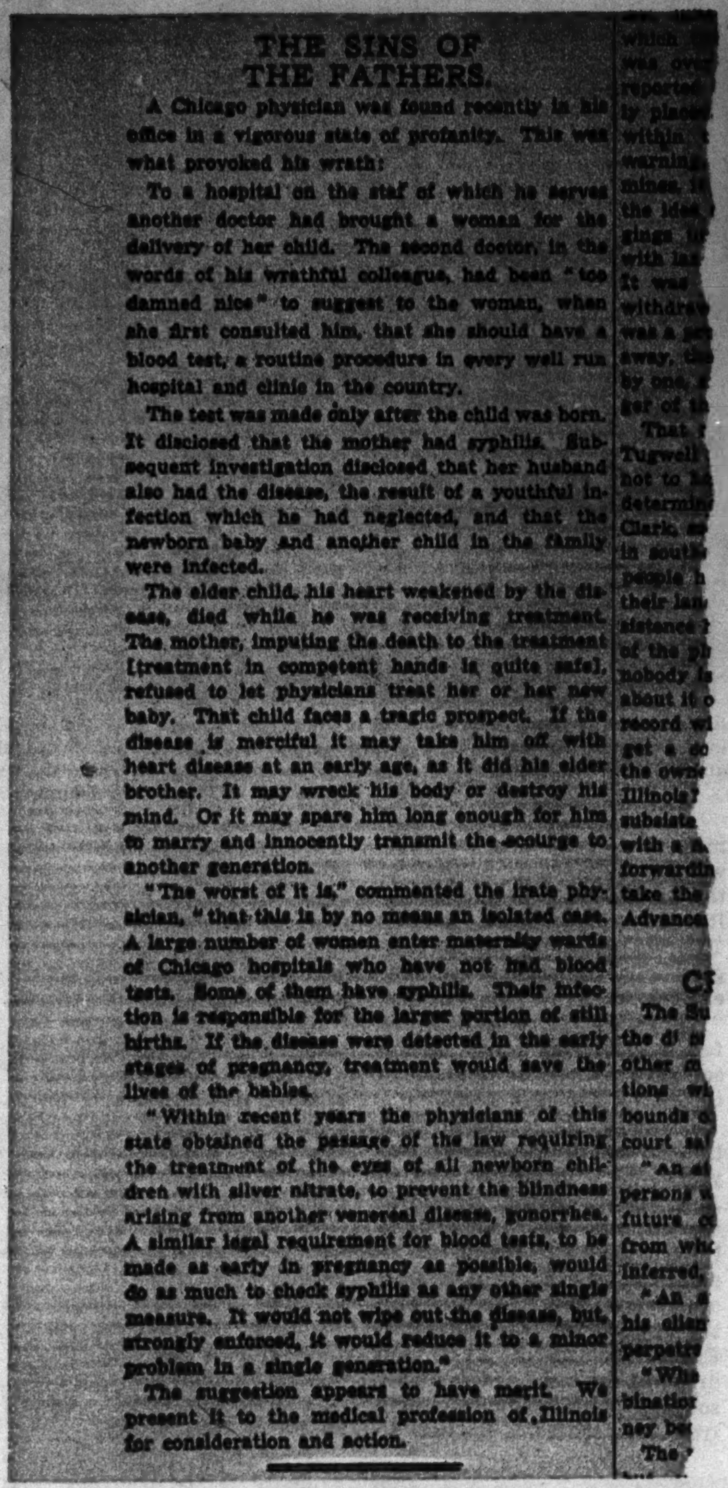
That's the way congenital syphilis works. Sometimes it kills a baby before birth or soon after. But more often it does not manifest itself until the child is 10 or 15 years old. Sometimes it bides its time for 30 years.

Not so long ago a young woman came to the aid of a friend who needed a blood transfusion in a large hospital. The result was marvelous. It seemed to have saved the stricken girl's life. But six weeks after she left the hospital she was back—with secondary syphilis. The blood donor had been an unsuspected victim of congenital syphilis that had not yet made its presence felt.



THE SINS OF THE FATHERS.

A Chicago physician was found recently in his office in a vigorous state of profanity. This was what provoked his wrath:

To a hospital on the staf of which he serves another doctor had brought a woman for the delivery of her child. The second doctor, in the words of his wrathful colleague, had been "too damned nice" to suggest to the woman, when she first consulted him, that she should have a blood test, a routine procedure in every well run hospital and clinic in the country.

The test was made only after the child was born. It disclosed that the mother had syphilis. Subsequent investigation disclosed that her husband also had the disease, the result of a youthful infection which he had neglected, and that the newborn baby and another child in the family were infected.

The elder child, his heart weakened by the disease, died while he was receiving treatment. The mother, imputing the death to the treatment [treatment in competent hands is quite safe], refused to let physicians treat her or her new baby. That child faces a tragic prospect. If the disease is merciful it may take him off with heart disease at an early age, as it did his elder brother. It may wreck his body or destroy his mind. Or it may spare him long enough for him to marry and innocently transmit the scourge to another generation.

"The worst of it is," commented the irate physician, "that this is by no means an isolated case. A large number of women enter maternity wards of Chicago hospitals who have not had blood tests. Some of them have syphilis. Their infection is responsible for the larger portion of still births. If the disease were detected in the early stages of pregnancy, treatment would save the lives of the babies.

"Within recent years the physicians of this state obtained the passage of the law requiring the treatment of the eyes of all newborn children with silver nitrate, to prevent the blindness arising from another venereal disease, gonorrhea. A similar legal requirement for blood tests, to be made as early in pregnancy as possible, would do as much to check syphilis as any other single measure. It would not wipe out the disease, but, strongly enforced, it would reduce it to a minor problem in a single generation."

The suggestion appears to have merit. We present it to the medical profession of Illinois for consideration and action.

This editorial which appeared in The Chicago Tribune on March 28, 1936, has been reproduced by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen and a copy sent to every doctor in the city of Chicago.

Take the case of the widow of a veteran. He died of his wounds soon after returning from France. The woman then married an able and ambitious young man. They had a son and a daughter. When the boy was about 7 years old, it was noticed that he was not developing normally. An examination showed that both he and his sister had congenital syphilis. A further check showed that the mother had been infected by her first husband, who had contracted the disease overseas and had neglected its treatment. The boy developed paresis and is now an institutional case. There is some hope for the little girl, but she will have to submit to years of painful treatment.

The records of the Chicago health department and of the hospitals and the clinics of the city supply illustrations such as these almost without end, not to mention the stillbirths, the cases of partial blindness and deafness and the babies that develop horrible lesions within a few weeks of birth—lesions so bad that they are often fatal.

And this suffering is needless!

"No syphilitic mother need have a syphilitic baby," said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago health department. "Medical authorities now stand ready to guarantee a healthy baby if the mother is brought under treatment as late as the fifth month of her pregnancy."

But such women are not brought under treatment unless it is established that they are themselves victims of the dread disease. To determine whether a woman is infected a blood test is necessary. But patients and doctors often wave these aside.

One of the most effective means found by the Chicago health department to impress doctors with the vital necessity of making Wassermann tests in all pregnancies has been the distribution of an editorial that appeared in the Chicago Tribune on March 28, 1936. Entitled, "The Sins of the Fathers," it has been reproduced and mailed to every doctor in the city by Dr. Bundesen in his battle against congenital syphilis.

"I am sure that I have no such dreadful thing," a woman may say indignantly, only to learn too late that she was innocently infected.

"O, I would not think of making such a test on Mrs. ———," a doctor may say. "She belongs to the nicest family in our nicest suburb." But no matter how genteel, the woman may have syphilis.

"The new Illinois hygienic marriage law will reduce the incidence of congenital syphilis in this state," said Dr. Bundesen.

"But here in Chicago, where we are taking a lead in the hard battle against this scourge, medical men who are alert to the danger would like to see another law on the books," he went on. "They want Wassermann tests made mandatory in all pregnancies."

Such tests are done as a matter of routine at the 20 maternal welfare stations of the board of health, under the direction of Dr. Nadelhoffer. Most of the other clinics in the city are also coöperating with the board of health. Among these are the Central Free dispensary, the Chicago Lying-In hospital, the Chicago Maternity center, the County hospital, the Michael Reese hospital, Illinois Research hospital, Northwestern university clinics, St. Luke's, Provident, and other institutions. But there is still many a private practitioner in the city who does not have a sufficiently high incidence of suspicion where venereal disease is concerned.

Such men sometimes feel justified in their attitude because they bring apparently healthy babies into the world. But they forget that congenital syphilis in a small child is hard to discover by means of blood tests—even if these are made. And they also forget that the ravages of the affliction, the eye trouble, and all the rest often do not manifest themselves for years.

While syphilis in a baby can be prevented by treating the mother before birth, the treatment of the infant is a far more difficult matter, according to Dr. George G. Taylor, director of the Municipal Social Hygiene clinic, who sees almost 200 of these pitiful cases every week.

"Any doctor who has tried it knows that it is far more difficult to get a needle into the veins of a baby than into those of an adult," said Dr. Taylor. "Then, too, it is a dangerous matter to administer neosalvarsan to an infant. Sulpharsphenamine is likely to produce serious reactions. Bismuth can be used and, of course, mercury can be applied by rubbing.

Tiny Victims Could Be Saved

"But here in Chicago we are beginning to lean heavily on arcetarsone (trade name is stovarsol), which is administered by mouth. Our only difficulty here is that we have to count on the parents to administer this medicine."

The Children's Memorial hospital, on Fullerton parkway at Orchard street, is one of the strong pillars of support in the health department's fight against congenital syphilis. Aid is also coming from the various relief agencies.

"Often pregnant women complain that they did not come to Dr. Taylor's clinic because they lacked carfare or because there was no person to look after the other children," said Dr. Nadelhoffer. "We have managed to raise a little fund for carfare, but it is pitifully small and gifts of only a few dollars are still gratefully received. We simply must bring these women in for treatment. And if they lapse a single clinic visit we have a nurse at their door the very next morning. It's the only way we can keep Chicago babies healthy."

At the Chicago Eye and Ear infirmary there is plenty of evidence for the need of this vigilance on the part of public health officials. There a visitor can see these sniffling (that's almost always the first sign of congenital syphilis), half blind, half deaf youngsters. And there, too, he can get an idea of what these cases cost the taxpayer. A single victim may cost the state more than $500 a year over a period of more than half a century.

That's just one more reason why Dr. Bundesen and his coworkers are determined to stamp out the menace. But they admit that they have tackled a hard job. Only vaccination is needed to protect a child from smallpox. A few doses of diphtheria toxoid immunize against diphtheria. Chlorinated water eliminates the danger of typhoid. Half a dozen diseases are avoided by pasteurizing milk.

But there is no short cut against congenital syphilis. If infants are born with it, it means three or four years of frequent treatment and a lifetime of observation. To prevent such births, parents should be treated for almost two years to rid them of their infection. This means personal contact with every single victim. And above all, it means Wassermann tests.

"Persons should submit to these tests as a matter of routine," said Dr. Bundesen. "There is no more disgrace to the test than there is to any physical examination. And it should be made with the same regularity. But it should be made without fail just as soon as a woman becomes pregnant. And it should be repeated several months later—for her baby's sake."

Healthy babies, such as this one, are the backbone of a nation and yet thousands of innocent youngsters fall prey to syphilis and gonorrhea through ignorance and carelessness every year in the United States. In Chicago alone about 500 cases of children thus diseased are reported annually.

England Has Hospital for Ailing Nails

By ELEANOR NANGLE

A YOUNG English woman named Coralie Godfrey is the originator and guiding star of one of the world's most remarkable beauty innovations—The Hand and Nail Culture Institute in Old Bond street, London. It is, actually, a nursing home for hands and nails, where women bring their ten fingers for nail diagnosis and treatment.

This salon where the routine manicure is elevated to lofty heights of luxury and scientific methods is one large, gracious room charmingly decorated. Only two patrons receive attention simultaneously. There is none of the brisk, clockwork touch of the American manicure room; its atmosphere is more like that of a quiet, flower decorated drawing room.

It all grew out of Miss Godfrey's luck in developing a cream that made nails healthier and cuticle less troublesome, a discovery that women received with welcoming—if unattractive—hands, since brittle nails are one of the most common of modern beauty ailments.

A beauty editor discovered this cream quite by chance and prevailed upon Miss Godfrey to market it. Its success was phenomenal. Today Miss Godfrey is THE nail expert of England, and women of all classes come from all corners of the empire to have the corrective hand and nail treatments given in her little salon.

If the disordered nails of a patron look to Miss Godfrey's expert eye to be diseased, a Harley street specialist makes an analysis without charge to the patron. If the nail is diseased all treatment is followed under his supervision. But the diseased nail is infrequent; the bulk of Miss Godfrey's work is corrective, curing brittleness and improving the shape.

Many titled women place their nail-biting offspring in Miss Godfrey's charge. A course of corrective manicures has been found a sound method of overcoming the nail biting habit. Painting the finger tips with a bitter solution in order to make the biter speedily withdraw the fingers from the mouth works well in some cases but not in the majority. Adolescents bite their fingernails because of nervousness; they continue to bite them because they have no pride in their appearance and the exertion of will power seems a futile effort to save a lost cause. If the nails are carefully manicured there are no rough edges or hanging strips of skin to annoy to the biting point.

Gradually, after expert professional care, even the most disfigured nails begin to get longer and stronger and to take on beauty. Pride in their shapeliness is re-established and as a rule, the nail biter, especially of the feminine sex, never again resumes the bad habit.

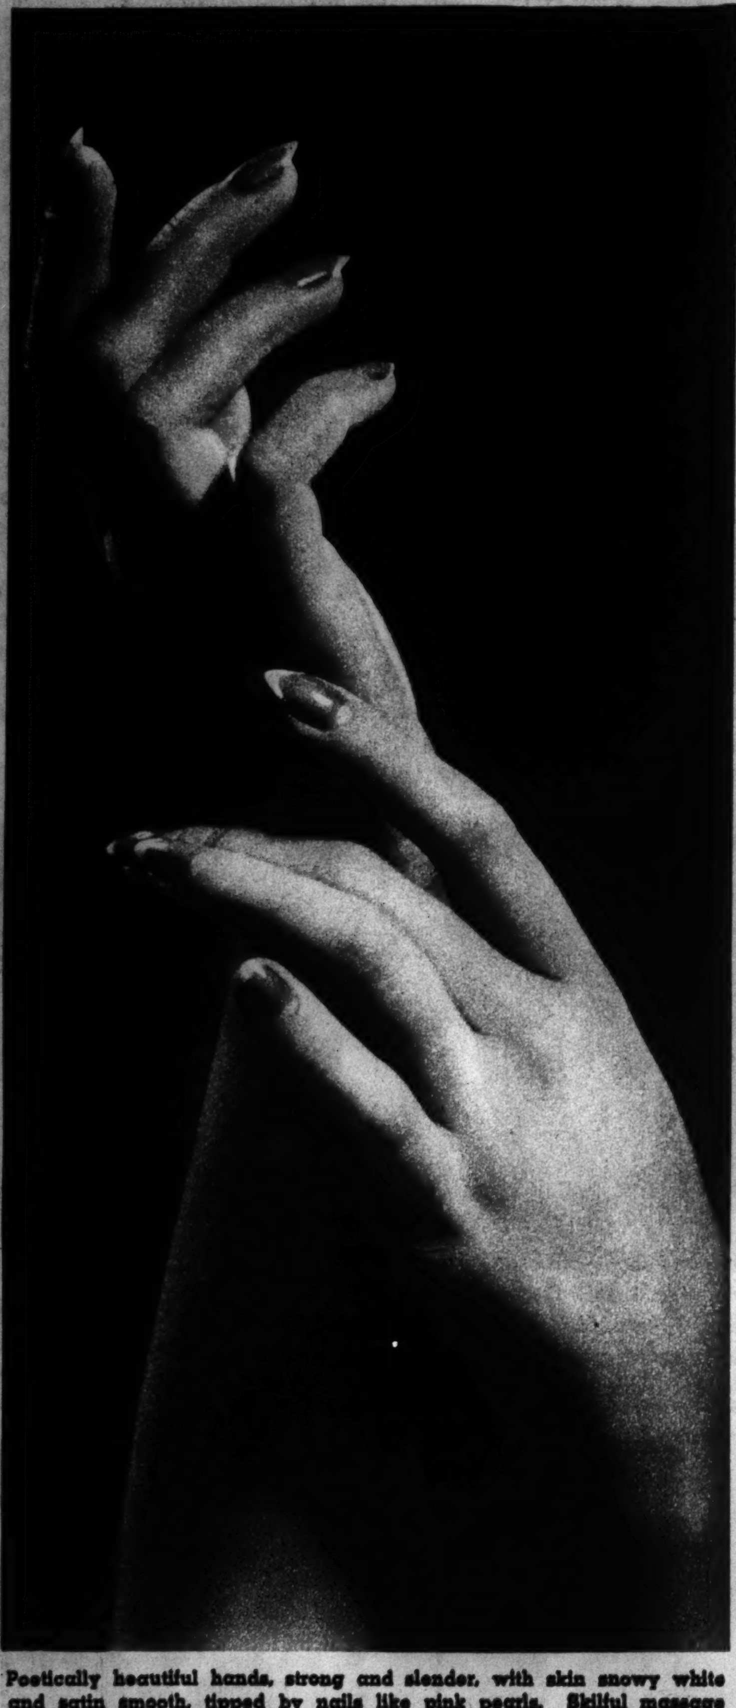
Operators in the salon are highly trained and must pass a t e r r i f y i n g examination. We know, because we saw their questionnaires. They know all the answers to highly technical nail problems and are trained to cope with such ailments as white spots, brittle and breaking nails, pale color, bad shape, inflamed cuticle, hangnails, and discoloration.



Poetically beautiful hands, strong and slender, with skin snowy white and satin smooth, tipped by nails like pink pearls. Skilful massage fosters the natural beauty of their shape and expert care strengthens and glorifies the nails.

If you would have each nail a perfect shape you must, according to Miss Godfrey, be particularly careful not to have your nails filed too closely at the sides. Many manicurists attempt to shape the nail entirely with the file or the emery board. This is incorrect. The nail should be permitted to grow up at the sides to the place where it naturally draws away from the finger pad. Above this point the nail may be shaped, but not below it. In all corrective manicures at Miss Godfrey's little establishment, the operators leave the "nail corners" strictly alone, allowing the nail to adjust itself to the natural groove which it inevitably finds and which is the perfect setting for the truly beautiful nail.

Breaking nails are their most frequently encountered problem. Breaking nails, like extremely dry skin, are a beauty problem peculiar to this generation for a great many reasons, ranging from the bustling life we lead to the food we eat. And Miss Godfrey, though she makes and sells liquid enamels, and of the cream variety at that, is not inclined to discount the drying effect of lackers. She forbids them absolutely for some of her patrons. In some cases she permits their use only on the condition that they be removed each night and applied freshly each morning. Women with perfectly healthy nails can use them consistently, though even in these circumstances Miss Godfrey suggests twice yearly "recuperative" periods, where polish is dispensed with and the patron has a course of scientific hand and nail treatments.

A treatment at this nursing home for the nails is a tender little bit of business, we discovered. First the hands are washed gently in warm water, with suds obtained from a soap of a special kind-to-the-nails variety. No nail brush is used and there is no soaking such as is featured in the usual manicure. Two, not one, operators attend to madame's hands, which certainly makes madame feel like a plutocrat!

While one operator is removing the polish from your last manicure with a rich cream worked into the nails of the left hand, the other, sitting on a small chair beside the table, is giving you a luxurious massage for the right hand. And all through the treatment both hands are tenderly worked on at once.

The treatment you have depends, of course, on what your nails need. But in any case your cuticle receives a superb oiling, but no cutting, and the nail the gentlest sort of shaping. Meanwhile, on your other hand, the massage progresses caressingly and ends with a more brisk going-over with an electric vibrator. This last is a boon to the woman whose hands are always red because of faulty circulation—the most common cause of this disturbing and unromantic condition.

When the treatment is finished you may have nail enamel only if Miss Godfrey says you may. If you do have it you can take your choice of shades and in England it's apt to be a pale one. Blood red nail tips are the exception rather than the rule over there. If you don't rate lacker you have a gentle polishing with one of the biggest buffers ever made, which leaves your nails lustrous and pink as smooth, delicate shells.

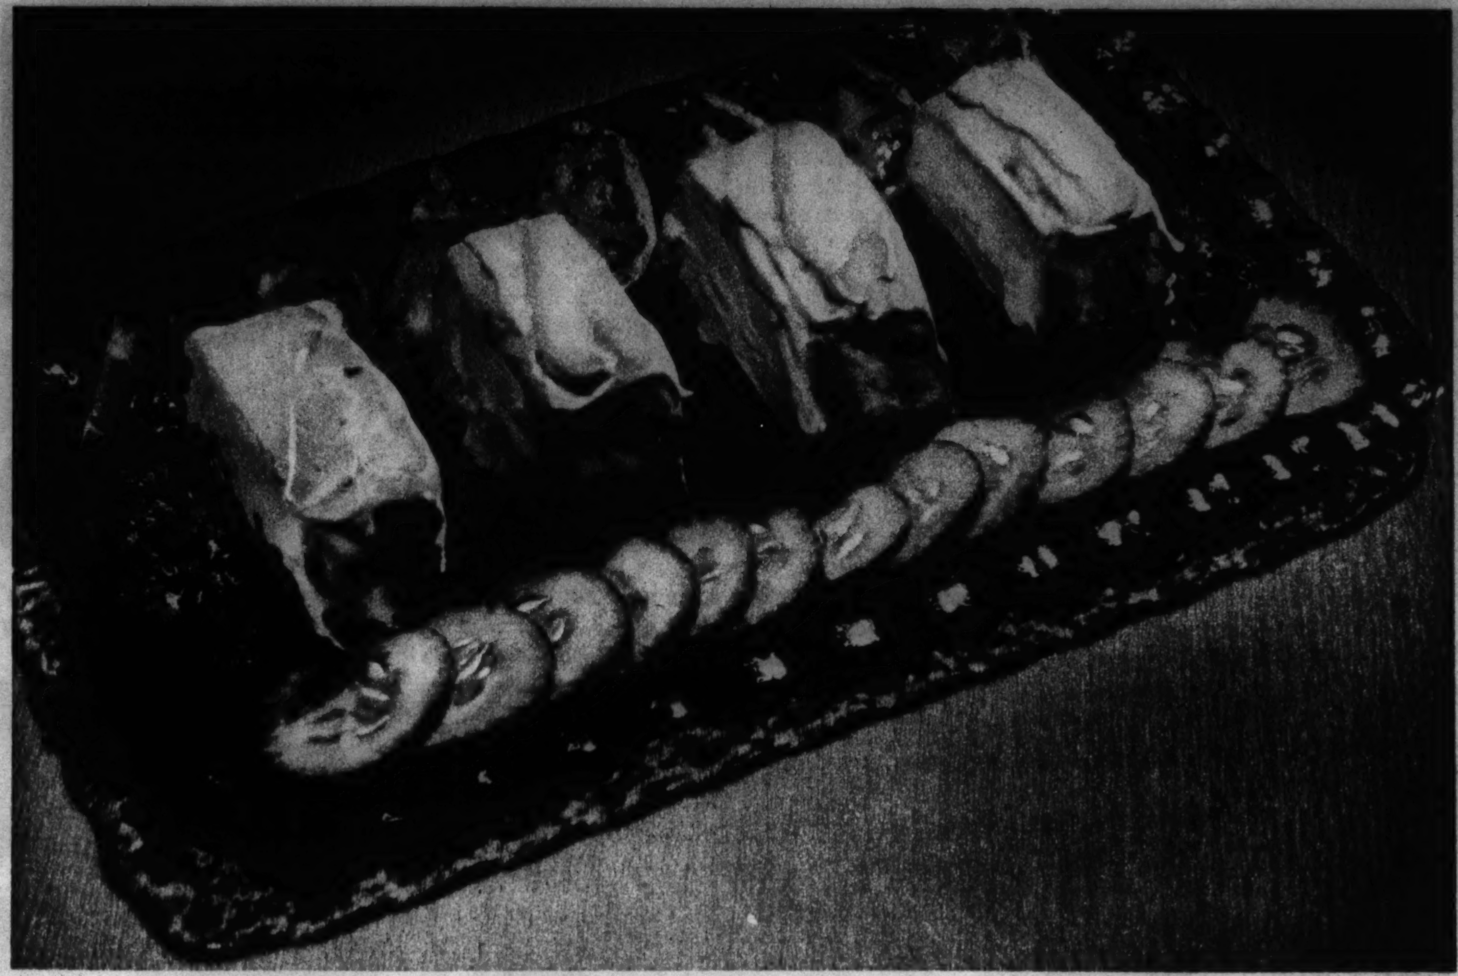
A course of these corrective treatments has been known to do wonders with unsightly hands. Nail corners are carefully built up, nail cuticles cleverly tamed, and the nail itself restored to the state of health where it no longer breaks or splits or peels. Your home treatment is prescribed. If need be, you're sent off armed with what you need—which might be sleeping gloves, chilblain cream, super-fatted soap, a water softener, or even a bottle of nicotine remover! Never again will you be casual about your nails, because you've tasted the satisfying, corrective joys of what is now known as "nail culture"!

1 First step of the luxurious manicure given in the English "hospital for ailing nails" is a cleansing with warm water and a rich, sudsy milk soap. No nail brush is used and the hands are not soaked in water during the course of the treatment.

2 This is a manicure in which two persons work on the client's hands simultaneously. Polish is removed with a cream, cuticle tenderly oiled and pushed back, and the nails gently shaped. When this routine is finished with one hand a massage is given with a vibrator.

3 In this scientific English manicure the nails are buffed to a high luster with a dry polish and a long "bouncy" buffer that stimulates circulation and also gives a high sheen. For some, but not all, this is followed with an application of creamy liquid enamel. (Tribune Studio photos.)

Treats for Late Summer



Three deck sandwiches iced with cream cheese look pretty on a buffet table.

By MARY MEADE

The sandwiches, flanked by sliced cucumbers and tomatoes, make a beautiful picture on a buffet table. Forks must be provided with which to eat them, of course.

To make the sandwiches, trim crusts from a loaf of bread and cut it into lengthwise slices. Spread two slices with melted butter and any desired filling and combine, placing a third slice on top. Cut the three-layered loaf crosswise into smaller loaves and ice all sides with cream cheese beaten with a little hot water.

The iceberg chocolate is a new and different drink. It consists of tall glasses of chilly chocolate in which float coffee "icebergs," topped with whipped cream. The icebergs are, of course, coffee ice cubes. If you'd like the recipe, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

2 Left: About the same time Otto Lilienthal, pioneer German flyer, was experimenting with gliders. This model, with a doll representing Lilienthal, is in a German museum.

4 Now flight is almost instinctive to many men. Louis Massotte, ace French stunt flyer, demonstrates a thrill producer, the like of which will be seen at the national air races in Cleveland the latter part of this week.

Heroics Over the Jungle

Through a blinding tropical storm last November, First Lieut. James H. Wallace, above, piloted a disabled army plane over a Panama jungle. Ordering three of his five companions to jump, Wallace reported their position by radio, then flew blind on one motor until he could land safely in a clearing similar to the one pictured, near the tiny village of Ocu, indicated on the map. For saving all lives and the plane Wallace was awarded the distinguished flying cross this summer.

Super Flying Boats Over Atlantic

be seen from Pan-American's Pacific operations record. In more than two years of flying between Hawaii and California the Pacific clipper ships have flown the exact great-circle course only three times. On other hundreds of trips, counting the flights in both directions, they have flown either north or south of the great-circle track.

This is exactly the type of navigation which is being applied to the Atlantic ocean operations. It was the type followed on the first trips in each direction made on last July 6.

The Pan-American Clipper followed almost the exact great-circle course at that time, because the weather map presented the rather unusual case of showing relatively good conditions all the way across on that particular route.

Imperial Airways' boat, however, flew considerably south of the great-circle track, because her crew was seeking the route with the best weather for a flight in the opposite direction. The ship was forced to buck head winds the entire distance.

As a matter of fact, the boats have not seen each other in midflight at any time, nor have they been able to speak directly from ship to ship. The British and American radios are operated on widely different frequencies, so that the crews of the boats have had to communicate with each other while in the air over a relay system with shore stations.

Considerably more information about the first crossings has been released by both Imperial and Pan-American authorities than on any of the subsequent trips made to date, and since the first flights were typical of all the crossings attempted thus far, it may be well to speak specifically about them at this point.

First of all the flying times of the two flying boats: 15 hours 9 minutes for the Caledonia from Foynes to Botwood; and 12 hours 34 minutes for the Pan-American Clipper III. from Botwood to Foynes.

The differences in flying time can be attributed directly to the prevailing westernly winds. The Caledonia fought an 18 mile per hour wind for the entire distance and the flight was made through thick clouds and some rain at an altitude of 1,000 feet for the entire flight.

The Pan-American boat, however, had a tail wind of 25 miles an hour at 10,000 feet and its commander, Capt. Harold Grey, held his machine at that height for almost the entire distance.

Let us then work out the ground or "sea-speeds" for the two boats and their equivalent airspeeds.

In flying south of the great circle course the British flew an estimated 2,020 miles. By using the elapsed time for the flight it becomes evident that the ground speed works out to an average of 133 miles an hour for the distance. By adding the 18 mile per hour headwind it becomes apparent that the British boat's average airspeed over the course was 151 miles an hour.

The American boat, however, covered its exact route distance of 1,995 miles at an average surface speed of 157 miles per hour. From this, however, should be subtracted the 25 mile an hour tail wind, giving the average airspeed for the American ship of 132 miles an hour.

From these figures it is determined that the British boat maintained its calculated best airspeed of approximately 150 miles per hour for the entire distance but that the American ship with favoring winds was able to throttle its motors well back, saving fuel and wear on the engines.

There is one amusing discrepancy in the reports of the event from British and American sources.

The British report that their boat carried 2,390 gallons of fuel and 150 gallons of oil, giving the machine a range of 2,900 miles at a cruising speed of 150 miles an hour. They also say that the American boat carried 1,988 gallons and 133 gallons of oil, a total weight of about 18,000 pounds.

They estimated that the consumption of the Clipper's four Hornet engines was approximately 100 gallons an hour at 130 miles an hour. This would give the Clipper a range of only 2,580 miles.

Pan-American Airways, however, report that the Clipper with a total gross load of 45,500 pounds carried enough gasoline to fly 3,150 miles, more than half again as far as the route mileage of the pre-chosen course.

Presumably the British have miscalculated the consumption of the Hornets at cruising power.

The purposes of that first flight were to provide an actual test of the elaborate and carefully planned system of weather forecasting which has been developed for the Atlantic and to study the operation of the communication and direction finding facilities and the coördination of the British facilities over the route with the American stations.

In preparation for the first trip Pan-American meteorologists went back for 50 years into records of weather over the ocean and struck averages for seasons, months, and days. On the basis of this data they then estimated upper air conditions from the meager first hand reports available.

These reports came from stations at Port Washington, N. Y.; Shediac, New Brunswick; Botwood, Newfoundland; Reykjavik, Iceland; Foynes, Ireland. Southampton, England.

The results of the estimates, averages, and predictions were most favorable. Actual cloud contours, wind shift lines, temperature levels and velocity and directions of winds encountered on the flight fit the weather map prepared for the flight crew beforehand.

On the second study—that of communications — the results were equally promising. Pan-American has two stations, one at Port Washington and another at Shediac from which long distance bearing can be made. The air ministry has set up stations at Botwood and at Southampton and the government of the Irish Free State has a station at Foynes.

On the Clipper, as on the Caledonia and the Cambria, are smaller stations which can be used for taking bearings themselves on the shore stations and on any boats or other craft encountered en route. All these stations needed testing, particularly the shore stations.

Ordinarily the direction finding system works like this: An airplane sends out a constant stream of signals and these are picked up by the shore station which determines through movement of its antenna the direction from which the signals are coming. The shore then sends to the aircraft a bearing. The process is then repeated with two or more shore stations and the point where all the bearings cross is the spot at which the craft is flying.

Considerable dexterity and teamwork is necessary to plot accurate bearings and get them back in a very short time to a plane which calls for such aid. The British and American systems being slightly different, some practice is essential to successful operation of the D. F. stations.

On the flights it was found that all stations operated satisfactorily, the Port Washington station of Pan-American Airways receiving the landing message from the Clipper just before the big boat settled at Foynes, and the Foynes station for Imperial receiving the same kind of message from the Caledonia as it dipped to a landing at Botwood.

In these two flights observers see the model for regular operations over the northern route. East bound planes undoubtedly will fly high in the clear and west bound ships will stay lower, more often in clouds to avoid the boisterous head winds.

The flights completed thus far suggest that the route from Newfoundland to Ireland will be ideal for regular flying at least during the summer seasons. What low temperatures and icing conditions over the ocean will mean not even the flight engineers care to predict. They suggest that de-icing equipment should be supplied to all ships in regular service over the route.

Next will come a series of flights from New York to Bermuda, the Azores, and thence to Southampton water. These flights will determine whether the Atlantic service can be an all-year proposition. Presumably winter weather over this southern route will not be as severe as over the more northernly course. This last supposition remains to be checked, however.

New York to London via Shediac and Botwood is 3,417 miles. New York to London via the Azores and Bermuda is 4,865 miles. The supposed advantage of the longer run, however, is that it will be flyable at seasons when the shorter route will be impossible.

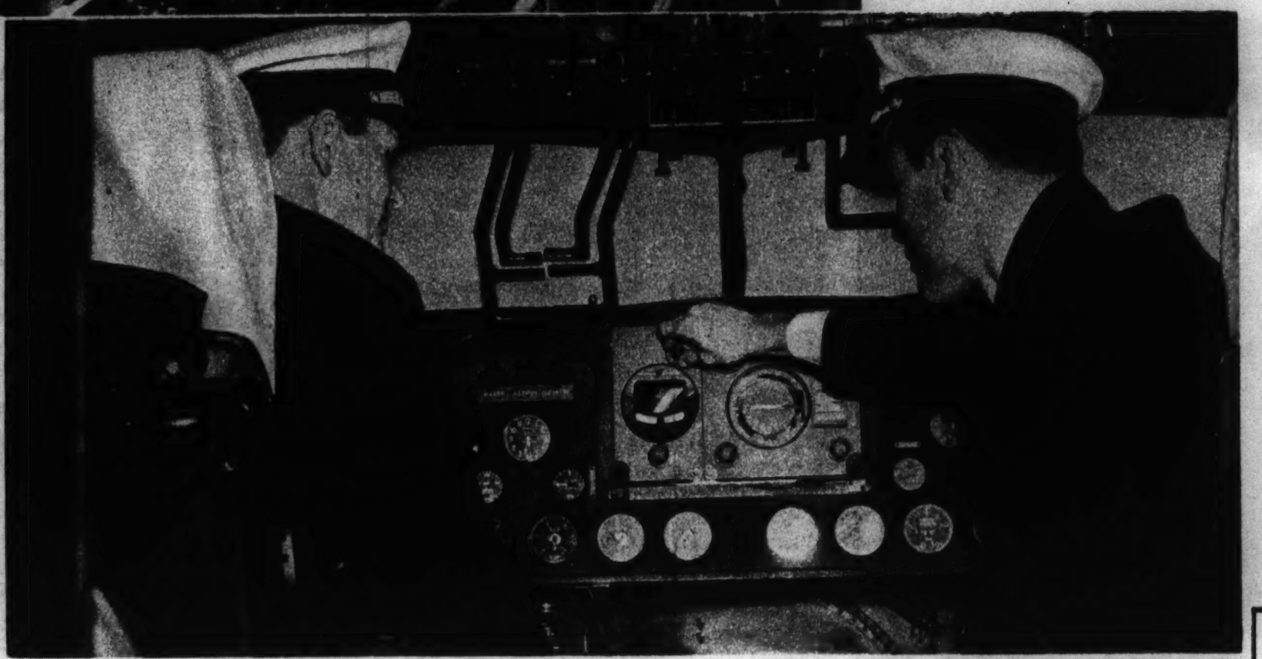
The diagram shows how the Caledonia was modified for the trans-Atlantic flight. The tanks marked with the asterisk are the normal fuel supply for this class boat. All the others were added specially to provide the long range necessary for ocean operations.



At right: This is the flight office of the Pan-American Clipper III. The square instrument directly between the pilots is the Sperry giro pilot which does most of the actual flying and allows the crew to concentrate on navigation.

Two Attractive Young Women of Movies

On page one of the picture section of this issue are portraits in color of Ann Sheridan and Doris Weston, two attractive young women of the movies.

Hollywood, Cal.

GIRLS OF STRIKING appearance are almost commonplace in Hollywood, the cinema center of the world and the lure that attracts young women of ambition and pulchritude from city, village, and farm. But even among an army of attractive misses Ann Sheridan and Doris Weston are outstanding. Ann is a Texas girl. Doris hailed from Chicago.

Ann Sheridan

Miss Sheridan is fortunate in possessing two valued "bests"; the best photographic hair in Hollywood, and the best shoulders on the screen.

When Paramount was combing the country for new talent in the "search for beauty" contest several years ago, a certain editor, John Rosenfield, already had closed his list of candidates for Dallas, Tex. He got one look at Ann and reopened the list in a hurry.

He also opened the gates of Hollywood opportunity for Ann, then known as Clara Lou Sheridan. She came to Hollywood, had a small bit in the Paramount film made with the contest winners, and soon thereafter found herself listed as excess baggage. Without any further contractual obligations, as actors put it in films, Ann free-lanced for a time.

Just about the time that she had begun to toy, but lightly, with the idea of returning to Dallas and using that teacher's certificate she had secured at the North Texas State Teachers' college, Warner Brothers asked to look at a screen test she had made. They signed her to a contract. Her first film assignment was as a school teacher in "The Great O'Malley," in which she played leading lady to Pat O'Brien.

Ann never had been too keen about that school teaching career. She had played rôles, and done singing and dancing in school and home town theatricals, but had entertained little idea that she would ever get a chance at a real career. Since "The Great O'Malley," she has played opposite other important Warner Brothers stars, in "San Quentin," "Black Legion," and "Her Husband's Secretary."

Miss Sheridan is five feet five, and weighs 120 pounds.

Marriage is a potent help to a girl's self confidence, and her career, believes Ann, talking from her own experience. Just a year ago Miss Sheridan slipped across the border to romantic Esenada to marry Edward Norris.

Doris Weston was born in Chicago on Sept. 9, 1917, of Swedish-American ancestry. The family name is Wester. Her Scandinavian heritage shows in her lovely hair, and her golden voice.

Doris from early childhood was obviously intended by fate for a dramatic career. Margaret Illington, then a friend of the family, urged her mother to educate Doris for the theater, and when Doris' father died, her mother took her to New York and placed her in the Professional Children's school.

Doris Weston

After completing her schooling at the age of 17, she essayed a bit of experience as a show girl, walking about in "The Great Waltz." She went to Maj. Bowes, radio impresario, for some advice.

As an old family friend, who had been the husband of the late Margaret Illington, the major offered her a chance on his program. She was a sensational hit. Through this, and the efforts of her voice teacher, Nicholas Kempner, she received an engagement to sing at the New York Rainbow room. It lasted for nine weeks.

The death of her mother resulted in such a shock to the girl that Doris was ill for three months. Following her retirement from the stage, she was besieged with radio offers, sang on the Rudy Vallee hour, and other national broadcasts. Talent scouts sighted her. Tested by Paramount, she was turned down; again Warners stepped in, saw the test, and took her.

Her first rôle was opposite Dick Powell in "The Singing Marine" and her performance proved sensational. She is now working in another film, "Submarine D-1," with George Brent and Pat O'Brien, following a rôle in "San Quentin." Doris is five feet five and weighs 118 pounds.

A Way with the Women

Film Comedians Win Attractive Wives

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

IT'S a strange thing about comedians, but every one we can think of has a swell looking wife. Some of the comics are handsome boys off the screen. Plenty more of them are not. Whatever it is that a comic has, it's what it takes to get a good-looking wife.

(Associated Press photo.) Stan Laurel isn't much to look at, but consider the marital complications that have been his lot.

You can't even explain it by saying that comics make a lot of money, because a lot of them had pretty wives before they got into the money, as was the case with Joe E. Brown. It must be something to do with being comics that makes women wild over them, because even when they're not happily married comics have a lot of blonde trouble.

Look at Laurel and Hardy and their marital complications. And not so many years ago Harry Langdon was in a situation that came about through being too attractive to women.

Groucho Marx is no honey, and as for his brother Harpo, one is at a loss to explain how he was able to fascinate beautiful Susan Fleming, now Mrs. Harpo. Their romance was a world wonder to Hollywood, for Harpo keeps right on clowning, camera or no camera, and would just as soon put a piece of ice or a fish down a girl's back in a café as in a film. To marry into the Marx clan, a girl must be able to take it.

Harpo Marx. One is at a loss to explain how he was able to fascinate beautiful Susan Fleming.

When Harpo finally was cornered in a shaded light booth in a popular café with Susan, and admitted his marriage, he put some ice down the waiter's neck and muttered:

"I had hoped to keep this marriage quiet till the divorce." Then he threw his arms around the giggling bride. Rumor has it that the other Marx wives have maintained happy marriages solely on their sweet dispositions. They are all beautiful girls.

Some years ago Harold Lloyd did all right for himself in the matter of grabbing off his swell-looking leading lady. Plenty pretty was Mildred Davis, and so she is today.

Charles Chaplin, though lacking in the customary towering height and dark eyes of the dream men girls conjure up when thinking of romance, has just about kept the town in a whirl with his romances with beautiful women ever since he shieked around with Edna Purviance, his leading lady, back in the early comedy days.

Then he married Mildred Harris, a beauty indeed. Between times there was his love affair with temperamental Pola Negri, Polish beauty, who took the screen by storm. They were engaged for a time. Later Charlie married Lita Grey, statuesque beauty. His present interest is in Paulette Goddard, a glamor girl, indeed. Through his career, many beautiful and celebrated women have looked warmly upon Mr. Chaplin.

Mildred Harris, Chaplin's first wife. Through his career many beautiful and celebrated women have looked warmly upon Mr. Chaplin, the premier comedian.

Jack Oakie, once the town's perennial and most hopeless bachelor, fooled all the boys with his clowning and walked off with a real beauty, Venita Varden. Looks as if he'll stay married, too. He still calls her "Pigeon."

Some years ago (the photograph was taken in 1923) Harold Lloyd did all right in the matter of grabbing off his swell looking leading lady. Plenty pretty was Mildred Davis (shown with Harold), and so she is today. Still Mrs. Harold Lloyd.

Bob Woolsey, comedy partner of Bert Wheeler, and famous for his cigar and horn-rimmed glasses, married Mignonne Park Reed, Broadway dancing star, some years ago. The couple still are married and devoted.

When Wallace Beery was a young fellow, working as a female impersonator, as a Swedish comedy hired girl for Sennett, he had that something. Didn't he marry Gloria Swanson, about as beautiful and glamorous a woman as Hollywood ever turned loose on the defenseless males in film audiences? Wally's present wife is also a very pretty woman, though a non-professional.

Joe Penner may not be your idea of romance, but, sisters, he's got something the screen doesn't hint at, for he, too has a gorgeous looking wife.

Look at Parkyakarkus, if you can, and still think romantic thoughts. I couldn't, and I'm neither so young nor so beautiful that I can afford to be too fussy. But Thelma Leeds, whom you've seen on the screen yourself so that you know she's pretty, saw something like cooing doves and flowers and pink clouds when she looked at him, for they're now husband and wife.

Eddie Cantor's romance with Ida has gone into stage and screen history as one of the great ones. Ida is a very neat trick, and one can well imagine that Eddie had plenty competition courting her when they were young folks and Eddie still had his way to make. And don't forget that it was Al Jolson whom Ruby Keeler married, not some scion of wealth or collar ad collegian.

And even Bill Fields never turns up at any Hollywood party without a very nice looking feminine companion.

In the George Burns-Gracie Allen family there's a double dose of that humorous stuff. But the rule holds. You've gotta admit that Grace is uncommonly easy to gaze upon.

Perhaps the girls fall for that pathos stuff that every good comic can turn on and off at will. Perhaps they feel sorry for the guy. Perhaps they think, "Here's some helpless and very unworldly man who's just a dreamer, and life is gonna be tough for him if I don't step in and look after things for him." This probably fills the comic with secret mirth when he recalls the dozens of other dames who fell for his stuff the same way. Perhaps, too, the comic can get more sincerity in his love scenes because he hasn't had to reherse them in front of the camera till he's overtrained. Whatever it is, those comics have the really workable kind of sex appeal, no foolin'.

When Ruby Keeler decided to get married she did not choose a scion of wealth or a collar ad collegian, but the far from handsome funny man, Al Jolson.

A poem by Bayard Taylor (he spent the rest of his days trying to live it down, although he was actuated at the time by an excellent motive — pressing need for the money) had won the two hundred dollars offered by Barnum in a prize contest for just such a song. The music was hurriedly provided by the harried Jules Benedict. "Greeting to America" began:

I greet with a full heart the land of the west,
Whose Banner of Stars o'er a world is unrolled.

The verse went on to drag in "Atlantic's wide breast," to enumerate the natural features of the country (mountains, lakes, rivers), and to record the author's conviction that in the United States:

The souls of the mighty from slumber awake,
And hallow the soil for whose freedom they died.

Jenny Lind's personality endeared her to audiences. She was not beautiful, not statuesque, yet her stage presence was overwhelming in its effect. Her simplicity and quiet confidence, combined with an air of sincerity and goodness, carried her farther than the greatest comeliness ever could.

People admired—and perhaps pitied just a little—this unassuming woman clad all in white who pluckily faced packed houses all alone and strove so earnestly to please her audiences. That she did please them, and that she was immensely successful and needed no one's sympathy, seemed not to enter anybody's head. Jenny Lind had an attractively wistful manner about her and an unconscious ability to enlist the affections and the protective instincts of an audience.

But it was the singer's character which was responsible, in far greater degree than her ability or personality, for the Jenny Lind fever which burned through the world. Wily Mr. Barnum constantly emphasized her personal qualities, for he knew that he could not sell a mere singer, no matter how gifted, to the great masses of people on whom the success of his venture finally depended.

The singer's generosity, virtue, simplicity, and religious fervor were far better known in this country than the details of her musical triumphs. Here was a strange and fascinating anomaly—a great artist, a stage woman in fact (the words had a horrifying sound in our great-grandmothers' ears), who yet practiced all the Victorian virtues!

People high and low took Jenny Lind to their hearts. The love which she inspired lives even now in the wisps of fragrance that seem to surround her name. Jenny Lind! The sweetness of the Victorian epoch abides in those three soft syllables, even though we may suspect, in more lucid moments, that much of that sweetness is more apparent to later generations than to those who actually lived in the midst of it.

Jenny Lind from a photograph by Kilburn made in August, 1850, the month she sailed for America.

What of her actual character, as distinguished from the character which the legend makers presented to the world? Due to the efforts of patient biographers who have collected contemporary references of all kinds, we know quite a little about this matter. If Jenny Lind does not seem quite as attractive to the modern world as she did to the people of the middle eighten hundreds, that is due to a slightly changed set of values.

But there can be no quibbling about her generosity, nor about the essential and timeless value of such a quality. She gave money away constantly, which means that she gave her time and effort away constantly. The whole American tour, with all the hardships it involved, was undertaken to raise funds for a children's hospital in Stockholm.

She had no lust for money, and regarded her voice as an instrument which she held in trust, not as a purely personal possession by which a huge fortune might be amassed.

And there can be no aspersions cast upon her virtue nor upon her simplicity, although one might be justified in wondering whether the latter was not carried a little too far. She wanted a home and children, "trees, water and a cathedral" nearby. Well and good, but it is certainly surprising to find that she never appreciated the greatness of the art which she might have served so much longer and so much more intensively than she did. Surprising, too, that she was not more sensitive to the satisfactions (as valid in their way as those for which she yerned) of a distinguished musical career.

There is something a little horrifying to us unregenerate moderns in the fact that she began billing herself as Mrs. Otto Goldschmidt (instead of haunting "Jenny Lind") soon after her marriage. And in the way she retired, while still in her early thirties, to spend the rest of a long life in comparative inactivity. But that, perhaps, is her business and hers alone. She disliked the stage, thought it rather wicked, and left it!

Which brings us to the matter of Jenny Lind's extreme religious convictions and highly developed sense of sin. She not only thought that the stage was wicked but seems to have distrusted pleasure in other forms. She once declared that her personal preference was for sorrow rather than joy.

She loved England and hated France. The former country showed great outward respect, at least, for what Jenny Lind regarded as proper conduct and sound conviction. The latter had other standards—standards entirely incomprehensible to her and therefore inadmissible as standards — so she dismissed all France as "frivolous." Even Sweden was "frivolous." Germany was a little better but not at all satisfactory.

Jenny Lind seems to have had an unpleasant habit (like Knox in the Maxwell Anderson play about Elizabeth) of confusing herself with the Deity and taking it for granted that His ideas were always identical with hers. She was deeply intolerant and resented anyone who did not believe, or seem to believe, in the eternal and unquestionable validity of her opinions.

Although Jenny Lind was a vociferous adherent of Christianity, she seems to have missed the boat entirely as far as any understanding of that philosophy is concerned. A man who made a donation to a fund for the wounded (this was at the time of the Franco-Prussian war) drew her anger by insisting that the money be divided between the soldiers of both nations. The French were "frivolous" even when mangled, and Jenny Lind could not forgive their indifference to standards which she considered absolute and all-exclusive.

And when the prisoners on Blackwell's Island (many years earlier) cheered her boat as it passed, Jenny Lind hurried to the other side of the deck. Even their applause might taint the righteous.

But if Jenny Lind was stupid and humorless this is no crime, only a mischance. Anyway, it hardly matters now. The fragrance that hangs about her name is the fragrance of the legend, not of the woman.

Is there any singer of the present day who possesses Jenny Lind's ability? Certainly —but probably no one with her personality and character as well. Even if such a paragon existed our world could never again experience anything like the Jenny Lind fever of the fifties. It reached its height in this country and Phineas Taylor Barnum is the man who made it soar. Chance will never again bring a Lind and a Barnum together!

Whirlpools—Proof That the Earth Turns?

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

PEOPLE who believe that the earth is flat should look at the two accompanying pictures. They are photographs of whirlpools formed during the emptying of two great reservoirs, one at Loch Treig, Scotland, and the other at Arapuni, New Zealand. It will be noticed that they are turning in different directions; the one south of the equator goes clockwise, while the one in the northern hemisphere turns the other way.

Competent observers have collected evidence that shows that whirlpools formed by the draining of large bodies of water always show this difference with respect to their direction from the equator. This fact is additional evidence that the earth is a spinning globe, as may be proved from the accompanying diagrams.

Consider the case of such a whirlpool occurring in the northern hemisphere, shown in Figure 1. The southern end of the lake travels a greater distance as the earth turns But since all parts of the lake revolve around the axis in the same length of time, it follows that the part nearest the equator actually moves at a greater speed. This difference in speed, or any speed at all, is not apparent to a man standing on the banks of the lake, because the rest of the earth is also moving at speeds varying with latitude.

When water is drained out through an opening near the center of the lake the water near the shore naturally flows toward the center, still retaining its original velocity in the direction of the earth's rotation. As the water from the north end moves south, its eastward speed is insufficient to enable it to keep up with its surroundings which, because of a more southern position, are moving faster. The net result is that this portion of the water picks up a small east to west motion with respect to the earth.

Similarly, as the water moves in from the south its speed is greater than that of its new surroundings, so that it appears to move from west to east. The combined effect is to give the whole body of water a slight counter-clockwise spin.

This effect is noted only in large reservoirs. In the case of a lake a mile in diameter, the difference in the speeds of the northern and the southern ends is between three and four inches a second. The small whirlpool formed when you drain your washbowl is not affected by the earth's rotation, because the latter causes a difference in speed of less than a thousandth of an inch a second.

Opposite directions of these two whirlpools is offered as proof of earth's rotation. The vortex at top is in New Zealand, the bottom one in Scotland.

Combatting Dust Danger

DUST is never a pleasant thing to breathe, but some dusts are far worse than others. Coal dust, for example, may color a miner's or coal heaver's lungs as black as night, but it rarely does anything more serious. On the other hand, the repeated inhalation of freshly ground silica dust (silica is a general name for the compound that makes up sand and quartz), frequently results in a disease known as silicosis, characterized by an extensive scarring and destruction of lung tissue.

This disease has come to be recognized as a serious industrial hazard. Since sand and quartz are obviously quite nonpoisonous as found in nature, the fact that they are more dangerous than other dusts when finely ground, led to the suspicion that silicosis was a result of some hitherto unrecognized property of silica.

Sand, harmless in nature, is dangerous when finely ground.

Tests on rabbits appear to have shown that the danger can be greatly lessened if the silica dust is mixed with a trace of metallic aluminum dust.

Silica is a compound of the elements silicon and oxygen, and the atoms of these elements are so arranged on the surface of freshly broken silica that the oxygen atoms possess a small but definite part of the combining power of free element.

Presumably this is responsible for the fact that freshly ground silica is more soluble than other forms of the material. This in turn suggests that the deadly effect of silica dust is the result of its actually combining chemically with the lung tissues, and not of mere mechanical irritation.

If this were true, the way to denature silica dust would be to bring it in contact with something that had a great affinity for oxygen, so that the latter would be completely saturated before it had time to attack living tissue. Theoretically, aluminum should have such an effect, and tests with it have borne out these predictions.

Mostly About Dogs

Fits Not Sign That a Dog Is Mad

Although some motion picture actors and actresses are partial to large breeds of dogs for pets, the popular Boston terrier and wirehaired fox terrier have lots of friends among movie stars. Here is Betty Grable with her pet Boston terrier, Bing, out for a stroll.

A DOG (especially a puppy) that suffers from a fit or convulsion often frightens the owner, to say nothing of the general public, because to many people a fit is a sign of a "mad dog." This is not true, of course. But it obviously is a sign that something is wrong with the animal.

A puppy may suffer from a fit or convulsion while teething or as a result of worms, indigestion, unusual fright, ear trouble, foreign bodies in the intestines such as paper, corncobs, pieces of wood, stones or other things that the dog has swallowed. Sometimes distemper is a cause.

In a fit the dog develops a "wild" expression, the jaws may work rapidly, which produces lots of frothy saliva. The animal then may drop down unconscious or it may run around in a blind way, knocking down lamps and hitting chairs. We know of puppies suffering from a fit (due to faulty feeding) that just about wrecked living rooms before they toppled over on the floor unconscious.

It is such a terrifying thing to the dog owner that commonly he does the wrong thing or else tries to do too much for the dog. If the pup can be held, well and good. But watch out that he doesn't bite you. Usually the dog is suffering from so much pain and he is in such a semiconscious state that he may snap and bite at anything without realizing it. Therefore, if you attempt to hold the dog, it is wise to protect your hands.

At right: A stylish Scottish terrier that has won ribbons on both sides of the Atlantic. He is Int. Ch. Walsing Wallet, the sire of Ch. Walsing Wagtail, and the English champion, Walsing Waterlily. Wallett is owned by Dr. Flora M. Pedicord of Zanesville, O.

In case the owner is bitten there is no need to worry about rabies. A superficial nip from a dog with a fit is not serious. Clean the wound and apply a little iodine. That's all that is needed. And that froth on the dog's jaws may be awful to look at, but it has no significance at all.

After the dog has quieted down you can give him a sedative, such as three to five grains of sodium bromide in water. But don't try to give the dog anything while he is suffering from a convulsion. He won't be able to swallow it.

The safest thing for a dog owner to do after the pet has had one of these fits or convulsions is to have him given a thorough checkup by the veterinarian. Many dog owners fail to do this in the belief that the animal never will have another fit. A simple fit or convulsion is not serious. But it is an indication of trouble somewhere in the body. The cause must be found and eliminated or the owner may lose his dog. If it's merely a digestive upset that has caused the convulsion a fast for 12 hours and then a laxative (milk of magnesia) often brings the dog back to normal. If it is discovered that worms have caused the convulsion then the dog must be given treatment at once.

Equally annoying but not as frightening as a convulsion is a perverted appetite in a puppy. Very often this perverted appetite may be the cause of a fit because the pup eats so many indigestible things. Some pups as well as mature dogs will chew and swallow the most repulsive material they can find, as well as wood, nails, pieces of wire and other ridiculous objects.

Carnforth Tobias, our grown clumber spaniel, can't resist corncobs. For no explainable reason a messy corncob is to Toby what an all day sucker is to a child. If he can find small fragments of cobs there is real trouble because he will swallow some and then we have a veterinarian's bill to pay!

In the case of a puppy with a perverted appetite it is wise to give him a diet that is especially rich in minerals and vitamins. There are supplementary foods on the market which contain many minerals. These may be added to the pup's regular diet. Yeast sometimes is a help because it is rich in vitamins. We had one veterinarian tell us that he sometimes recommended the addition of tomato and sauerkraut juices to the dog's diet. It was found that in certain cases this helped the dog to get rid of his perverted appetite.

DOG NOTES

The Welsh terrier seems to be winning many new friends and the public gradually is learning that a Welsh is not an airedale puppy or a miniature airedale. The color combination of the Welsh with his black saddle and rich tan trimming is such that the dogs do not show dirt. His size is handy, too.

Many dog owners forget one important angle in the care of their dogs—their pets' teeth. Most owners seem to assume that the dogs' teeth will take care of themselves, and that no attention is necessary. As a matter of fact, veterinarians will tell you that injurious tartar forms on dogs' teeth the same as it does on the teeth of humans, and it is necessary to remove this tartar occasionally if the dog is to remain healthy.

BOY CRAZY

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1937, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

Girl's Mother. She used to be pretty boy crazy. Has a swell time entertaining her girl's boy friend when daughter happens to be out. Encourages him to talk about himself and tells him a few of dear Louise's faults. Which is going to burn Louise up when she hears of it.

Emotional Girl. Edna discovers a new heart interest at intervals of about two weeks. And each time she is completely bowled over. Tells her girl friend about the marvelous boy she met, and swears he's the image of Robert Taylor, only grander. And vows she'll "just die if he doesn't call her up today!"

Outdoors Girl. Pat likes all boys, more or less, and hardly any girls. Has a good sense of humor, somewhat slapstick at times. And she can be acid, too, so that timid girls often are frightened out of a year's growth. They say she's "too snippy," but the boys say she's tops.

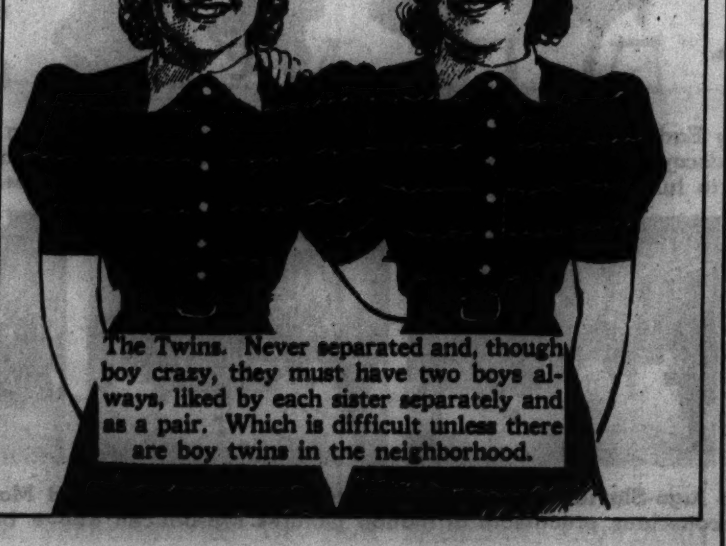
Problem Girl. Doris is first family and carefully reared. Only the most refined and the richest boys are encouraged to come around. But Doris is crazy over all the boys from the wrong side of town. Road menders, truck drivers, etc. Doris, who always gets to the phone first, is saying "Oh, goody! I'll meet you down at the gas station in ten minutes."

Wealthy Playgirl. Married five times and still considering another try. The older she grows, the younger she likes her boy friends.

Shy Girl. Dorothy is in process of growing up. Has violent crushes on the older boys her brother brings home, but is fearful of letting on about it. There would be jesting at her expense. She's still just a kid sister.

The Minx. Flirts with other girls' husbands and causes trouble. She has no interest in the unmarried males. But give her a happily married man to work on and will she have fun!



The Twins. Never separated and, though boy crazy, they must have two boys always, liked by each sister separately and as a pair. Which is difficult unless there are boy twins in the neighborhood.

Tibet—Land of Lamas

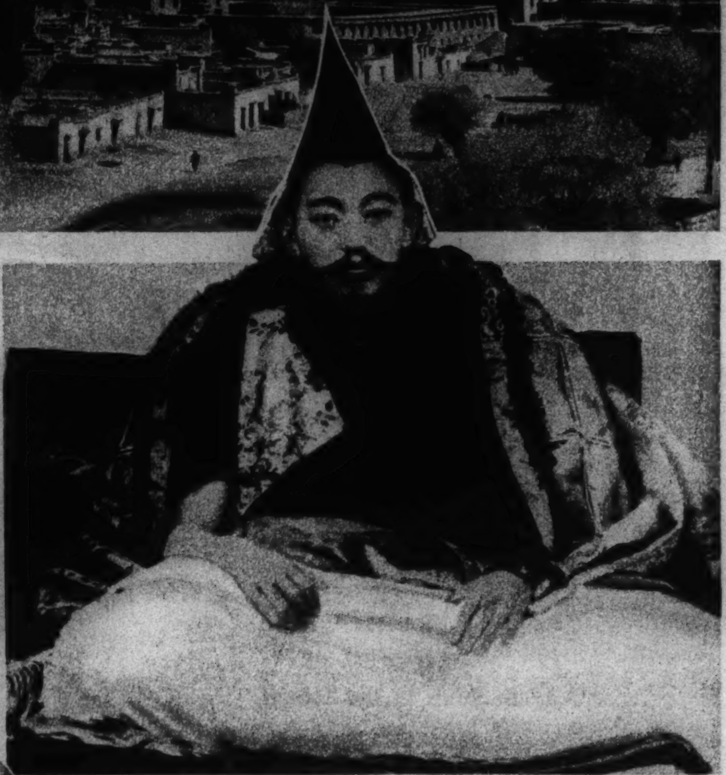
1 Aloof in its fertile valley stands the white and gold Botala palace, fountainhead of the government and religion of Tibet. It is the residence of the Dalai Lama, supreme spiritual and temporal ruler of this almost legendary land. Lhasa, sacred city which it overlooks, is capital of the world's highest and most isolated country. Tibet's average altitude is over 16,000 feet, its passes rising to 19,000.



2 The acting Dalai Lama. A nameless youth of 26, he was selected to rule during the search for the reincarnation of the lama who died in 1933. A child born at the instant of that death will be selected, by what might be termed the Tibetan college of cardinals. The late Dalai Lama assumed spiritual powers by exiling the Panchen Lama, or pope, in 1914.

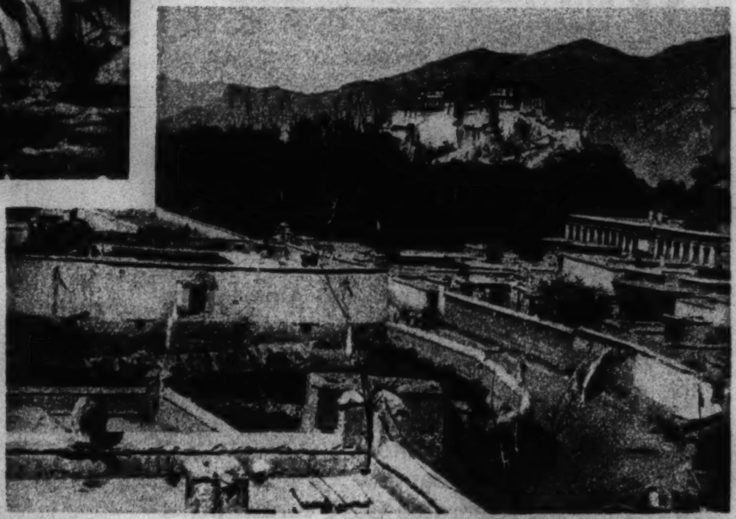
3 Illustrative of religious sculpture is this gigantic Buddha, discovered in western Tibet when most of the rock wall concealing the grotto collapsed. Such shrines are scattered widely over the country's million square miles.



4 Some of the residences of Lhasa, with the palace in the background. Tibetans in Lhasa valley are largely agricultural. Industry has not been highly developed and civilization has brought few of its conveniences.

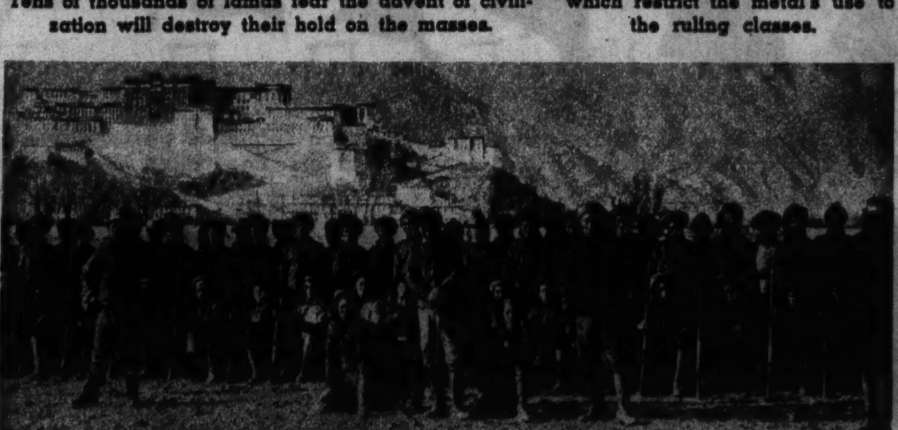
5 Lamaism counts among its priests nearly two-thirds of all the male adults in Tibet. Their income is chiefly from donations, hence the odd horns and other musical instruments used in roadside begging. Tens of thousands of lamas fear the advent of civilization will destroy their hold on the masses.

6 A Tibetan court lady displays her jewels, worth a small fortune. Gold is plentiful in Tibet although general mining is discouraged by exhorbitant imposts which restrict the metal's use to the ruling classes.



7 Rugged trade routes between China on the east and India on the south, Tibet has increasingly felt the need of armed defense despite her natural barriers. These British trained and armed soldiers are part of the standing army of 6,500 men. It is claimed Tibet could muster 100,000 soldiers in an emergency.

Stories in Pictures Pre-Date Camera

WHEN King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and Foreign Minister Barthou of France were assassinated at Marseilles in 1934, a movie camera was trained on the scene. Reproduced in daily newspapers, the dramatic picture sequence was rightly acclaimed as at once ultramodern and historic. But the motive underlying the cameraman's work, to tell a story in pictures, is far older than movies; it is as old as a record of the chase done by a cave man artist.

● Before Columbus discovered America, essentially the same feat was performed by Giovanni di Paolo di Gracia of Siena. Painting six panels which became part of an octagonal tabernacle for a baptismal chapel, the Italian put continuity into a picture story of the life of John the Baptist.

● Again, the celebrated Goya turned artist-reporter to record a news event of 1806. His picture story spun the yarn of a holdup man who was shot in the breeches by a monk, an intended victim.

● Before movies were developed numerous efforts were made to animate photographs. Late pioneers in such undertakings gave apparent motion to a few pictures in a crude slot machine. Awed patrons could prime the machine with a coin.

● One of the most famous examples of pre-movie picture sequences resulted from a $25,000 bet, made in the seventies by Gov. Leland Stanford of California, that a galloping horse takes all four feet off the ground at once. The western capitalist spent $40,000 winning the bet.

● To take action pictures that would prove Stanford's contention, an engineer, John D. Isaacs, rigged an electrically operated battery of cameras alongside a track. Then a photographer, Eadweard Muybridge, made the pictures that won the wager.

● Using the Isaacs technique, Muybridge went on to international fame as a photographer of action. He never did, however, further development of motion pictures as we know them.

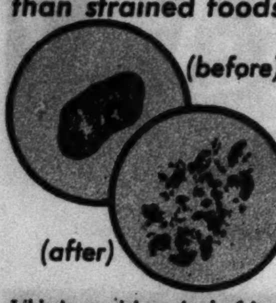
Only Libby's special process makes BABY FOODS

Extra easy to digest!

● You'd gladly spend hours every day straining baby's foods . . . if that would help baby grow big and strong. Of course you would!

But remember, Mother, no matter how hard you work you can't make solid foods as easy for baby to digest as Libby does.

Why Libby's Baby Foods digest more easily than strained foods



Libby's special method of homogenization breaks up food cells—releases nourishment. No sieve or strainer can do this.

It's because Libby uses a special method of homogenization in preparing baby's vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup. This special process does what no sieve or strainer can ever do—it completely breaks up the food cells in solid foods—sets nourishment in these cells free for easier digestion. Libby's Baby Foods digest more easily than the finest strained foods!

Many doctors recommend Libby's Baby Foods as early as three months because they're extra-easy to digest . . . to supplement baby's milk formula with extra minerals (iron especially) and vitamins for growth and development.

See your doctor regularly about your baby's diet.

Your grocer has Libby's Baby Foods in economical tins—or will be glad to get them for you.

THREE FOODS IN EVERY TIN!

No. 1 Peas, beets, asparagus tips
No. 2 Pumpkin,* tomatoes, string beans
No. 3 Carrots, spinach, peas
No. 4 Cereal combination . . . whole milk, whole wheat, soya flour
No. 5 Prunes, pineapple juice, lemon juice
No. 6 Soup . . . vegetables, chicken livers, barley

Such a convenience . . . so economical. Libby's Baby Foods come in special combinations . . . three foods in each tin (instead of one) all blended together. Each of these special combinations gives baby minerals and vitamins that babies need for good growth and development. You can order them by number—all ready to warm and serve.

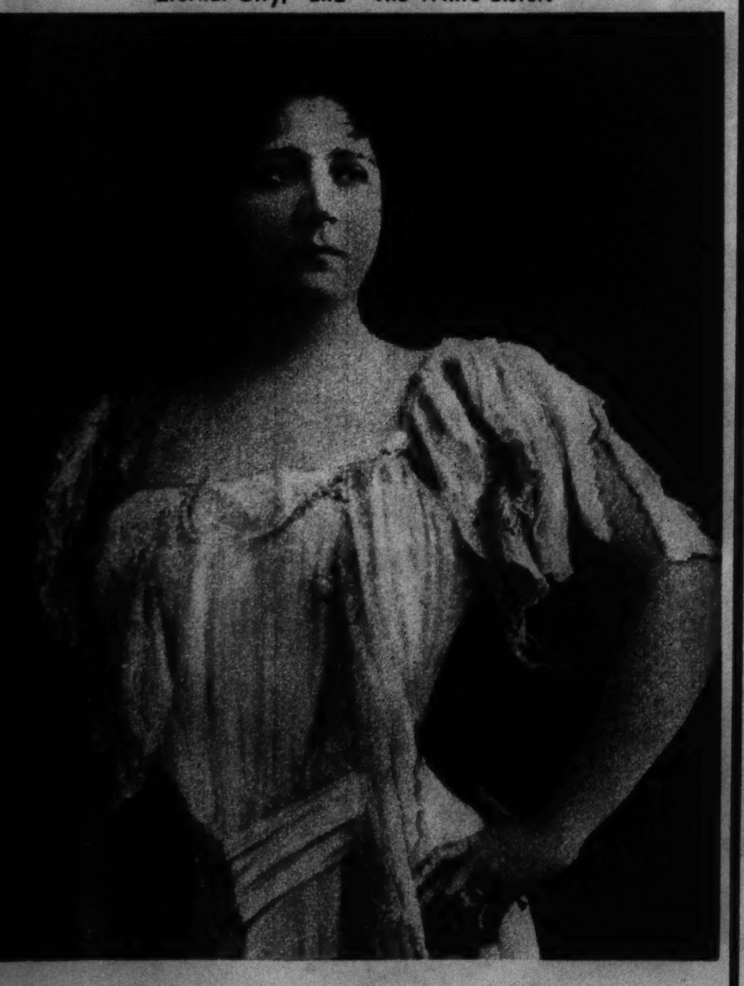
NAT C. GOODWIN was regarded as the finest comedian of the American stage, in native characters, for many years. His career ran from 1873 to 1919. The title of his last play, "Why Marry?" was an ironic footnote to his private life, for he married five times. This picture shows him in a scene with his third wife, the famous beauty, Maxine Elliott.

They Would Have Been Roto Pictures In Their Day

GABRIELLE REJANE was Sarah Bernhardt's rival for popularity in Paris and achieved international fame. She was essentially a comedienne, but often played tragic roles, competing with Bernhardt in "Camille" and other emotional dramas. She appeared in Chicago with her own company in 1905. She died in 1920.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON is a tradition of the American stage for droll studies of comic character, with Rip Van Winkle as his masterpiece. He was born in 1829 and began his acting in childhood with his father's touring company. He remained in harness almost until his death in 1905. Old Chicagoans saw him often.

VIOLA ALLEN was an actress of romantic roles who had a brilliant career from her debut in 1884, at the age of 15, until her retirement in 1906, after her marriage. She originated the role of the mother in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and she had great success as a star in such plays as "The Christian," "The Eternal City," and "The White Sister."



BLANCHE WALSH was an actress of power in emotional roles who flourished as a star on the American stage from 1895 until 1910. She acted in nearly 100 plays, including "The Kreutzer Sonata" and "Resurrection," dramatized from Tolstoy's novels. She was born in 1873 and died in 1915.

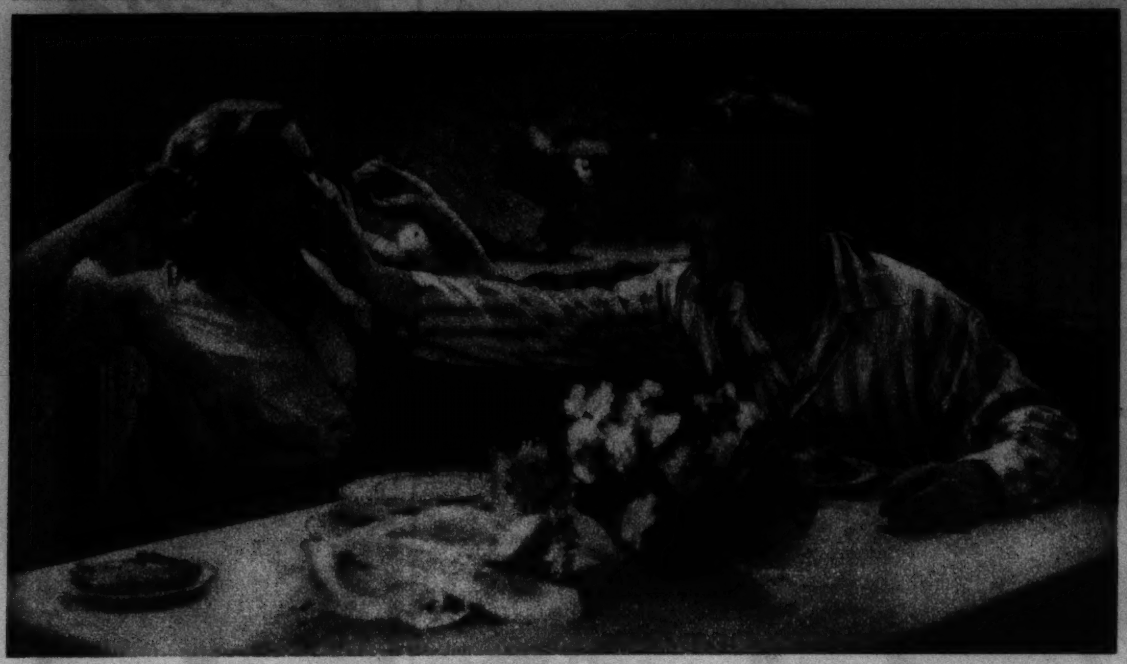
Realism in the Movies



1 JIMMY CAGNEY STARTED IT—A new realism crept into the movies six years ago when Cagney struck Mae Clarke in this famous scene from "Public Enemy."

5 THE BATTLE RESUMES—The hero, divested of vest, prepares to follow the director's orders.

8 HAPPY ENDING—Director Wellman falls back on the old formula of kiss and make up to bring to a close this part of the picture.

Motorists Everywhere Who Thought it Was Sound Business to Stick to the Same Make Car Have Made This Discovery...

THEY SAVED MONEY BY SWITCHING TO DODGE

"IMAGINE A CAR with the looks and fine-car features of Dodge costing so little and saving so much," says Mrs. Kenneth Holbrook, Garden City, N.Y. "Why I get over 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and never have to add oil between changes. It is such a beautiful car, and so roomy, that it's difficult to believe that Dodge costs only a few dollars more than lowest-priced cars."

"DODGE IS CERTAINLY a world-beater for economy," says Ferman J. Hoyt, Chicago. "I get better than 19 miles to the gallon of gasoline regularly. And I spend much less for oil, lubrication and upkeep. To think that this big, money-saving Dodge—with all its roominess, comfort and expensive-car features—costs so little more than a new model of the small car I had been driving. The old idea of it being smart trading to stay with the same make car doesn't hold good today."

"I NEVER SAW such an economical car—and I've driven smaller cars," says L. W. Burrows, St. Louis. Considering the amount I drive, Dodge at 20½ miles to the gallon (7 miles more than I got from my old car) will save me $50 or $60 a year on gas alone, not to speak of other savings on oil and upkeep. 'Switch to Dodge' means 'Saving money' all right!"

"I AM AMAZED at the way Dodge saves money," says Lenore Kight Wingard, world-famous swimming champion. "It is really astonishing that a car as big, as gorgeous looking, and as luxuriously appointed as Dodge should cost so little to operate. Why, I'm getting more than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline... and what an easy handling car it is! Am I glad I switched to Dodge!"

"FROM THE VERY FIRST, our Dodge has always been so economical," says Donna Roberts, Los Angeles. "We realize now how much we've actually saved—on gasoline, oil, tires and service—by having switched to Dodge. And to think that we used to believe that we'd do better by always trading in on the same make car. We can't get over the fact that such a big car as Dodge gives us 22 miles to the gallon."
